

TIME OUT!

"Very good pep talk, Coach—but you made four rather bad grammatical errors!"

RIDIN' HERD

PROBABLY FEW fans noticed the hurried consultation Friday night before the Oregon Tech-Oregon College basketball game.

Principals in the huddle were Dr. Robert C. Livingston, OCE coach, and officials Cal Bonney and Tiny Jones.

The little gabfest didn't last long but it supplied the series with plenty of behind-the-scenes dynamite.

Because it had a lot to do with the OCE's turning in two of the best games of the season to sweep the series—and also more than a little to do with putting the Wolves on edge and ripe for the picking.

KIRKLAND VERY definitely meant that officials on this end of the state can spot charging fouls when they see them.

THE SUM and substance of Livingston's remarks to the officials was that if "there was any funny work" he (Livingston) would "pull my boys off the floor."

THE whole affair had the Oregon College players jittery (they showed it by the number of players that fouled out).

While the Oregon College players pressed, Oregon Tech played it cool. It paid off in two victories that put the Owls back in the thick of the OCC race.

THE whole thing perhaps was unfortunate. But it supplied spicy drama that made for an interesting series.
