Convicts Wax Limey Team

NORFOLK, Mass., 16—Two inmates of the Massachusetts state penal colony—one of whom has only a grammar school education—today boasted a victory over a debating team from England's Oxford university.

"Bill" and "Murt"—prison officials decline to reveal their names—were adjudged winners of a debate last night by three judges, former Gov. William B.

Flynn of Rhode Island, Dean Erwin H. Griswold of the Harvard law school and Massachusetts Supreme Court Judge Harold P. Williams.

The debate was on the question of free national health service. The Englishmen took the affirmative and the inmates the negative.

Some 400 inmates listened attentively in the prison auditorium as "Bill" and "Murt", dressed in their best clothes, jostled words with Richard Taverner and William Rees-Mogg, the English pair.

Polite applause greeted telling points scored by either team.

When the debate was over the inmates presented the Oxford pair with cigaret lighters, prison-made wallets and wood carvings.

"Murt," who is "around 40," went only as far as grammar school but he has educated himself since entering prison about 10 years ago. "Bill," who is "in his thirties," is a high school graduate and also attended law school before running afoul of the
