Oregon, Idaho Spudmen Urge Ceiling Hold Off

PRINEVILLE, Ore. (AP)—Potato grower organizations of Oregon and Idaho, faced with a possibility of price ceilings early in the new year, are urging Price Administrator Mike DiSalle to hold off.

That was reported Monday by Ben Davidson, Oregon Potato Commission administrator, after getting word Saturday that the ceilings were imminent.

Davidson said that a telegram from Whitney Tharlin, executive secretary of the National Potato Council, said that because the national potato price on Dec. 15 averaged $1.33 a bushel, and the national price was $1.83, an OPS ceiling price order had been prepared. He said he thought it would go into effect within 10 days.

Davidson said he had no information on the rollback to be sought if the order were issued, but he said what effect telegrams and letters to DiSalle from groups and growers might have. He said he thought it possible DiSalle might listen to some of the protests.

A number of them, he said, told DiSalle potato ceilings would be a poor move politically as well as economically.

County Jail Roster Light Wednesday

With sending of two more prisoners to the Oregon State Prison at Salem this morning, the County Jail inmate roster was reduced to six persons.

Dale Douglas Fenning, 21, and Kenneth Mack Anderson, 26, were taken to Salem early this morning by Deputy Sheriff Murray Britton.

Fenning is to serve three years for forgery on revocation of probation given him last July.

Anderson got two years on pleading guilty to theft of potatoes from a Great Northern railroad car at Adams Point in the latter part of November.

Besse Heads "X" Post

OSCAR STATE COLLEGE — Ralph S. Besse, associate director of the Oregon State college agricultural experiment station, was recently re-elected to his third four-year term as representative of the 11 western states on the national experiment station organization and policy committee.

This committee reviews all policies and organization of the entire experiment station setup in the 48 states and their relations with the federal office of experiment stations.

The OSC director has served two terms as chairman of directors for the 11 western states.

Operation Cocktail Proves Helpful

SARANAC LAKE, N.Y. (AP)—Police Chief William Wallace's report on "operation cocktail": Five merry-makers escorted home, no accidents.

The New Year's Eve mission marked the third year police in this Adirondack Mountain village had offered—and had given—free rides to revelers who felt they couldn't find their way home unaided.

Battle Casualties Listed In Report

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department Wednesday identified 81 more battle casualties in Korea. A new list reported 17 dead, 40 wounded, six missing in action, one prisoner of war and eight injured.

It also listed 14 killed who were previously reported missing.

New Ag Man Takes Over At Eugene

SALEM (AP)—Gordon V. Schwalen, is the new State Department of Agriculture fieldman at Eugene.

He succeeds O. F. Anderson who retired Monday.

Also reported here Monday were three other retirements in the state shipping point inspection service. They are A. F. Lathrop, Central Point; D. C. Goddard, Talent; and J. R. Wilcox, Hood River.

Millions Spent On Western Roads

PORTLAND (AP)—The U.S. Bureau of Public Roads spent 33 million dollars for highways in four Pacific Northwest States during 1951, officials here reported at year's end.

An additional 25 million was handled by the agency as matching money from the states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana.

Major Oregon construction job was the new highway into the John Day River Valley.

Man Surrenders, Starts Out Fresh

PORTLAND (AP)—A man walked into police headquarters Tuesday and told officers he was wanted in two states.

Charles Henry Meier, 22, said he was wanted in Valley City, N. D., for deserting his wife and three children, and in Conrad, Mont., for check forgery. He said he surrendered because he wanted to get a fresh start this new year.

Logs Remain At Ceiling Price

CORVALLIS (AP)—Graded Douglas sawlogs remained steady at ceiling prices in the last half of December at Willamette Valley mills, the State Farm Forest Products Market Report said Wednesday.

Bureau Raises Threat to Refuges In Tulana Lease, Letter Charges

SACRAMENTO (AP)—A major threat to waterfowl conservation in the Pacific Flyway has been raised by the Bureau of Reclamation, it was disclosed this week in a letter from Seth Gordon, director of the California Department of Fish and Game, to Interior Secretary Oscar L. Chapman.

In a nutshell, the Reclamation Bureau proposes to wreck the great Tulana Lake and Lower Klamath Waterfowl Refuges in Northern California, nullifying the millions of dollars which have been spent to preserve the duck population in its wintering grounds and to prevent crop depletions.

Gordon's letter of protest was written after an article appearing in the weekly Tulana Reporter had quoted the Reclamation Bureau directive from Undersecretary of Interior Seale.

The item announces that Seale proposed to hold a hearing in Washington this month on whether or not to renew for two years the lease of Tulana Farms on 2,314 acres of farm land included in the Tulana Lake Refuge.

Then the article quoted the following directive from Reclamation: "The Bureau of Reclamation should pursue energetically established objectives of subdividing withdrawn public lands into units suitable for homestead entry under reclamation law. The ensuing two years of this lease extension should be utilized for appropriate measures including additional construction as needed for protection from inundation of the maximum acreage of sump lands so that they will be suitable for homesteading."

That policy, carried out, would mean the removal of approximately one-third of the 30,000 acre Lake Refuge, the elimination of the Tulana Lake public hunting area and the wiping out of the entire area on which the hundreds of thousands of geese which use the refuge feed and rest.

Actually the lease extension is an incidental matter, but in the words of one official, when the policy handed down by Seale is carried out, "the value of Tulana is shot to hell."

Gordon's letter refers only to the Tulana situation, but a very similar situation faces the companion Lower Klamath Refuge, where the Fish and Wildlife Service is now engaged in a $600,000 development program because present facilities are inadequate.

The millions of waterfowl that use Lower Klamath each year depend for most of their feed on a 4,000-acre area known as Klamath Straits, lying just inside Oregon line of the north boundary of the refuge. The Reclamation Bureau has been trying for years to pry that loose so it can be subdivided and put into row crop tracts.

When this is done, the value of Lower Klamath will be destroyed just as much as will Tulana Lake under the proposals to cut out its heart, for when the feeding area is destroyed water alone will not keep ducks in a refuge.

In order to understand the full significance of these proposals, it is necessary to understand that the key to the entire program of waterfowl refuges in the State of California is the feeding of waterfowl provision of hunting area and prevention of crop depredation lies in the great fish and wildlife refuges in Siskiyou County. If they are destroyed most of the value of the six million dollars worth of work done by California

Outsider Is 1st Prisoner

An outsider gained the dubious honor this year of being the first prisoner booked on the County Jail roster on New Year's Day.

Albert Allen, enroute from California to Orofino, Ida., was booked at 5:30 p.m. yesterday.

Last prisoner written on the docket for 1951 was Richard Harvey, 33, Chiloquin, sentenced to 30 days on conviction of being drunk in a public place by the Wood River Justice Court at Chiloquin.

Harvey was prisoner No. 691 for 1951. First person to be booked in 1951 was Edith Tupper of Chiloquin on a charge of drunk driving.

At the City Jail, 2877 persons were booked during 1951. Of that number 1601 were arrested on drunk charges.

Rotary Plans Water Forum

The first of a series of talks on the development of water resources in the Klamath Basin has been scheduled as the program for this Friday at the Klamath Rotary club, it was announced by Mike Balsiger, program chairman.

Frank Jenkins, Herald and News publisher, will open the series with a talk, "The Place of Water in the Development of the Klamath Basin." Laron Stephens, of the reclamation bureau, will speak on the same program on water development.

On the following Fridays, Jan. 11 and 18, Rotary will hear John Boyle of Copco give the utility's viewpoint and Fred Ruck of Klamath farmers, give the farmers' side of the question.

Now, let it be hoped that the miscreants observed the sad condition of the stolen turkeys and did not have them for Christmas dinner; however, in the event that they noticed nothing amiss and cooked and ate the birds, the Copelandians hope that the after-effects were not too drastic, but they do admit that they hope that the thieves experienced at least some discomfort as a result of eating the sick turkeys; for while it is true that the owners suffered no loss on account of the Christmas Eve depredation, this doesn't alter the fact that the sneak thieves in intentions were strictly dishonorable, they had no way of knowing that the turkeys they took were sick and being kept only in the hope that their malady could be cured.

Let it be hoped that this will be a lesson to this person or persons, whichever the case may be, and if there were any ill effects, it is just retribution for committing such an act on the Holy Eve of the Savior's birthday.

The saying of "Crime doesn't pay" may be true indeed, but surely fits this case and the crime of stealing the turkeys may have even boomeranged if they were the main course of someone's Christmas dinner hereabouts.

Grants Pass Has Good Road Record

GRANTS PASS (AP)—Nobody in this area got hurt in highway accidents over the long New Year's week-end, and police made no drunken-driving arrests. The only unusual mishap occurred early Tuesday when a car driven by John L. Mudd of Los Angeles skidded from the highway north of here and hit the wreckage of a car which has skidded at the same spot four hours before. The first driver was Tom Lyons of Astoria.

Grant County Names Sheriff

CANYON CITY (AP)—Robert Damon of Mount Vernon, Ore., is the new sheriff of Grant County.

He was named to succeed Oliver Calhoun, resigned. Calhoun said he was unable to support his family on the job's salary.

The salary, $3,000, is listed in the Oregon Blue Book as tied with that of Wallawa County as lowest in the state. Ten others are under $4,000.

Air Spray Class To Be Opened

SALEM (AP)—Courses will be given at Oregon State College Jan. 28-30 for persons who plan to spray crops from the air, the State Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

State examinations for those who plan to spray or dust crops either from the air or the ground will be given in the closing session of the course.

The new state law requires that they be licensed.

The nomadic Miwoc Indians of Nova Scotia favored portable wigwams of birch bark that could be folded and packed into canoes.
