School Plans Reunion Night

MERRILL—Former students of Merrill schools have been invited to attend a reunion Friday night, November 16, in the grade school gym. Due to the fact that school lists are incomplete some former students may not have received a card, but they are urged to be present.

Mrs. Frank Hauser of Portland the former Carolina Vaerette, will be one of the old-timers attending. She was a popular grade school teacher and principal here in the 1920s and early 30s.

Also expected are a number of students who attended the Gale school, now the Robert Petrick residence, and the school which stood where the recreation hall and park is now located.

A lively program is being planned by townspeople, cartoon movies will be shown the youngsters during the visiting hour, and a prize will be presented the oldest student of Gale school attending. Refreshments will be served by Merrill Parents-Patrons.

A small charge of 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children will be made, with the proceeds going into a fund to purchase band instruments for students. Mrs. Dale West is chairman of the re-union, assisted by Parents-Patrons officers and members.

Rail Joining Party Slated

Two of the nation's great railroads—the Great Northern and Western Pacific—celebrate the 20th anniversary of their joining tracks at Beiber this weekend, and Klamath Falls will start off the celebration with a 9 a.m. breakfast at the Willard.

Later at Beiber Great Northern and Western Pacific officials will stand by as a reenactment of the original "driving of the golden spike" which symbolized the joining of the two great railroads on November 10, 1931.

Presidents of both lines—John T. Budd of Great Northern and F. B. Whitman of Western Pacific—will be on hand for the affair, and both will speak briefly at the Willard breakfast.

Two special trains will meet in Klamath Falls, the G.N. from the north and the W.P. from the south, carrying such celebrities as Lucius Beebe in his private rail car, "Gold Coast."

Oregon Technical Institute's pretty Homecoming queen, 22-year-old Jessie Lee Long, will be a guest at the Willard breakfast with her court of four princesses, and will later go to Beiber to participate in the ceremonies there as guests of the two railroads.

Dick Maguire will act as master of ceremonies at the breakfast here, and the city of Klamath Falls will be represented by Mayor Bob Thompson.

Skull Said That Of Old Klamath

PORTLAND—The skull found by Portland housewife in the attic of her home probably is that of a Klamath Indian woman who died 6000 years ago.

That was the report of police yesterday. They got the information from William S. Laughlin, assistant anthropology professor at the University of Oregon, where they had sent the skull.

Mrs. Viola Mangum found the skull when her family moved into the home some time ago.

Newsman Plan New Circuit

PORTLAND—Transmission of news by teletypewriter circuit will be discussed here Friday at the annual meeting of the Northwest members of the Associated Press.

Publishers from Oregon, Washington and Idaho will attend the one-day meeting at the Multnomah hotel.

A. M. Glassberg, managing editor of the Everett, Wash. Herald, will lead a panel discussion on teletypewriter transmission—a system of transmitting news which will be put into effect in Oregon and Washington early next year.

Other members of the panel: Charles V. Stanton, editor, Roseburg, News-Review; Roland Miller, executive editor of the Walla Walla, Union-Bulletin; Bill Jenkins, managing editor of the Klamath Falls Herald and News.

Federal Mediator Cyrus Ching will speak at 4 annual banquet in the evening. His topic is the labor and a wage situation. Other speakers: Robert J. Cavagnaro, of San Francisco, an Associated Press general executive, and Raymond L. Spangler, publisher of the Redwood City Tribune, an Associated Press director.

Robert C. Nelson, managing editor of the Portland Oregonian is chairman of the Oregon members' association. He will preside. W. H. Cowles publisher of the Spokane Spokesman-Review and Spokane Daily Chronicle, is Washington chairman.

Mother Kills Own Infant

CHICAGO—A 24-year-old mother was charged with murder yesterday after she told a coroner's jury she strangled her baby daughter because she wanted a divorce.

Mrs. Donna Mae Phillips testified at the inquest into the death of 15-month-old Betty Mae Phillips she had repeatedly asked her husband Elmer, for a divorce and that he had refused her.

"Did you think that by killing your baby you would get your freedom?" Deputy Coroner George Mrazek asked the mother.

Mrs. Phillips identified an unsigned note left in her apartment as having been written by her to her husband. It was read to the jury:
