

BUICK'S POPULAR four-door Riviera sedan in the Super series, incomparable in the medium-priced field is presented here in its new 1952 styling. Important new exterior styling changes and exquisite new interior appointments lend a new note of elegance and beauty to the Super. New for 1952 are the sweeppear and rocker panel moldings, rear fender ornaments, and high lustre stainless steel wheel covers, offered as an option. A new high arc rear deck lid raises the silhouette of the rear section and provides seven per cent more room in the luggage compartment. The Riviera sedan is mounted on a 125 1/2-inch wheelbase—four inches longer than other models in the Super series—that gives it additional roominess and comfort. It is powered by the high performance F-263 Fireball engine which develops 128 horsepower with Dynaflo. The new models are being shown in Klamath Falls by H. E. Hauger, 1330 Main St.

NEW POST—Veteran diplomat Robert D. Murphy (above), now ambassador to Belgium, has been chosen by President Truman to be the United States' first post-war ambassador to Japan.

HARDEST HIT—With their town isolated by heavy snows, these men of Portola, Calif. (left), stand by after setting up a market on the baseball diamond for planes to drop supplies. Portola was hardest hit of all the Sierra towns. Several buildings were crushed by the snow and a woman was killed when a gas stove exploded in her home.

STORM OF WELCOME—Capt. Henrik Kurt Carlson, who wrote a new sign of the sea when he rode out a North Atlantic storm aboard his doomed ship Flying Enterprise, is showered with ticker tape as his car moves down lower Broadway. Preceding him is a wedge of honor-guard midshipmen. New York turned out in huge throngs to welcome the hero home.

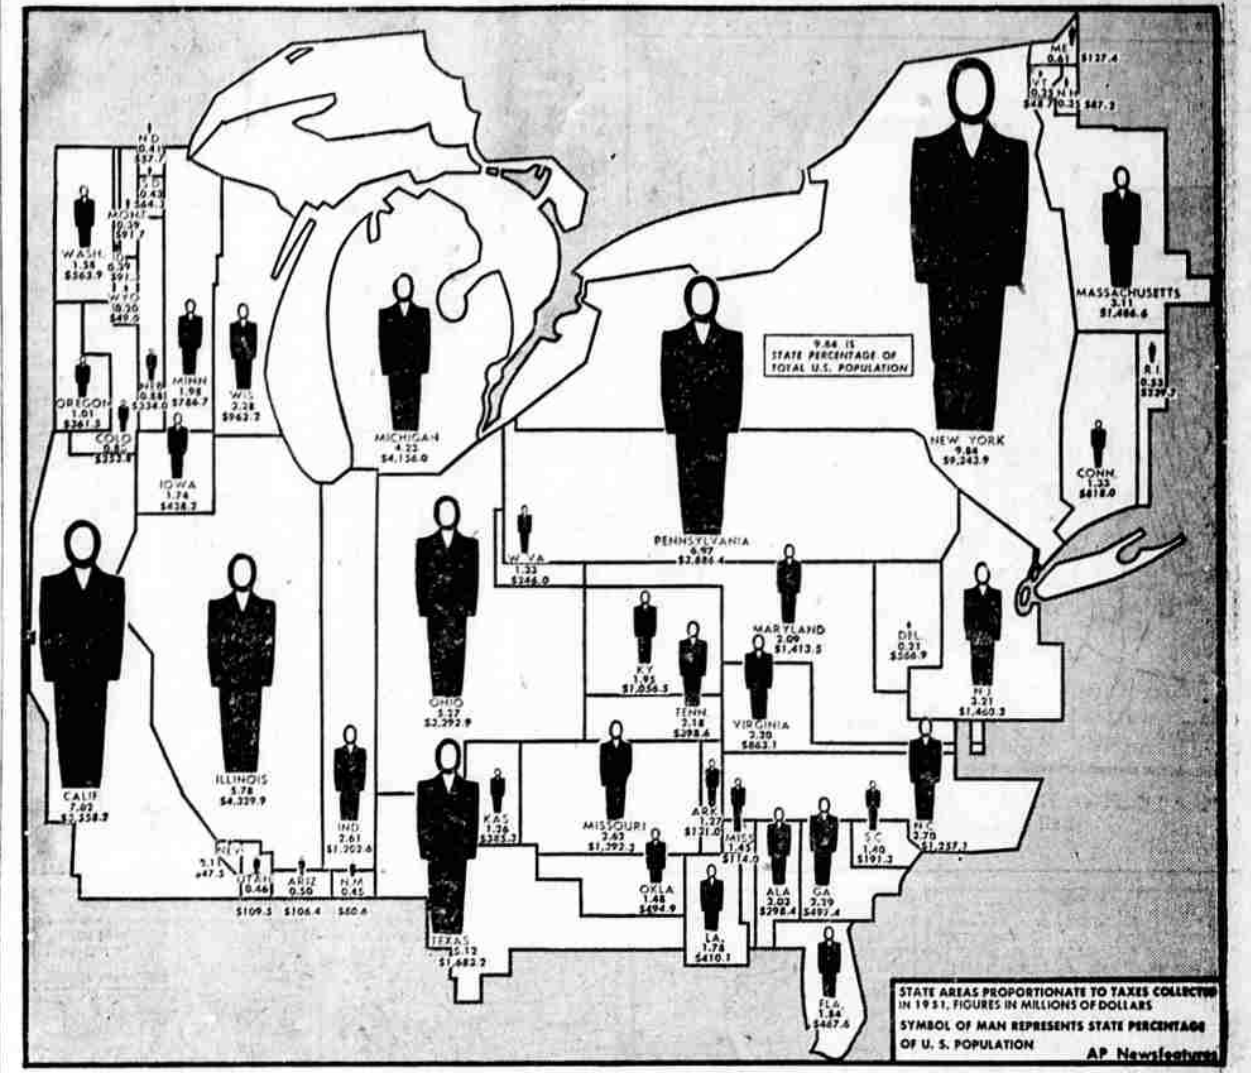

CAUGHT IN SEA OF MUD—Actress Virginia Gibson, 21, sits dejectedly on the roof of her car and wonders now she will ever get it out of a 'five-foot drift of mud caused by steady rains in Los Angeles. She was forced to abandon her car at the height of the storm when it stalled in the mud.

HIGH AND DRY—Cattle are marooned in the center of their corral at Downey, Calif. Flood waters have inundated most of the territory around Downey after a three-day storm hit the area, taking a toll of two lives and thousands of dollars in damage.

The Income Tax Collection Picture

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
dred sixty million dollars collected from the entire country in 1951. New York state alone contributed more than nine billion two hundred forty-three million dollars in fiscal 1951.
There are 22,252 office workers and 19,521 field workers in the 64 collection districts of the revenue bureau. Another 1,362 persons work in the processing branch at Kansas City, and there are 125 supervisors of accounts and collection.
The regular force of 34,200 will be augmented during the income-tax filing period by about 2,200 temporary employees. The extra-season in connection with return filing extends from January 1 to June 30.
Under President Truman's plan for reorganization of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, the offices of 64 collectors of revenue, at present filled in part by lawyers, businessmen, stockbrokers and others with outside interests, would be abolished.
All operating functions of the bureau would be placed in not more than 25 district offices, each headed by a district commissioner with civil service rating.
Also abolished would be the present setup of 125 supervisors of accounts and collections operating in 13 districts.
All jobs in the bureau, with the exception of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, would be filled by career people recruited from the civil service. The commissioner would be appointed by the President.
The President's plan must be approved by congress.
The bureau handles millions of returns in addition to individual income tax returns. Among these are complicated corporation and partnership tax returns, employers' reports on withholding of income taxes and on social security taxes, and returns on various excise and special taxes.
The states with big populations and large numbers of business establishments, of course, have comparatively large collection staffs. In New York, for example, there are 4,153 workers compared with 57 in thinly-populated Nevada.

NW Chiefs Gave Up Wives As Missionaries Taught

By JOHN KAMPS
WASHINGTON (AP)—Indians of the Northwest liked the black-robed missionaries who worked among them, even though the chiefs had to get rid of some of their wives.
So says a history of the Coeur d'Alene Indian Tribe, which was written by a chief and is being studied by the Indian Claims Commission.
The manuscript is part of the evidence submitted last week in a hearing on the tribe's claim for four million acres of land taken by the government in the 1880's. The land is in Idaho, Washington and Montana.
The history was written by Chief Joseph Selise, who died in 1949 at the age of 63. Details were told to Joseph by aged members of the tribe, including his father, Chief Andrew Selise, who was 92 when he died in 1902.
The Rev. Pierre Desmet, the famed missionary, arrived in the Coeur d'Alene country in 1842. Joseph's hand-written history relates his arrival date, the first Friday in December, remains a day of celebration for the tribe to this day.
"Father Desmet's teachings said that all Christians were allowed just one wife," the history continues.
"Twisted Earth chief of the tribe did not hesitate a minute, but promptly conferred with his four wives and left them to decide among themselves which one should remain, and which three should go."
"In a short time the four wives determined which one must remain the wife and which three must go. Twisted Earth thanked them and told them they made a wise choice, and bid the three a sorrowful farewell, then told the three who were to go to remain faithful to the one man you are to marry as you have remained faithful already a large part of your lives."
"Twisted Earth then was 82, but 'hale and hearty.'"
GOOD, BAD
The historian, and those he quoted, said many good words about the clergy, but many bad ones about the white men.
White adventurers "sought eagerly for Indians who had never traded with whites and would part with their furs for worthless trinkets," Joseph says. "This went 15 million dollars in rich furs owned by the Indians for some whiskey and worthless trinkets."
Writing of the death in 1847 of a young physician, Dr. Whiteman, who was suspected of poisoning Indians, Joseph quotes a tribesman: "Tamsuky knocked Whiteman on the head with a tomahawk. . . . If all reports are true . . . then he got only what was coming to him."

Let Tropical Fruit-Bananas Help You Battle Cold-Snow

Winter weather makes folks enjoy more substantial meals. It takes energy to battle the cold, and when the body uses energy, it has to be paid back. High carbohydrate or energy foods is the currency of this payment.
Energy foods are winter favorites. Some of them give a quicker pick-up than others, when energy has been spent and more is needed. The banana is one excellent source of quick energy.
A fully ripe banana . . . yellow peel flecked with brown . . . has a high content of natural fruit sugars . . . approximately 20 per cent. These sugars are in a form that's thoroughly digestible and readily assimilated by the body. This gives the quick energy pick-up needed to help prevent or overcome that tired feeling.
In addition to its energy value, bananas have a well-rounded supply of essential minerals and vitamins, making them one of the best of the "protective" foods . . . and especially good for children.
Tuck a fully ripe banana into the lunchbox you pack and you have included a wonderful and nourishing winter energy food. The banana is sealed in its own germ-proof wrapper. Experiments have shown that bacteria do not penetrate its peel, thus insuring a sanitary portable food.
The less ripe banana . . . all yellow or slightly green . . . tipped . . . are delicious cooked. Served hot, they can be a vegetable or a dessert. Cooking renders the starch in these bananas fully digestible, so that they have the same excellent food energy as the fully ripe banana.
BAKED BANANAS
4 firm bananas
1 1/2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
Salt
Use all yellow or slightly green-tipped bananas. Peel bananas. Place into well-greased baking dish. Brush well with butter or margarine and sprinkle lightly with salt. Bake in a moderate oven (350 F.) 15 to 18 minutes, or until bananas are tender. . . . easily pierced with a fork. Serve hot as a vegetable, or as a dessert with cream, syrup or a hot fruit sauce. Makes 4 servings.
