Washington: "Congress reconvened today for be studded with controversy over lasties ON WHICH POLITICAL FORTUNES WILL RIDE in next November's voting."

One of the handicaps of our system, it acems to me, is that EVERY OTHER-YEAR-there is an election on which political fortunes ride, and so the members of our congress are kept so busy figuring out how to be re-elected that they have too little time left for constructive, statesmanlike legislation.

There is the issue of governmen-tal economy, for example. Every clear thinker knows it is one of the ciear thinker knows it is one of the gravest problems confronting us. Yet Washington dispatches by well informed writers during the past week or so have been reflecting the belief that at the session of congress that is just beginning there will be a lot of talk about economy, but nothing much will be DONE ABOUT IT.

Why?

I think the answer is that congressmen and senators who are coming up for re-election this year still think the best way to win re-election is to go on spending freely, even if that means going on spending beyond our income.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if we could have a congress made up of men who have searched their souls and after the search have said flatly:

"Who am I? What are my PER-SONAL fortunes and my PER-SONAL fortunes and my PER-SON

SONAL fortunes and my PERSON-AL weil-being when compared with the welfare of my country?

"So—
"As long as I remain in office—"I shall disregard my PERSON-AL interests and within the limits of the ability that has been given to me I will yote invariably for what my conscience and my judgement tell me is for the best interests of my country."

I'm airaid we modern Yule, are posing sight of the SUPREME. In-PORTANCE of congress. The Founding Fathers were under no decisions as to its importance. Within the limits of the constitution as interpreted by the suppense court they gave to the congress immense power to shape the destines of our country.

Among other things, they appointed congress as the KEEPER OF THE PURSE. By wise use of its power as keeper of the purse congress can exercise complete.

total losses would amount to well over the $2,000,000 mark. However, an undetermined number of the remaining polatoes have already been sold at earlier quotations.

The OPS regulation allowed idaho polatoes a 20 cent premium over Klamath and other Western potatoes, making the idahoans the highest priced polatoes in the country. The OPS explained that provisions were made in the rollback order for areas where unusual conditions had produced poor crops. The possibility of lowering the size of marketable potatoes from the present 2-inch minimum (as set by committee regulation) to 12-inch minimum or "psewee" size would put more polatoes on the market in order that farmers can make up for their losses, Such a plan is to be discussed at a meeting scheduled here for Jan. 15-16 by the Oregon-California Potato Marketing Agreement Committee, according to Secy. William Peterson.
