Court Finds Driver Guilty

A District Court jury Wednesday afternoon took only five minutes to find Charles E. Shean, Weyerhaeuser employe, guilty of drunk driving.

Shean was arrested Sept. 30, 1951, by State Police on Highway 66 near Ellingson's Mill.

Four state witnesses testified in yesterday's trial. Shean weaved his pickup back and forth across the highway for 14 miles before being stopped by Freddie D. Wolfert, 4905 Alkamont Drive and Robert Keese of Hillyard St.

Immediately after being convicted, Shean paid a $200 fine assessed by Judge M. A. Carter.

Judge Carter said Shean had previously paid $100 on pleading guilty to driving during revoked period. Deputy Dist. Atty. Don Piper prosecuted the case. J. C. O'Neill was the defense attorney.

Driver Case Still Waits Decision

It will be about 16 more days before Erwin (Joe) Searles, former Cascade Cleaners and Laundry driver-salesman, will learn if he can continue similar employment with Superior Troy.

Searles terminated his employment with Cascade Nov. 10, 1951. Two days later he went to work for Superior Troy on a virtually the same Merrill-Malin-Tulelake route he had for Cascade.

D. Isensee, Cascade owner, brought a suit against Searles, asking Circuit Court that an injunction be brought restraining Searles from working for a competing firm for six months after leaving Cascade.

The suit came to trial yesterday afternoon in Circuit Court before Judge David R. Vandenberg.

Isensee, in testifying, contended a contract he had with Searles contained a clause which would prohibit him from taking employment for six months with a competing firm within a 100 mile radius of Klamath Falls if he left Cascade.

Searles and George Barthman, secretary-treasurer of the teamsters union, both contended that contract was superseded by one drawn up between the teamsters and Cascade July 3, 1946, three months after Searles took employment with Cascade.

Isensee stated since Searles went to work for Superior that Cascade's business on the same route had dropped about 50 per cent.

Searles said he did not solicit business of his former Cascade customers on the route when he went to work for Superior. He added he felt people had a right to seek their business where they wanted to, and he had a right to pick up business of people who requested him to do so.

William Kuykendall represents Isensee and Cascade in the dispute and Dick Maxwell is defending Searles.

Farm Bureau Hits Controls

PORTLAND (AP)—The government is fostering inflation by its farm and price controls, the president of the Oregon Farm Bureau Federation said here Wednesday.

President Marshall Swearingen, Salem, told the Multnomah County chapter of the Oregon Republican Club that the Farm Bureau wanted to stop all non-essential government spending.

He included soil conservation payments in this category and called the payments "political" because money paid to a farmer for something he'd do anyhow if he was left alone—operate his farm.

"There is no such thing as a federal grant. The government just collects the money. Then it takes a 20 to 30 per cent cut in Washington and sends the remainder back—with controls," he said.

Attack Plan Finally Told

ROME (AP)—A wartime Italian naval commander says Italy planned a submarine attack in New York City harbor for December, 1943, but the Italian armistice came along before the scheme could be carried out.

The commander, J. Valerio Borghese, said in a letter-to-the-editor published in the newspaper Roma that a long-range submarine was to carry a smaller one within close range of New York. The little one was to slip up the Hudson River "to the heart of the city," to make the attack.

"The psychological effect on Americans who had not seen any war action brought up to their own shores surpassed in the long run the material damage we could have inflicted," Borghese concluded.

He said the surrender of the Italian fleet in the armistice of Sept. 8, 1943, stopped the attack plan.

RESIGNS OLYMPIA (AP)—Dr. Cleve O. Westby, state director of school building facilities, has resigned to accept a field studies position with Columbia University.

Mrs. Pearl A. Wanamaker, state superintendent of public instruction, announced Wednesday.

Secret Society In School To Be Eyed By High Court

SALEM (AP)—Oregon's 43-year-old law banning secret societies from high schools will be interpreted for the first time by the state Supreme Court in a few weeks.

The high court heard arguments Wednesday in a case to decide if the Portland school board had authority to issue an order banning high school fraternities and societies to a single school. This order would break up 12 city-wide societies.

The court's decision probably will decide an issue that has rocked several Oregon cities many times. The issue is: just what is a secret society under the 1909 law.

School boards often have interpreted the law to mean that any club of students is banned unless sanctioned by the school board. After the Portland school board issued its order Oct. 27, 1949, a group of members of the societies and their parents asked the Multnomah Circuit Court for an injunction to overrule the board's order. Circuit Judge Charles H. Combs, Lakeview, dismissed the suit, and they appealed.

The parents and the members say the board's order is undemocratic in that it stops school children from associating with whom ever they wish. They deny the societies are secret. They say they aren't connected with the schools because these organizations meet off the school grounds outside of school hours.

The school board lawyers told the Supreme Court Wednesday that the board has authority to expel students who belong to organizations which aren't approved by the board.

schools. They claim the societies are secret under the 1909 law. The board lawyers said these societies are undemocratic, snobbish, interfere with the school social program and discipline, adversely affect scholarship and attendance, cause tardiness, hurt school spirit and school reputation, and cause maladjustment among students who can't be admitted to membership.
