Blinded Pilot Talked To Safe Landing By Crewman

U.S. FIFTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, Korea (AP)—A B-26 bomber pilot temporarily blinded by an exploding anti-aircraft shell was "talked in" to a safe landing by his navigator, the Fifth Air Force said Monday.

Lt. John Grubbs, Brooksville, Fla., was making a routine straggling run on a Communist warehouse when the shell hit the plane's canopy.

The pilot was stunned and blinded as blood streamed down his face.

"I've been hit," he yelled into the plane's intercommunication system. "I can't see. It's all yours."

Lt. Vincent Alessi of Roxbury, Mass., couldn't take over the controls because in a B-26 no one but the pilot can reach them. So he began giving Grubbs quiet instructions for heading the plane back toward the base.

For more than an hour the pilot responded to the words of Alessi coming over the intercom.

"Down a little. A little to the left. Slower" and finally "We're on the ground Johnny, put on the brakes"

Grubbs inadvertently set the emergency brake and the bomber blew two tires as it jolted to a sudden stop.

"I have to taxi this plane down to the ramp," Grubbs muttered.

But Alessi replied quietly: "Do not bother, Johnny."

Air Force doctors said Grubbs' eyes were not damaged. He was blinded by blood streaming from a head wound.

Carrier Plane Use "Great"

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States Navy aircraft can take off from a carrier any place in the world, drop an atomic bomb 70 miles away and return, Vice Admiral John H. Cassidy said Monday.

The deputy chief of Navy operations (air) made the statement in a copyrighted interview in U.S. News & World Report, a weekly news magazine.

Cassidy said the Navy has 12 big carriers, 10 operating while two undergo repairs. Three are kept in Korean waters, he said, and "If the world situation worsens we very definitely should build up Navy air power."

Navy planes, with heavy jet-fighter escort, can deliver an atomic bomb—or a 10,000-pound bomb load—up to 770 miles out and 770 miles back," Cassidy said, adding:

"If you take a map of Europe and subscribe 770-mile circles from possible carrier operating areas, you can draw your own conclusions as to Naval-air capabilities."

Morse Claims Ike Will Tell Bird Feeding Plan Grows

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Morse (R-Ore.) said Monday he believes Gen. Eisenhower's basic views on political issues will be well known in advance of the Republican presidential nominating convention in July.

"I think Eisenhower won't be operating in a vacuum between now and the convention," Morse told a reporter. "He will be making statements in broad terms on affairs generally, and I assume he will use language which will indicate his point of view."

Morse, who is backing Eisenhower for the GOP nomination, declared supporters of rival Republican presidential candidates were "talking nonsense" in any assertions that the general can't make his position clear on the issues while still in uniform as commander of the North Atlantic defense forces.

"If the convention were held next week," Morse said, "I believe Eisenhower would walk away with the nomination."

Fir Sawmills Set Record

PORTLAND (AP)—Pacific Northwest fir sawmills broke all production records in the past year.

The West Coast Lumbermen's Association reported Sunday that December production was up an average, and this was enough to boost the output to a record 11,198,459,000 board feet.

It was more than a half-billion board feet greater than the previous record of 1950. The year's output was 120 per cent of the average in the past five years.

Year-end figures, however, reflected some market softening. Orders for the year totaled 10,044,150,000 feet down from 1950's record of 11,165,111,000. Nevertheless the orders ran more than a half-billion board feet higher than in 1949.

Alumni Meet Set Thursday

Four top Oregon educators—all from the University of Oregon—will provide brief "refresher courses" for Klamath parents, alumni and friends of the university Thursday night in a meeting at the Willard hotel.

Held along the lines of an old-fashioned "chautauqua," the program will feature talks by Dean Theodore Kratt, University Music School; Dr. James S. Gilbert, emeritus professor of economics; Dr. Edwin G. Ebbighausen, associate professor of physics and Track Coach Bill Bowerman.

Alumni Director Lester Anderson is in charge of the program. John Houston, Klamath insurance man, is in charge of arrangements. He emphasized the "community nature" in the meeting.

In each case the educators will speak on topics of general interest in their field for the listening laymen.

Dean Kratt will give a popular lecture illustrated on the piano; The nation's economic problems will be discussed by Dr. Gilbert; physics for the laymen will be discussed by Dr. Ebbighausen, well-known for his simple explanation of complex physical facts; Coach Bill Bowerman will bring the audience up to date on the Oregon athletic picture.

The lecture tour here is not just for Oregon supporters; Houston said the general public is invited to attend.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Federal Judge James Alger Fee of Portland will preside at the conspiracy trial of James G. Smyth, former internal revenue collector of North-Central California.

Smyth and two of his former aides, Paul V. Doyle, and John J. Boland, and Lloyd J. Cosgrove, are charged with conspiring to defraud the government by back-dating income tax returns.

Six San Francisco federal judges disqualified themselves as judges of the case.

Spud Battle Still Rages As Congressmen Rush To Aid Of Angry Constituents

By JOHN KAMPS
AP Special Washington Service
WASHINGTON (AP)—The government will clamp a lid on potato prices Saturday unless farmers, officers and legislators persuade the price stabilizer to change his mind.

There is no indication that they will.

The would-be mind-changers have been busy since Jan. 5, when Michael DiSalle, Office of Price Stabilization chief, announced ceilings on prices paid to potato growers would become effective Jan. 19, to be followed by retail controls.

Some of the loudest cries come back from Idaho farmers, who will take the biggest financial rollback.

The protests are relayed to OPB's representatives, who tried unsuccessfully to change DiSalle's mind during several days of conferences before the order was announced.

The meetings, arranged by Sen. Dworshak (R-Idaho), attracted several congressmen from several western states which produce America's most popular vegetable.

After they failed to block the order, the congressmen, prodded by farmers and dealers, began pressing a campaign to get the order rescinded or modified.

Rep. Budget (R-Idaho) claims the order already has failed to keep the price of potatoes down, as it was supposed to do. To the contrary, he declares, retail potato prices in Washington have increased since the ceiling was announced.

Dworshak says that petitions sent to OPS by Idaho farmers argue correctly that "erred in its action was used in arriving at the 'unfair, discriminatory and confiscatory' ceiling for Idaho russets.

The Idaho ceiling is $3.95 for 100 pounds, the highest of all those set. But this includes a 40 cent allowance.

Without referring directly to the rumors about the Governor's condition, the Assembly convention adopted a resolution demanding that the 1952 primary campaign "be kept free of personal invective, abuse and undermining acts which might or could injure the Republican party."

4 Die Over Weekend

By The Associated Press
Weekend accidents in Oregon claimed the lives of four. One was killed in an automobile mishap, one drowned, one burned to death and one died in an earth cave-in.

Mrs. Emma Quehanna, about 55, was killed outright Saturday when a car driven by her son, Wilbur, 22, crashed into a parked pickup truck near Prineville.

Diana Strubbe, 2, was fatally burned in a house fire at Spray in Wheeler County Sunday. She was alone in a house when fire broke out apparently from a nearby oil stove.

Melvin James, 23, Horton, Ore., drowned Sunday when his car plunged off a highway into Swamp Creek 35 miles west of Eugene.

George Randolph Hentilla, 42, died Saturday in a severe ditch cave-in in Portland. The sides of the ditch collapsed as he was leveling its bottom.

Woodworkers Eye Pay Up

PORTLAND (AP)—CIO Woodworkers will ask employers for a substantial wage increase when contract negotiations reopen.

That was decided here Sunday at the union's regional negotiating conference.

The amount of the increase to be asked will be determined when the matter along with other new contract recommendations is referred to the union's 60,000 members.

Other recommendations include three additional paid holidays, revision of payment methods for health and welfare plans, revision of vacation schedules and other benefits.

Contracts covering workers in the northwest region—Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and Northern California—will expire April 1.
