

Survey Shows Chicks Follow Inflation -- Up

Wheat Salvage Big Question

EDMONTON, (AP) — More than $450,000,000 worth of wheat, oats and barley is estimated to be lying under snow in Alberta and Saskatchewan, waiting until spring to be harvested.

Most of it eventually will be salvaged, but its value after a winter in the open is a question mark. For a second straight year a late growing season and early winter have combined with marketing and transportation problems to frustrate the farmer's hopes for a bulging crop of top-quality grain, safely harvested and sold before winter.

And the farmers are without the cash they customarily receive in the fall when they delivered their grain to the elevators. Those with threshed grain are unable to get rid of it because most elevators are closed.

Farm organizations are clamoring for financial advances from the federal government to see the farmers through the winter. Business men are worried, too, because the entire western economy is slowed when the farmer's purchasing power drops. Alberta, particularly its southern areas, has been hit hardest.

Liskey Edged In Title Try

Dan Liskey, Klamath county's "Cattleman of the Year," came out second best in four-way competition at Burns during selection trials for the cattleman to represent southeastern Oregon in state "Cattleman of the Year" competition.

Don Hotchkiss, Burns, has been awarded the district title. He represented Harney county, and edged out Liskey in a close ballot, Klamath Cattleman association Pres. Gerald West reported.

Expect to pay more for your baby chicks next year.

How much more will depend somewhat on the type of chicks you buy but, overall, it looks like a five percent price hike. That's what hatcherymen in the state have indicated to an Oregon State college extension poultry specialist.

Noel Bension surveys hatcherymen each fall asking what their "intentions" are for the approaching hatching season. Here's what he found out this time:

There will be about 15 million chicks hatched in the state this year. That's a 25 percent increase as compared with the 1950 hatching season. Fourteen percent more chicks will be hatched next year, the survey shows. Much of the increase, however, will not show up in added egg production. Increased chick numbers will go into the rapidly expanding broiler industry, and the birds will be slaughtered at 10 weeks of age or so.

Asking prices for day-old chicks look like this for next year, the survey shows: straight run Leghorn chicks—up a cent to 19 cents apiece; Leghorn pullet chicks—up a penny to 37 cents apiece. Even the lowly Leghorn cockerel will command more money in '52. Expect to pay 4 cents apiece rather than the 3 cents asked this season.

Straight run heavy chicks will sell for about 19 cents apiece—up a penny—and heavy pullet chicks will sell for 32 cents as compared with 31 this year. Heavy cockerel chicks will go to 16 cents apiece as compared with a going price of about 15 cents this year.

Price for hatching eggs per dozen is expected to be about 88 cents representing a 22 to 24 cent a dozen premium above market price for grade A large eggs.

Cold storage eggs, an OSC review report says, are being stored in greater quantity this year than last.

Rainmaking Topic For OWGL Meet

Results of rainmaking experiments reported by an Oregon State college agricultural experiment station meteorologist, R. T. Beaumont, at the 24th annual meeting of the Oregon Wheat Growers' league in Pendleton December 6, 7 and 8.

This announcement is from Don McKinnis, Summerville, wheat league president, who said a special report for growers is being prepared. Plans call for meetings of league standing committees Thursday, December 6, followed by general business sessions Friday and Saturday.

Announcement of the winner of the "Conservation Man of the Year" award, sponsored by the Oregonian Publishing company, will be made Saturday, December 8.

Jack Smith, Mayville, heads the league committee whose duty it is to select the Columbia basin wheat farmer doing the best job of conservation farming.

Standing committees and their chairmen who will meet the opening day of the three-day meeting are: federal agriculture programs, Morris Wilson, Mayville; taxation and legislation, Frank Tubbs, Adams; wheat disposal and transportation, Ralph McEwen, Adams; youth activities, Raphael Raymond, Helix; and production and land use, Kenneth Smouse, Lexington.

Elmer McClure, master of the Oregon state grange, is among the speakers. He has chosen "Is Agriculture Losing the Battle of Public Opinion," as his topic.

Richard Baum, league secretary, has circulated league members informing them of the necessity of making reservations for accommodation in Pendleton. Harold Holman, Pendleton, is chairman of this committee.

'Proof of the Potato Pudding'

(Editor's Note: The following editorial is reprinted from the October 26 Produce news, a weekly farm produce paper published in New York.)

Seldom in this world do we have so clear-cut a vindication of a viewpoint as we are witnessing today in the potato situation.

This is the first late potato deal in almost a decade that is operating without government support and without government control. The overwhelming power and stultifying benevolence of government have been removed from the potato growing and distributing industry and, marvelous to relate,

Ore. Farm Bureau Meeting Nov. 26

PORTLAND, (AP) — The 20th annual Oregon farm bureau federation convention will be held in Salem November 26-30.

Marshall Swearingen, president, announced the convention date yesterday. He said Allen B. Kline, president of the American farm bureau federation, would be principal speaker.

Some 5496 Oregon farm families in 28 counties are enrolled in the state farm bureau, Swearingen reported.

season's potato deal. With support and control out of the way, potato growers modified their acreage and produced better potatoes. That's what Fred urged them for

The break from government meddling is clean and decisive. The potato industry is now on its own—and my, how firmly and solidly it stands. Supply and demand, not subsidy and control, are in charge and proving once again their sovereign power of economic law.

A sick potato deal under government control has been transformed overnight into a strong, healthy business.

Who in this land has more right to say it, if he wanted to say "I told you so" than Fred Vahlsing, the potato man who throughout the years led the fight against government interference in the potato deal. Others, of course, fought the good fight too, but none was more sincere, nor more effective, nor more relentless than that rugged individual who through the years lifted his voice with an eloquence that matched his sincerity so that all who heard him said: that man must be right; let's see if he is.

Could anyone be more proven right than Fred has been by this
