Noonan-Taylor Nuptials

MERRILL—A 10 o'clock nuptial mass on Saturday September 29, at St. Augustine's Church, united in marriage Joan Marie Noonan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Noonan, and Fred Raymond Taylor, son of Mrs. E. M. Hill of Biggs, California. Reverend John Fehlan read the single ring service, and the bride was escorted to the altar by her father.

Preceding the ceremony Tom Williams sang "Pans Angelicus" and during the service sang "Ave Maria," accompanied by Mrs. Ellis Wilson, who also played the traditional wedding march.

The bride's gown was of white satin with a Peter-pan collar and trimmed in French imported lace, the skirt ending in a covert train. Her veil was held in place with a cap of seed pearls. She carried a white orchid with satin streamers placed on a white Bible. The bride's something old and borrowed were her earrings and pearls, loaned her on the occasion by Mrs. Clyde Fox. Her something new was her gown. "Blue" was her garter, and she had an Irish penny in her shoe, a gift of Katherine Ahern.

Maid of honor, Eileen Noonan, sister of Joan, wore pastel lavender satin with an overdress of cerise French imported lace, and matching blue satin. A bouquet of pink roses and baby chrysanthemums with matching streamers completed the ensemble.

Bridesmaids were Patsy and Peggy Noonan, younger sisters of the bride. They wore pastel yellow and green respectively with matching halos, identical in style to that of the maid of honor. Their bouquets were rosebuds and baby chrysanthemums with matching streamers.

William Noonan, brother of the bride, was best man, and ushers were William Gasser and Tom Lacey.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Noonan chose a rose crepe dress with brown accessories and wore a corsage of white rosebuds. Mrs. Hill, mother of the groom, wore black with aqua accessories and also had a white rosebud corsage.

A reception in the Merrill recreation hall followed the ceremony. Mrs. Dale Walker passed the guest book. Mrs. Dan Barry and Lilly Loper were at the punch bowl. Mrs. Jerry Ahern and Mrs. John O'Neil poured, and the cake was served by Mrs. Clyde Fox and Mrs. Mervyn Takacs, sister of the groom.

For her going-away costume the new Mrs. Taylor chose a two-tone grey suit with black accessories, and her bridal orchid pinned at the shoulder.

Following a honeymoon trip to various points on the California and Oregon coast, the young couple will be at home in Merrill.

Out of town guests present at the wedding were Mrs. Frances Campbell and Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor and Kelley of Moses Lake, Washington; Tom Sullivan, Jim Griffin, Father James O'Connor, and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Guiney and Bridie, all of Lakeview.
