HST Proposes Twelve-Point Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman Wednesday offered a dozen legislative proposals he believes will balance America on an economic tightrope between defense spending needs and threats of inflation.

The President's annual economic message to Congress pictured the fiscal year beginning next July as the "most difficult" of the armament buildup. It described the inflation situation as "precarious" and capable of bursting into full bloom.

As to revenues, Mr. Truman asked for about five billion dollars more in tax take—by plugging loop holes, eliminating "special privileges" and boosting "some" rates. This, he said, would provide the rest of the ten billions he sought and failed to get in full at the last session.

He asked, in this "year of strain" for 5 per cent more national production and one and a third million more people to work. He said more wage and credit controls must be retained.

On the subject of dipping into red ink, Mr. Truman said: "A balanced budget, achieved the easy way by sacrificing the defense program and putting the balance of world power in the hands of the Kremlin, would be false economy."

Pay-as-you-go mobilization must be dropped temporarily, he said, but picked up "as quickly as possible."

His 12-point program: 1. Revise the Defense Production Act for two years, eliminating "weakening" amendments and strengthening controls.

2. Continue foreign aid—drop military and economic—and drop new curbs on certain imports such as cheese and fats and oils.

3. Provide funds for a new agency created to channel defense contracts to small plants.

4. Approve pending projects like the St. Lawrence Seaway plan.

5. Provide needed housing in defense areas.

6. Revise the Taft-Hartley Labor Relations Law.

7. Restore farm price support laws by repealing "sliding scale" provisions, writing a "workable" support program for perishable foods and making other changes.

8. Provide at least enough additional revenues to reach last year's proposed goal.

9. Limit bank lending and curb commodity speculation.

10. Extend old age insurance and unemployment compensation.

11. Approve federal aid to education.

12. Authorize federal aid for medical education and strengthen public health services.

Radio Forum On Problems Of Basin Youths Brings To Light Many Theories

By DAVE UNDERHILL
Rich food for thought and much material for action evolved from Monday night's Herald and News-KFLW sponsored "Build the Basin" radio forum on how to build better citizens for tomorrow.

Look at these potent points referred to the panel of seven persons by hundreds of Klamathites listening to the program.

1. How about making it easier for juveniles to get work in the summertime, to keep them busy and interested?

2. How about establishing a Counseling Center with an attendant psychologist so teenagers and adults too could seek help to resolve their problems?

3. What can be done about the lack of discipline at home and in school?

4. Why not establish a Community Recreation Center?

5. Why are not laws concerning juveniles more strictly enforced, particularly laws concerning liquor and a curfew?

6. What is being done about liquor at the high school?

7. What is the Klamath County Parent-Teachers' Assn. doing about the juvenile problem?

These are questions potent enough to make a responsible person stop and think.

"Build the Basin," braintrust of seven citizens thought about the questions and came up with some amazing answers.

In respect to the question of lowering the age limit preventing juveniles from working, the situation behooves bringing in comment of County Schools Superintendent Carroll Howe, made in a letter to the radio forum.

Howe said: "Our greatest problem is to provide useful, productive work for young people. The recreation part of the juvenile problem is overemphasized and the home has been relieved of a great part of its responsibilities by the school."

Panel Member Dick Geary, a KUHS student said, "Businessmen should get together and provide the opportunity for teenagers to get work after school and during the summer."

With regard to establishment of a Counseling Center, with attendant psychologists to help juveniles and adults resolve their problems, County Juvenile officer, Francis Mathews had this to say:

"We must help parents become better citizens so they can aid their children in becoming better citizens also. The initial step in this regard is reorganization of a Youth Council which will provide the Counseling Center."

In rebuttal Beverly Eells, panel member from the KUHS said, "Throw away all the child psychology books that would let the child do whatever it wants and then advocate solutions for curing the juvenile delinquent. Use good old fashioned horse sense instead."

Concerning discipline in the home Mrs. Dale Baxter, County PTA president, said parents should use the old fashioned hickory stick more often.

About establishment of a Community Recreation Center these replies were made by the various panel members.

Bob Bonney, city recreation director, stated, "There is a great need for a community center for persons of all ages to utilize. Such programs for the whole family are wholesome and proven worthwhile."

Dick Geary stated, "We must provide a place where teenagers can go and occupy themselves after school hours. If many youths have no place to go, only a few participate in athletics. The centers here in Klamath Falls (the later stipulated the YMCA) are too pushy and do not reach the ones who have the greatest need for such a center."

In respect to strengthening of laws concerning juveniles, Juvenile Officer Mathews said, "The present juvenile laws are strong enough, because the theory behind those laws is rehabilitation of the delinquent. However, the law prohibits fining of juveniles for first traffic offenses and then permits taking away of a driver's license for a second traffic offense."

Dick Geary thought the juvenile offenders ought to be more severely punished.

School Bond Issue Passed

TULELAKE — Newell votes yesterday approved a new school bond issue "by more than 10 to one," according to Paul Christy, chairman of the Newell Union School Board.

Although official tally of the ballots will not be made by the school board for several days, Christy said an unofficial count showed the issue had been overwhelmingly approved by the 232 participating voters.

Bonds are to raise $152,000 for the school expected to cost $313,891. The remaining $160,891 is to come from the state.

"These days," she said "the junior high students are doing what youths of her time didn't even think of doing until they were in high school, such as smoking, drinking, going to dances and parties."

On the question of liquor at the high school both the teenage members of the panel were strong in their knowledge that there was a noticeable amount of drinking going on and that liquor could be found in students' lockers.

Geary said, "If you want to see evidence of it just come to one of our after-game dances."

School Principal Jim Brown said, "This is news to me. We check lockers regularly, and would welcome information about any of this."

"Marijuana may exist too," the school principal said, "but I personally don't have any knowledge of that situation."

Asked what the County PTA was doing about delinquency in KUHS, Mrs. Baxter replied that her organization has no representative body at KUHS.

"They have the Parents-Patrons organization up there," Mrs. Baxter replied.

House Slates Tax Cleanup

WASHINGTON (AP) — House tax investigators fashioned a rebuttal Wednesday for President Truman's proposal to reorganize the scandal shaken Internal Revenue Bureau.

Smearing over White House failure to consult them, they announced plans to start an "independent" hearing Monday and to draw up their own reform recommendations.

The action served to deepen the chill which has settled over the President's plan on both sides of the Capitol—even among administration supporters.

It was revealed, also, that the President did not take House leaders into his confidence before sending the plan to Capitol Hill last Monday. It would reduce the number of top tax collectors from 64 to 25, give them regional instead of a state responsibility and make them Civil Service instead of appointive officials. The proposal also would establish an independent inspection agency to check corruption.

War Warning Gong Sounded

PARIS (AP) — Egypt announced Wednesday that if the U.S., France, the Netherlands or Norway should send warships into Egyptian territorial waters in an effort to keep the Suez Canal open, the Egyptians would consider it an act of aggression.

Britain has appealed to those four nations to join with her in helping to keep traffic moving through the strategic waterway.

The arrival of warships from those countries would be considered a violation of the Suez Canal convention of 1888 and would bring an appeal to the United Nations, said Dr. Mahmoud Azmy Bey, Egyptian delegation spokesman at the General Assembly session here.

In addition, he said, if these countries should send technical aid, pilots and dockers, as suggested by Britain, Egypt would consider this an "unfriendly act."
