County Buys

A new air compressor, bought from Nelson Equipment Company. Portland, has been delivered to the county shops here for use by the County Road Department.

The two-stage compressor operates of en International diesel engine, and cost $8.375, less $1.200 trade-in on an old machine. The net cost, delivered, was $7.175.

The Portland firm was low among five bidders on the equipment.

The compressor was given tryouts today.

The County Court also has ordered $70,000 transferred from the county special jail fund to the road fund in order to pay Road Department claims until more road money becomes available from tax collections.

The jail special fund was created to be used in construction of a new jail several years ago, but the money has not been used for that purpose.

Wind Rips Up Vancouver Area

Vancouver ared
Vancouver, B.C. (89)—Windows were shattered and power and communications lines jumbled early Wednesday when winds sweeping down from the Queen Charlotte Islands struck Vancouver.
Wind gusts reached 60 miles an hour and heavy rain accompanied the gale, which began to subside as it moved inland. There were no reports of serious damage.

Lana Finds 'Merry Widow' Frantic but Not Romantic

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA)—Movies Without Popcorn: Lana Turner is panting in the arms of Fernando Lamas on the set of MGMs "The Merry Widow," But it's in the script.

The stepped-up, fast-and-furious portion of the famous waitz scene is being filmed and Lana, huffing and puffing, leans against her costar for support.

Again and again the two stars whirl dizzily as the camera soars upwards on a crane to photograph them.

Two scientists, played by Andrea King and Peter Graves, are waiting for a message from Mars to flash on a giant television screen in "Miracle From Mars," the first independent production of Anthony Veiller and Donald Hyde.

Against a background of strange laboratory equipment, including a hydrogen-powered motor. Andrea and Peter turn on switches and pull levers.

Finally six white parallel lines appear on the video screen and the stars register great excitement. "Whatja expect?" an assistant director mutters to an agent visi-ing the set. "Dagmar?"

Judy Holliday and newcomer Aldo Ray are the stars of Columbia's "The Marrying Kind." However, a crown roast being used as a prop in a butcher shop sequence is stealing their thunder. Set visitors gaze, in awe at the meat, ask if it is real and guess its weight, Director George Cukor dismisses the company for lunch, quipping:

quipping:
"And get somebody to guard this roast. The price of meat being what it is, I don't trust anybody."

Romantic? Lana, gasping for breath, pokes Fernando in the ribs with her elbow and says:

"Mother told me there would be days like this."

Catherine McLeod and Robert Clark are playing a love scene in American Pictures' Sword of Venus." It's another historical swash-buckler, but the swordplay clatter has been stilled to allow the principals to get a little Gilbert-Garbo byplay into the action.

Director Harold Daniels sierts Bob and Catherine, and I witness what turns out to be an overlong kiss.

When the director finally yells

When the director finally yells "Cut." Catherine utters two words that aren't in the script. The scene has to be reshot.

Not only is the kiss longer in duration than movies censors permit, but Catherine's yelp of "Jeepers, creepers!" isn't in the spirit of the 18th Century.

I hope this won't get Hollywood in wrong with the Society for the Protection of Butterflies, but I stand popeyed as workmen chase a stray butterfly around the set of "The Girl Next Door," at Fox. It's an interior shot and the airborne caterpillar clearly doesn't belong.
