Lana Turner Says She's Not the Home-Girl Type

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 7 (AP)—Meet the self-proclaimed—and proud—of-it new Lana Turner. "I'm strictly the home girl now," she says. "You wouldn't know me."

eager to get back to work. She returned here June 20 to begin "A Life of Her Own" on July 15. Five months and three scripts later, she is still waiting to start the picture.

Yule Tree--- Buy It Or Cut It?

How much will you pay for that Christmas tree? People in some parts of the country will pay plenty this year!

Wholesale prices for the better trees were around 20 cents a lineal foot. Add transportation costs, business overhead, profit and you can tie up quite a little sum in that bit of evergreen around which your presents will lay Christmas morning.

Local Scene Klamath Falls residents are more fortunate, living near an area where they can either cut their own tree or purchase from local stands at cheaper prices.

Cutting of Christmas trees at high elevations has been completed but some cutting on private land is still going on in the basin. "All designated trees in the national forest reserve area have been cut for some time," according to R. L. Cooper, chief of the national forest service here.

Eastern Markets "Eastern markets in St. Louis and Chicago purchase many of the Shasta firs from here," he said. "All so many of the later cuttings go to the Los Angeles and San Francisco markets."

Cutters usually start shipments immediately after Thanksgiving and stands may be found all over the country selling trees until the last minute.

No Bargains "Stand prices will probably hold throughout the season without dropping the last few days before Christmas," Cooper said. "Most operators destroy the trees before cutting prices, they figure it's bad for next year's market."

To the tribal chiefs of the American Indians during the 1860's, owning a totem pole was like having your name in the social register.

U.S. Children Bost British Christmas Joy

HAMILTON, O., Dec. 7 (AP)—It's going to be a happier Christmas for some children in Acton, England—thanks to the sixth grades of Monroe elementary school here.

The students at Monroe voted to give up their annual Christmas treat of candy from the school principal, Mrs. Fern Keltner. The candy will be sent to the British pupils of Mrs. Ruth Lewis, Hamiltonian now teaching in Acton.

Mrs. Keltner wrote to Mrs. Lewis asking what the British children would like for Christmas. Mrs. Lewis replied they would be thrilled to get candy. She pointed out that in England children are allowed only one-fourth of a pound of candy a week, and treats are few and far between.

Thirty-six pounds of mixed hard candies will be sent the Acton children.

Illinois Doctor Wins AMA Honor

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—Dr. Andy Hall of Mount Vernon, Ill., yesterday named the "outstanding general practitioner of the year" by the American Medical Association.

Dr. Hall, who will be 85 next January 8, is the father of three sons who are doctors.

The AMA house of delegates voted him a gold medal for having "rendered exceptional service to his community."

NOISE HONOR

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (AP)—Nobody claims New York City is quiet, but it got an award for trying to be. The National Noise Abatement council yesterday presented its 1949 achievement award to the city for its efforts toward reducing the general hubbub.

Air Force Needs Specialists

Veterans with special skill in airplane mechanics, radio, radar, and some 30 other vacancies are now needed by the air force, according to Master Sgt. Clarence E. Moss, recruiting official.

Former servicemen have a good opportunity for a career in aviation and can enlist in a non-commissioned grade commensurate with their training and experience, Sgt. Moss said.

Opportunities Enlistees will have chances for further training at technical schools and can volunteer for overseas service. Steady promotions are assured under the new vocational guidance program. Moss pointed out low- and extra pay based on years of service. Applicants must have satisfactory service records and must be able to pass the new, high mental and physical requirements.

Married men will be accepted only if they can qualify for one of the top three pay grades. Additional information may be obtained at the recruiting station, room 309, federal building.
