City Ponders Hotel Tavern Permit Again

Reconsideration of a tavern denial was agreed last night by the city council following a previous turn-down of George Stevens' request for a tavern license at the old Hall hotel.

Attorney L. Orth Sisemore, representing Stevens, advised the council that when it denied his client's request it was not for a new license but for a renewal. Application was denied last week.

Because his lease expires at the Kern hotel at the end of this month Stevens wants to place a licensed premises in the Hall hotel now being remodeled.

Support
In supporting the request Sisemore showed the city fathers architectural sketches depicting proposed interior and exterior improvements to the Hall hotel which Stevens purchased recently.

The attorney said improvements would result in an attractive building on Main street, but that continued construction would depend on building the bar.

He stated operation of the hotel would not be profitable with only 20 rooms.

In conclusion Sisemore stated the council was in effect taking a license away from a man who had done business in Klamath Falls for 16 years.

To Many?
Councilman Alfred Condrey remarked the council had given a lot of consideration to the application out of five you'd be doing better than they average over in the valley. And a huge market just to the south for everything you can raise. Given a chance there are other crops that would be money makers in the area.

THE climate in the basin (despite the all cussing we give it) is still better than the average for a lot of the Northwest. There is a lot of country left around us that could be exploited to bring in the tourist dollar. The upper lake is still to be developed for sport. The other resort lakes around will bear improvement, too. Some day we may be able to offer attractions with as much pulling power as the highly touted California and Washington areas do now. Why not?

AND last but not least, we have a sound business and industrial growth developing without an overgrowth in population and consequent overbuilding that would have to be accounted for some day in the future.

Stop and dream it over and this is a pretty good country with a pretty good future. If it wasn't, few of us would stay here.

How About Dreaming A Bit?

By BILL JENKINS

THE dream department is in operation again.

A bunch of the office personnel were sitting around this morning chewing the fat over things in general and speculating as to the probable outcome of things here and elsewhere. Every time we get to doing that the fact keeps coming up that we have all the possibilities for a pretty big country. So why not slip over into the dream department and take a look?

With as much livestock as we have, why not a major processing plant? The experts who should know say there isn't much standing in the way of a really big packing plant moving in. Balance your livestock economy, ballyhoo the proposition and let nature take its course. Right now we don't have an awful lot to offer except for beef. We'd need other things such as sheep, hogs and poultry. But they all do well in this area, and there has always been a good living over the years in the livestock industry.

WITH all the barley we grow around here, why not a brewery? I seem to remember rumors that at one time the water supply of the basin was surveyed and pronounced fit for brewing purposes. If so, a brewery would serve a double purpose. You'd have the beer and the payroll and the business, and when you were all through brewing you would still have the residue left to be made into stock food. Mix it with cheap molasses or whatever it is they use nowadays and make it up into blocks. If we could do that we could feed cattle over the winter and get away from the expense of shipping them south. Maybe just a dream, but it's a nice one, at least.

PART of the picture has already been filled in. Timber remanufacturing plants are already here and more are certainly in the picture. The old days of rind it down and ship it out raw are ending, and the refinishing processes are here. And with the new methods comes an increased payroll for the men and for the community.

THE agricultural possibilities of the basin have barely been tapped to date. There are plenty of things that will grow here if they are given the chance. Take cherries for instance. All the ornamental cherry trees in town do well almost every year. They bear just at a time when all the other cherries are off the market. Even if you get three crops

23 Years Ago

Monday, December 13, 1926—Donations totaling $306.80 were turned in this morning by those working in the Klamath Community Chest drive. Bob Coyne's Saturday interests of the Klamath Community Chest drive. Bob Coyne's Saturday donation of $100 topped the list for individuals. Girls at Moe's store were one hundred per cent, giving $14.

Tuesday, December 14, 1926—Miss Dorothy Dunham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Dunham, is expected home on Saturday from Portland where she has been attending school at St. Helen's hall.

Wednesday, December 15, 1926—That bad luck comes in streaks is the opinion of Edward Propst of 737 North Ninth. While motoring to his ranch in the Merrill district on Sunday, he lost a pointer bird dog which he valued highly. It is thought the dog left the car between the Exell ranch and Mack's store. Speaking of the car, it was stolen last night when Mr. Propst parked it for a short time at Main and Seventh. With the aid of an officer he searched the surrounding sections and at five o'clock this morning found it on the road to Keno. The party or parties who apparently stole the car had deserted it upon running out of gas and when Propst reached the spot it was frozen.

Thursday, December 16, 1926—If in passing down the street you notice a red tag on an awning reading as follows: "Our Air—to make life longer and more comfortable for tall men. If, in fact, this were seven high, the Longfellow would not swear or sigh," you will know that some Longfellow has bumped his head or knocked his hat off doing the awnings. It is an aim of the club to have awnings raised to seven feet above the sidewalks.

Friday, December 17, 1926—Don Zumwalt, it is thought, will be the next city engineer. Under the Waters administration after the first of the year it is believed Mr. Zumwalt will assume the duties of the city engineer's office which has been held by Charles T. Darley for some time.

Saturday, December 18, 1926—Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Kahl are the proud parents of a baby girl, born December 16th at the Klamath Valley Hospital.
