

Leap Year Valentines Set Mood For Romance

VALENTINE CARDS were taken pretty seriously back in the 1880's. Gay numbers such as this one cost as much as thirty dollars.

"Roses are red, violets are blue, Leap Year's on, and I want you."

If this isn't a warning to the happy bachelor, he's apt to find himself a Valentine victim who didn't have enough foresight to take to the hills while he still had time.

Hard-Times Party Fun

Still feeling the sting of heavy Christmas expenditures? Make the next gang gathering the simplest one possible—a hard-times party. You know the way. Tell everyone to wear their most bedraggled and out-moded clothing. Roll up the rugs—this will carry out the hard-times theme, as well as provide room for dancing. Make the menu "keeping."

Slumgullion
Garden Patch Salad Cold Beer
Apple Crisp

As you can see from the recipe which follows, the Slumgullion you serve will be the best stew ever, tastefully seasoned and entirely delicious. For Garden Patch Salad, mix washed cut-up lettuce, cabbage, carrots, scallions, celery and tomatoes and chill. Just before serving pour French dressing over all. Cut the French bread into thick slices almost through the loaf. Pull apart and brush inside surfaces with butter in which garlic has been simmered. Heat in the oven until crisp. Pour foaming cold beer into your most beautiful pitcher, ready to serve in tall glasses at the buffet or table. The Apple Crisp, economical and easy, is made by layering slices of tart apples with a mixture of corn flakes, brown sugar and butter, seasoned with cinnamon. The recipe for Slumgullion follows. After they enjoy this meal, your guests will begin to think that empty pockets are fun.

SLUMGULLION
In a large dutch oven, brown 3 pounds boneless stew beef in 2 tablespoons fat. Add 1 quart water, 2 teaspoons salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1/4 teaspoon each thyme, marjoram and chervil, 3 sprigs parsley, and 1/2 cup chopped celery leaves. Simmer, covered, 1 hour. Add 12 medium onions and 4 cups chopped celery. Simmer 30 minutes. Add 8 medium carrots, peeled and cut in quarters. Simmer 40 minutes more. (3 tomatoes, cut in quarters, may be added in last 10 minutes if desired.) Remove meat and vegetables to serving dish. Thicken broth with flour and water mixed to a smooth paste. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

friendship. The Romans, however, had been celebrating Feb. 15 for several centuries as the Feast of Lupercalia, dedicated to the pastoral god, Lupercus, and the goddess of love, Juno.

As a part of the gay festivities, Roman maidens placed their name in an urn set up in the public square, and courageous bachelors were allowed to draw one name each to determine their "blind dates" for the year.

Eventually, because of pressure from the Christian Church, which felt the Romans were up to no good, the two holidays were merged and thought of as an occasion for remembering old friendships.

Dan Cupid was not to be outdone. Sweetheart Valentines began appearing in about the year 1400 A. D. At first, to elude vigilant fathers, they were hidden in hollow trees that served as trying places.

Usually these love messages were anonymous—for safety's sake. Sometimes they were left on a lovely lady's doorstep by a bashful suitor who knocked and then promptly ran away.

Valentines had pretty rough going in the years that followed, but they always emerged victorious. Without sufficient evidence, it is difficult to say whether the women or the men were responsible.

In this year of the quest, however, many a woman may wish that the olden days, when Valentines came to be considered equivalent to a proposal of marriage, might be revived.

There's little hope for this. Modern man, alas, has been given too much freedom.
