TODAY'S WORLDWIDE BIBLE READING TEXT:

Matthew 25:31-46.

When the Son of man shall come in His glory, and all the holy angels with Him, then shall He sit upon the throne of His glory: And before Him shall be gathered all nations: and He shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats: And He shall set the sheep on His right hand, and the goats on the left. Then shall the King say unto them on His right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world: For I was an hungred, and ye gave Me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave Me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took Me in: Naked, and ye clothed Me: I was sick, and ye visited Me: I was in prison, and ye came unto Me. Then shall the righteous answer him, saying Lord, when saw we Thee an hungred, and fed Thee? or thirsty, and gave Thee drink? When saw we Thee a stranger, and took Thee in? or naked, and clothed Thee? Or when saw we Thee sick, or in prison, and came unto Thee? And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me.

Then shall He say unto them on the left hand, Depart from Me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels: For I was an hungred, and ye gave Me no meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave Me no drink: I was a stranger, and ye took Me not in: naked, and ye clothed Me not: sick, and in prison, and ye visited Me not. Then shall they also answer Him, saying, Lord, when saw we Thee an hungred, or athirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister unto Thee? Then shall He answer them, saying, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to Me. And these shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal.

Caught in the Rounds

By DEB ADDISON

THE TRUTH WILL OUT: Just read Charlie Stanton's account, in the Roseburg News-Review, of a new bridge on Smith river in Douglas county. He says it has the longest retractable drawspan in Oregon, and that it's a bridge without a road leading to it. (The road will be built soon). It will provide highway access to the south bank of Smith river. Until fairly recently river boat was the only means of travel or transportation for any Smith river resident. Stanton further says that in spite of the hemmed-in condition, "they had perhaps the highest per capita wealth of any section of the Pacific coast."

This same Smith river is the place where our good county agent, Charlie Henderson, hails from. Now we find that he's been bamboozling us all these years. He's always posed as the barefoot boy from the hills, who had to catch steelhead off his front porch to have something to eat. (He claims it's still a wonderful place to fish, but no one from here has ever hit it "just right"). Maybe he was so interested in the fish that he didn't know that his Smith river had the highest per capita wealth on the coast. And maybe that condition of youthful barefoot bliss had something to do with the old saw that ignorance is bliss. Anyway, we're glad he moved to Klamath before the truth about Smith river came out.

HAD a call from Lee McMullen that the annual stockholders meeting of the Klamath Production Credit association has been set for Saturday, January 21. Lee is pepped up. He says it will be the first meeting of the KPACA as an entirely farmer-owned association; that they now pay taxes like white folks and are proud of it. . . . What to Do About Sex Crimes Against Children?

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP)—Rape and murder are the extreme most violent forms of sex offenses against children.

They've made headlines lately. But sexual offenses against children also take other forms, less violent. There are more of them.

What causes a man to commit any kind of sex offense against a child? I asked a couple of Washington psychiatrists.

Causes

They said there are a number of causes. Here are some:

1. Feeble-mindedness. A man of 40 may have the mind of a child.
2. Senility. An old man's brain may have deteriorated so that he's in his second childhood.
3. Disease of the brain. Syphilis, for example, Disease destroyed that part of the brain which previously kept a man from such an offense.
4. Bad early family and social training. It may have left a man socially immature so that he never fitted into grown-up society.
5. Or, for one reason or another he has become a sadist who can find emotional comfort only in inflicting suffering or death upon a child.

Cure?

Can such a man be cured by medical or psychiatric treatment? Some can, some can't. Almost nothing can be done for the feeble-minded (No. 1) or the old and senile (No. 2).

If the man with brain syphilis (No. 3) isn't too far gone, the disease can be stopped and in time he may resume a normal life.

Some of those in No. 4 and 5 may be cured by psychiatry, some not. These doctors think the definitely incurable ones should be put away only 2:45 now, we can't tell you more . . . It's too bad we've stalled all these years about shipping Harry Bridges back to Australia. Maybe they won't have him now, (after the anti-social election the other day) . . . The Audit Bureau of Circulations has just celebrated its 35th anniversary, hailing the event as a 35-year period in which newspaper and magazine publishers and advertisers and advertising agencies had set and followed a standard of buyer-seller relations without one iota of help or regulation from Uncle . . . Our favorite critic remarked that the picture of Robert Ruark (columnist in the Oregonian) is almost as bad as mine; that because of it she didn't read his stuff for a long time. Taking this up with H&N Photo Wes Guderian brings forth the reply that you can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear.

World Today

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

THESE days of clashing political ideologies have a tendency to breed doubts and suspicions even between old and tried international friends.

We had a rather startling indication of this recently when Lord Strabolgi, laborite member of the British house of lords, declared in a debate on defense that there were American hotbeds who were talking quite glibly of using atomic power to divert the gulf stream if England went communistic. England owes her temperate climate to the gulf stream and presumably might become an arctic country if the stream were turned away.

Well of course, the scientists promptly tossed this idea out the window as nonsense. It would take more than atomic power to shift the gulf stream, even if anybody wanted to shift it.

Poor Man's Philosopher On the Twentieth Century

NEW YORK (AP)—The 20th century reaches the halfway mark January 1st—but halfway to where?

This is one of the oracles haven't figured out. Has it taken mankind halfway to the all-but-perfect life, or halfway on the road back to the silence of the jungle?

At 50 the 20th century has a few circles under its eyes and undoubtedly it is hoping as we all do, that the first 50 years are the hardest. They have been years of tremendous progress in many ways, and an equal number of years of promise lie ahead.

No century ever dawned in brighter hope. Across the land there were many "Century Balls" held the last night of 1899. And when midnight struck the dancing throngs cheered, and women wept, wondering what the next 100 years would bring to them, their children and their children's children.

Great Century

It was a great century that died that night, for the 19th century was the spread of the scientific spirit and popular education. It was the century that said goodbye to the horse and hello to the gasoline engine.

It was the century that struck off the fetters from the mind of man, and in many ways the 20th century is only carrying on its reforms. Among them are equal political status for women, shortening of the work week and increase of leisure, and a rising standard of living.

At the midmark of our present century is still unlocking the atom's secret, a power source for good or evil more epoch-making than the gasoline engine. Medical science

Mature Suspended By Studio

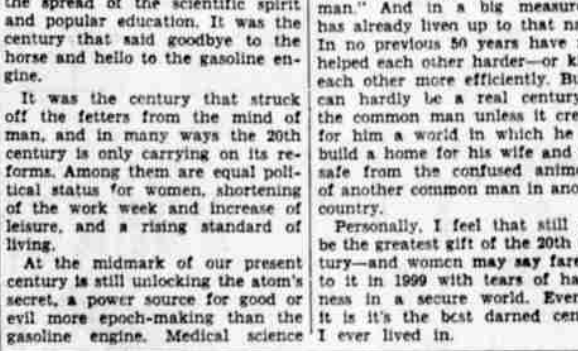

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 14 (AP)—Victor Mature is under suspension from 20th Century Fox today for his refusal to make a picture for another studio.

Fox says it bought Mature's contract from Hal Roach and that the contract specifies that RKO may use Mature in one film a year. RKO cast the handsome actor in a movie tentatively titled, "Mr. Wiskey."

Mature turned the gangster part down with this comment: "I haven't seen the finished script, but what I did see convinced me it wouldn't be good for me."

Mature, known as the "beautiful hunk of man" will not draw his salary for a minimum of eight weeks, a 20th Century Fox spokesman explained.

Doctor Says Frostbite Victims Should Take Care to Thaw Slowly

By EDWIN F. JORDAN, M. D.

In very cold weather the blood vessels on the surface of the body contract. This is nature's way of preventing too much cooling of the blood as it comes in contact with the cold surroundings. However, if the cold is too severe or lasts too long, the flow of blood at the surface is so greatly lessened that freezing or at least frostbite of the exposed part is likely.

The tip of the nose, the ears, the fingers and the toes are particularly vulnerable to frostbite. Frostbite may come on gradually or suddenly—the latter especially if the wind is high. First a stinging feeling is present in the exposed part, followed by a pleasant numbness often without any pain. Sometimes frostbite is discovered only by a feeling of stiffness or the noticing of a whitish appearance of the exposed part.

When the frostbitten area begins to thaw, swelling develops and the skin becomes pink. In severe cases, red or purple blisters filled with serum or blood may appear. After the frozen part has thawed it may remain cold and without feeling, later becoming swollen and purple and death of the tissue may set in and that part eventually falls off.

Snow Cure Out

Whenever frostbite occurs thawing should be gradual in cool air or cold water. The practice of trying to rub snow over the frostbitten part is dangerous. Nothing warmer than the heat of the body should ever be tried, and a person who has been recently frostbitten should go near a fire or into a fully heated room until the circulation has been thoroughly restored.

Prevention of injury from cold is worth any amount of treatment. Attention to clothing is important and those who cannot avoid exposure to dangerous cold air or water should try to arrange for frequent rests under shelter.

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (To the Editor)—In your column "In The Day's News" on December 9, you say that J. Parnell Thomas was "confused, upset and demoralized" by the big money he saw in Washington. So he stole some. You also say that Thomas is a peculiarly "loathsome form of political vermin."

Why is it? When you or I or our friends are caught doing something we shouldn't do, why do we always blame somebody else for our downfall?

In the 21st chapter of St. John we read that Jesus told Peter to feed his sheep and Peter wanted to know what John was to do. Jesus said that was none of his business, or words to that effect. Adam said it was Eve's fault. (Gen. 3:12).

Consumers Frown on U.S. Egg, Potato Buying Policy

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 14—The Federal government's egg-buying program may be popular with poultry farmers—but from the consumer's point of view it gets the bird.

So does the potato-buying program.

Toward the close of the last session of congress the Senate Agriculture Committee appointed a special subcommittee to look into the government egg-price support program and report back with recommendations.

To find out what the general public thinks about the program, interviewees for the Institute sounded the views of a nationwide cross-section on this question:

"The government in Washington is now buying up large quantities of eggs to keep the market price of eggs up and insure a fair income to poultrymen. What is your opinion of this government egg price-support program?"

Here is the vote:

Approve (good idea, sometimes overdone, all right if not wasted) 25%

Disapprove (wrong, terrible, prices too high, food wasted, too costly, gov't should stop interfering, etc.) 61%

Neutral (part good, part bad) 10%

No opinion 4%

As price protection for farmers, U. S. government agencies have bought up hundreds of millions of dozens of eggs, which have been powdered and kept in storage, some in a refrigerated limestone cave in Kansas.

As of September 1 the Commodity Credit Corp. owned $90,000,000 worth of dried eggs.

The potato-buying program cost the Federal government $224,000,000 during the year 1948. The crop was unusually large and resulted in a surplus of 133,000,000 bushels. The Agriculture Department threatened to remove price support for Irish potatoes unless farmers control marketing and production more rigidly.

This year, however, the government is expected to have an easier time with its potato program because the surplus is smaller and the grower's price guarantee is lower.

Here are the views of Mr. and Mrs. Public on the potato program:

"The government in Washington is now buying up tens of millions of bushels of potatoes to keep the market price of potatoes up and insure a fair income to the growers. What is your opinion of this government potato price-support program?"

Approve 30%

Disapprove 58%

Neutral 4%

No opinion 8%

The issue of farm price subsidies is expected to be one of the major questions in the new session of congress which begins in January.

Brannan Plan

The cost of the consumer of subsidies, in the form of high prices, is one of the factors which led Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan to propose the so-called Brannan Plan. Under this plan, farm prices would be allowed to seek their own level, without any government support. The government would then make up the difference.
