Winter Heads Shrine Club

Insurance man Paul Winter is the new president of the Klamath Falls Shrine club. He succeeds Scott Warren.

Other officers elected Wednesday: Mark Smith, vice president; Willard Ward, Elmer Balsiger, Floyd Boyd and Scott Warren, directors.

It was announced that during this year the Klamath Falls club has contributed more money to the Shrine Crippled Children's hospital than any other Shrine club in Oregon.

The Klamath Shriners have also sent a great deal of potatoes and beef to the hospital.

COLLECTOR'S ITEM

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—The internal revenue bureau here now has 11 applications for the new federal gambling stamps—but one of them came from a stamp collector. The Philatelist wrote collector George T. McGowan: "I am no gambler and I would like this stamp for philatelic purposes. . . . I would gamble that this stamp will be prize collector's item some day.

The sun's brightness in candlepower is about four billion billion billion. (If you'd like to write that out, put down the figure four followed by 27 zeros.)

Two Schools of Thought On Hollywood's Erring Stars

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—What is Hollywood doing about its misbehaving celebrities?

You often hear people declare, "Oh, the studios like to have their stars get in scandals; they think any publicity is good publicity."

I have found no evidence to support this belief. The men who run the studios are responsible citizens. They know that business built on scandal is shaky indeed. None of them argues that Hollywood scandals have a good effect on the box office. But there are two schools of thought on the effect.

1. One segment of the industry is gravely worried about film scandals. The arguments: The U. S. is Puritanical by tradition and censures offenders of public morals. More people go to church (81,000,000 members) than go to the movies (78,000,000 estimated weekly).

Those who argue these points add that the four top money-making movies — "Gone With the Wind," "Best Years of Our Lives," "Bells of St. Mary's," "Going My Way"—are all moral tales. They also cite the top boxoffice stars—John Wayne, Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, Betty Grable, James Stewart, Abbott and Costello, Clifton Webb, Esther Williams, Spencer Tracy, Randolph Scott.

None of them has been involved in a big scandal; they are respected and responsible citizens.

2. Others argue that although a star is not helped by a scandal, he is not hurt, either. They claim that the American public is easy to forgive and forget the misdeeds of their favorites. They say that responsible people may be offended by a star's behavior, but the responsible public is not necessarily the movie public.

They point out that the careers of Errol Flynn, Robert Mitchum, Robert Walker and Ava Gardner did not appear to suffer because of their headlined doings. Rita Hayworth's return to the screen remains a question mark, but observers agree if the pucture is good, it should make money. Likewise, a top producer told me if Ingrid Bergman had a good picture, a forgetful public would flock to it.

Charlie Chaplin's last film did poorly, but largely because of its muddled message and the lack of the old Chaplin character. And whatever censure was applied came because of Chaplin's political views, not his trials on Mann act and paternity charges.

Even if stars have escaped unscathed from scandals, this doesn't mean that Hollywood is doing nothing about preventing future headlines. It lacks the formal machinery, since the producers' association can only control film content, not individual morals.

But a great deal of pressure is applied on potential wrongdoers by studios, agents and friends. Many juicy stories do not happen, or at least don't get in the papers, because of quick action by responsible persons.

Minor personalities who become troublemakers soon find themselves dropped from their contracts and unable to find jobs at any of the studios. They are passed up as bad risks.

The studios have also begun indoctrinating their young players on how to stay out of trouble. Paramount has coached the hopefuls of its golden circle along these lines, and Dore Schary does the same with MGM newcomers.

Hollywood has discovered that its responsible stars may be duller, but they're a lot less trouble.

Methods Of Life-Saving See Change

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new method of artificial respiration is due to get widespread use soon in the United States.

It is the "push-pull" system, already well known in Europe and said to get about twice as much air into and out of the lungs as does the Schafer "prone pressure" method now in standard use in the United States.

The "push-pull" system is officially known as the Holger Neilson method. It has been recommended by the national research council. The defense department says it will soon be taught to the armed services. The U.S. public health service, bureau of mines, boy and girl scouts and YMCA's are among other agencies that will use it as soon as sufficient instructors are available.

In the "push-pull" system, the needing resuscitation lying face down with his head between the operator's knees. The victim's arm are folded, with the hands under the face.

The operator presses on the victim's ribs evacuating the lungs. Then he lifts and pulls the victim's folded arms upward and toward the operator, who sways backward, grasping the victim's arms the chest, drawing air in, and completes a resuscitation cycle the operator tries to get through once every five seconds.

Taft Confident Of Win Over General

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Robert A. Taft feels he can beat Dwight D. Eisenhower if the general makes a bid for the presidential nomination.

He said so last night when reporters interviewed him after his arrival in St. Louis for three speeches today.

"Do you think you can beat General Eisenhower if he runs?" Taft was asked.

"Oh yes, I was very confident of that from the beginning," he replied with a shrug.

The Ohio Republican thinks he can also win over Gov. Earl Warren of California who like Taft announced his candicacy for the GOP nomination.

WINNER—and still champ is Lynn Roycroft who recently took top honors in a company wide selling contest. Roycroft did a total business of $299,000 over an eight-week period to win the honor in the Standard Insurance company contest. Average sale, said Roycroft, was $12,000. During the time of the contest Roycroft was also head of the community chest drive. His win put him at the head of the list by a wide margin.

Warner Ski Area Opens On Saturday

LAKEVIEW—Snows of the past several days have raised the flag for opening of the Warner ski area Saturday and Sunday.

The present schedule calls for running the improved ski lift on weekends and Thursday afternoons, says Don Peters, with the probability that the program will be expanded later.

The Fremont Highlanders Ski club met December 3 at the Lake county chamber of commerce office and reelected last year's officers to a new term: Clair Smith, president; A. L. Thornton Jr., vice-president; Leon Hapke, secretary-treasurer. Peters was put in charge of information.

Smith said that the Warner ski area, located on the Warner road at an elevation about 1000 feet higher than Lakeview, is fast coming to notice over a wide area as a ski slope with large possibilities. To gain greater use and enjoyment of the area, a concerted program of improvement has been under way there.

This year, the engine has been moved to the top of the lift for more power; the tow has been extended so that now it is about 1200 feet; power has been connected in the lodge, a sun porch has been built on; and floodlights have been installed on the hill for night skiing.

Other improvements the past two years: additional areas have been cleared of trees and brush, opening five new ski runs; a snack bar has been built in the lodge; tractor work has been done to improve the runs.

White Pine Adds Glue-Up

LAKEVIEW — The new glue-up plant at White Pine Lumber Co. here is now in operation, utilizing box factory waste and creating new payrolls from lumber produced in this region. S. S. Jacksick, general manager of the White Pine operations at Lakeview, Alturas and Reno, announced that operation here began November 26. Tests had been made the week before.

Material used in the glue-up process is blocks from the White Pine box factory, blocks which formerly were burned or sold as fuel. The process converts them into housing wall and floor sections, and many other building items can be made from them.

Track Profit Now In Bank

DETROIT (AP)—A little boy who won more than $2000 betting on horses is to have his winnings converted to more stable assets—defense bonds.

Probate Judge William J. Cody ordered that disposition of the $2805 that 11-year-old Duane Hunter won at the Detroit race track with his father.

The judge's ruling followed a hearing yesterday on a petition from the boy's mother, Mrs. Mona Belle Hunter, that she be named guardian of the money. She also asked that her former husband, Clayton B. Hunter be denied access to the winnings. Duane lives with his mother.

In the course of testimony, dark-haired Duane gave some sage advise on his system. He told the judge:

"On days you lose you don't bet much."

So, Duane added, while he didn't always win, he never lost much.

His father, with whom the boy gained entry to the track last summer, said Duane didn't personally choose the winners.

"I'm friendly with some trainers and jockeys and they used to give me tips," said Hunter, who is an advertising artist.

"I furnished the money and decided the bets we would make. He brought me good luck and we won."

The winnings, Hunter said, were deposited in a joint bank account toward Duane's education.

Farmers today are producing more vegetable and animal fats than can be consumed domestically.

Functions Needlessly Sacraficed

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The child bearing ability and glandular balance of many American women are being sacrificed needlessly by the unwarranted removal of normal ovaries, says a Beverly Hills, Calif., surgeon.

Fear of cancer or a desire to avoid pregnancy are responsible for some of these operations, Dr. James Doyle told the American Medical Assoc.

Dr. Doyle studied the record of operations on 546 women in the Los Angeles area during 1948. In each case one or both ovaries were removed even though they were normal or nearly normal. In some instances the womb also was removed.

Removal of normal ovaries is justified, Dr. Doyle said, if there are medical indications that serious disease might develop if they were not taken out.

But in many of the cases, he added, operations were performed when the symptoms indicated only minor or temporary ailments. In a few instances ovaries were removed when there were no symptoms of illness. Some of these few might have been justifiable, he said.

However, more than one-third of the diagnoses which preceded the operations gave "nebulous" reasons for ovarian removal, Dr. Doyle asserted.

In some instances the diagnoses which might have warranted removal were found to be in error after the operations had been performed.

Removal of both ovaries not only stops child bearing but also affects the system generally because these parts of the reproductive system produce hormones needed for glandular balance and well being.

Public Grass Lands Sales Are Proposed

PORTLAND (AP)—Sale of federal lands useful only for grazing was proposed today by a "public interest" speaker at the National Wool Growers Assoc. convention here.

The speaker was Elroy Nelson, business and research director at the University of Utah, who joined with federal and industry speakers in talking about how to handle federal lands and their multiple uses.

Nelson, pointing out that the federal government owns more than half the land in the 11 Western states, suggested a five point program which he said was intended to achieve production on a stable basis. The first thing, he said, would be to set up the principle that sheepmen and cattlemen deserve considerate treatment and reasonable freedom from interference.

Once that is done, he said, rules could be set up to make sure the principle is put into effect. Since much of the Western lands are suitable only for grazing, he suggested either sales or longterm leases to encourage construction of permanent sheds and watering facilities, improved re-seeding and a strengthened tax base.

But, said Nelson in his final point, the most important use of much Western land is development of its mineral resources. This, he said, should be done under the present basic mining act. There should be no new federal mining laws, he said, but he proposed that the moratoriums on development work be discounted and miners be forced to develop their properties to hold them.

The present White Pine operation provides full employment for five men and additional man-hours for other employes at the plant. Now in manufacture from the waste blocks are wall and floor sections eight feet long by four inches thick. Some are 12 inches wide and others are 24 inches wide. The finishing process reduces these dimensions to seven feet, nine inches long by three and one-quarter inches thick.

This glue-up plant is the first waste-using plant to go into operation here as a result of the federal timber unit which was established last spring after three years of effort by the industrial committee of the Lake county chamber of commerce. The unit insures that materials from trees grown within the unit will remain here through primary sawmilling and a degree of remanufacturing, thus assuring a supply of lumber materials to encourage financial investment in just such operations as the White Pine glue-up plant.

THE TRUE STORY OF DIAMOND VALUE
Judging the true value of a diamond is an exacting science understood only by specialists with extensive training and special equipment.
The elements of cut, color and clarity in diamonds vary to such an extent that error in judgment by the average person could easily happen.
The wise buyer will choose his diamond by first choosing a reliable jeweler to guide him. You might never learn of your diamond's shortcomings and be perfectly satisfied, but it is nicer to know exactly what you buy.
Can You See the Difference?
EACH SERIES OF DIAMONDS ARE THE SAME SIZE EACH THE UTMOST IN VALUE AS PRICED
The Difference is in their Quality
