In the final analysis, it was ac-dripped with gloom concerning the possibility of baseball returning to Klamath Falls after the Far West league slipped out of existence in a Redding meeting this week.

Club President Dick Maguire, who also runs things up KPJI way and attered the business end of the Gems for two years, tells me that things aren't as bad at this column pictured.

Maguire or the club directors or any of the Philly brass that have been connected with the Gems for four years will not venture to say when we'll have professional baseball here again—but Klamath Falls is definitely in any plans the Philis make along that line.

THE IMPORTANT thing is, according to Maguire, we will have baseball here this year.

THE IMPORTANT thing is, according to Maguire, we will have baseball here this year.

TORNADOES LEAD

But after two ties, Medford held and 8-6 lead at the end of the low-throw to basebail here this year.

Although not of the professional brand, the Gems (if they keep that name) will be just as good to may be better", says Dick) as last year.

Here's the plan as it now stands and the Philadelphia Nationals are very solidly behind it.

Some 16 college boys, undergraduates, would be sent here to form a team. They are all good basel propects but none of them cant to sign a professional contract, because they want to keep their college athletic stants clean. But they do want to play basebail. The Phillies have them lined up now and they'll be ready for delivery by the middle of June.

the tourth quarter.

ONLY MISS

But that's the only free loss the Pelicans missed in the second half.
They spent tots of time on the loui line as Medford pressed hard to get possession of the ball.
Carroll had six field goals—four of them in a second-quarter spree —and five free throws for 17- and high-point honors. Bell and Gilmore chipped in with 11 and 10.
The Medfords were watching Jack Horton closely and the big boy didn't get away with any of his pet corner shots.
