Vet Confesses Slaying Of Mother, Grandmother

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—The mother and grandmother of a Harvard-schooled war veteran were found slain in their mansion off angel street today and police quoted the veteran as saying he killed them because he feared they would send him back to a mental hospital.

Strangled in their nightgowns were Mrs. Celeste Fisk McConihe, 50, and Mrs. Flora J. Capron Fisk, 81, both widows.

Seized by Connecticut police after an automobile accident and later committed temporarily to Norwich hospital, an institution for mental patients, was Warren Fisk McConihe, 27.

DEATHS

Lt. Robert Rundle of the Connecticut state police quoted the son as saying he strangled his mother and grandmother and "smashed them with a paperweight."

Rundle said McConihe was undergoing routine questioning after being arrested on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident in East Hapton, Conn., about 4 p. m. yesterday. Suddenly Rundle said, McConihe leaped upon two troopers in the Colchester barracks and tried to grab them by the throat.

He was removed to Norwich hospital and there, Rundle said, McConihe "suddenly broke down and confessed the murders."

Providence police were notified and they forced a window in the three-story mansion and found the bodies in a second floor bedroom.

Lt. Thomas J. Gorman said the McConihes were descended from a prominent family dating back to colonial times. Their palatial home was one of the oldest on the fasionable east side, a showplace on Diman place, just off angel street.

ozzi said the grandmother was garozzi said the granmother was garroted with the son's striped pajama top. The mother, he said, was garroted "with the belt from the same pajamas."

Lt. Gorman said the slayings apparently occurred "either Saturday night or Sunday morning."

He said the son was discharged from a private mental hospital last July "at his mother's request."

Highlights At KUHS

By JEAN OWENS

Although our team was tagged with defeat by Eugene Axeman, they played a hardfought game.

Favorable comments received from Eugene spectators attending Friday night's game concerning the KU band were very satisfying. Because of the fine half-time show we can't help but boast of our band. A sincere "congratulations" should be given to the director by all.

'Second Life' Man Critical

LONG BEACH, Calif., (AP)—Melvin Hewitt, 28, is going into the fifth day of his "second life" today, but he doesn't know it.

Hewitt has not regained consciousness since doctors cut into his chest and massaged his heart back to life early Thursday. He was rushed to an El Monte hospital after falling and hitting his head outside a tavern. At the time of the operation, the doctors said he had been dead 15 minutes.

Later Hewitt was removed to the veterans hospital here. His condition is critical.

Meat Controls Help Pondered

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The internal revenue bureau may be called on to help price control officials clamp down on meat companies which violate ceiling regulations.

Price Director Michael V. DiSalle said Saturday the government is exploring the possibility of disallowing, in the figuring of tax returns, any business cost deductions attributable to the payment of over-ceiling payments for live cattle.

DiSalle's agents have reported such violations by 740 meat companies.

YOUNG CHRIS

WASHINGTON, (AP)—A direct descendant of Christopher Columbus will participate in the Spanish embassy's annual observance of the discovery of America October 12. He is Lt. Christopher Columbus, 22, on active duty with the Spanish navy. He also is an honorary five-star admiral of Spain, a rank and title conferred on him as a direct descendant of the explorer.

Men's Green Suede Shoes? Sure and Red Ostrich, Too

By RICHARD KLEINER

NEW YORK, (NEA)—If you believe what you see in the men's shoe showrooms, by next spring men's feet will be wearing the gayest things this side of a hallucination. Personally, I'm inclined to think of the whole thing as a bad dream—I cannot picture myself in green suede.

It's not that the shoe designers have gone overboard. There are no open-toed mocassins or wedgie brogues—yet. But there are a few new styles that look more like Christmas tree ornaments than the usual men's shoe.

Lester Morse, director of store merchandising for a shoe chain (Thom McAn), took me on a tour through his clodhopper fairyland. He was careful to explain that the extreme in shoe fashions make up only about 20 per cent of the sales; the rest of the 80 percent prefer the old standbys to stand in.

NIFTIES

But, for that showy 20 per cent, the shoe architects have come up with some nifties. There was a black patent leather creation with laces that were tipped with tassels. There was a shoe made up of half maroon suede and half black patent leather. There were shoes with buckles, shoes with laces at the sides, shoes with no laces at all.

They were in all possible shades of brown, ranging from mustard through raw liver to sirloin steaks, well done. And blue and greens and maroons and blacks and grays, to boot.

Morse pulled out a shoe in a light shade called tawny. It had a sole stuck out at the side, coming almost to a point. It looked like a ping-pong paddle with uppers.

"This," he said, "is the spade last. Now we'll sell a few of these any place. But in the Pittsburgh area, this will be the best seller. Almost a quarter of our sales in Pittsburgh are shoes with that type of last. It's strange how sections of the country take to different styles."

He turned to another shoe, which was a reddish color like a frankfurter. That color, he explained, and colors similar sell in St. Louis. And there has to be a stitched line up the side, at the front of the heel, called a "thread-needle." Without that line, the shoe won't sell.

"In the Pacific Northwest," Morse said, taking down a shoe with a thick sole, "they like their soles big. This one is the thickest we make. Yet somebody in Tacoma or Portland will buy this, then go across the street and have a shoemaker put another sole right on top of this one."

WINDOWS

Morse held up a copper-colored shoe with a quilted effect, green welting around the side and green laces.

"Here's a funny thing," he said. "We always make what we call a 'window' shoe—you know, something to stick in the window and attract attention. This was a 'window' shoe, but people bought it. We had to make more. You never know."

There's a trend now, he said, toward print leathers. That's plain leather made to look fancy. It can be a simple grain effect, or vicious looking lizard or alligator or ostrich. He pulled out a blue lizard, a brown alligator and a red ostrich, then some in combination with suede and plain leather.

"Men are funny," Morse said, fondling the red ostrich shoe. "You can't make them go from one color to a much different shade. You can only nudge them one shade at a time."

Unfortunate Child Gets New Chance

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP) — Little Mike Cahill, orphaned son of a socialite turned B-girl and a jobless bellhop, flew eastward Saturday toward a new and rosy future —with a new name and to a home appropriate for a scion of two presidents.

The curly headed, blue-eyed 2-year-old, whose mother was knifed to death a week ago, left San Francisco last night with his grandmother, socially - prominent Mrs. Dorothea Willard Hooker of Newport, R.I.

Mrs. Hooker is taking him to his grand aunt, Mrs. James C. White, also of Newport. Mrs. White, who is Mrs. Hooker's sister, was granted custody of the child by a juvenile court here yesterday.

REQUEST

That fulfilled a request of the mother, Dorothea, 28, who was slashed to death last week by her common-law husband, Thomas Cahill, 30. She had written a note asking that if anything happened to her the baby was to go to Mrs. White. She also wrote that Michael was to be kept from her mother, Mrs. Hooker, "at all costs."

Mrs. Hooker, widow of a marine corps colonel and descendant of two president—the Adamses—said she hopes Michael will never learn of his mother's metamorphosis from a cultured socialite to a tavern B-girl.

He's even to have a new name—Joseph Henry Willard.

A telegram from Rhode Island officials said Mrs. White was well able to give the child adequate care.

Mrs. Hooker said her sister, wife of an army colonel now in Japan, will give Michael the best of everything. "But we won't spoil him. I always spoiled all of my children. I gave them everything they wanted. I guess I spoiled Dodo."

DEATH

Dodo is the dead woman. Cahill told police he slashed her to death with a butcher knife when she threatened to leave him for a second time. He was charged with murder and sent to a psychopathic ward for observation. A suicide guard was put over him because of his repeated plea that he be sent to the gas chamber.

Mrs. Hooker departed without seeing him. She said she will leave his judgment "to a God of vengeance and the state."

U.S. Diabetes Survey Slated

NEW YORK, (AP)—The American diabetes association plans to test 5,000,000 (M) persons for diabets throughout the nation during the week of November 11-17.

The association, a non-profit group, said the cost of the program will be met by the 1500 members of the association and by voluntary contributions.

An estimated 1,000,000 Americans are believed to have the disease without knowing it.

LOYALTY FUNDS

WASHINGTON, (AP) — The civil service commission has told congress that 500,000 government employes will be at work without loyalty checks unless the commission gets an additional $1,700,000 in operating funds. The appeal for the funds was included in a house appropriations subcommittee report released Sunday.
