Judge Dubs Indian Timber Deal 'Too Raw to Get By'

PORTLAND (B—A case involving the sale of Indian timberlands Monday was brought before Circuit Judge Ashby Dickson who said it night be "just too raw to get by this court."

The case involves 800 acres of timberland said by two Indians for action,

The case involves 800 acres of timberland sold by two Indians for $135,000. The land then was re-sold to another Indian, who is not under jurisdiction of the Indian Affairs Office, for $160,000. It next went on option to two white men for $300,-

Leroy Lomax, atterney for the two Indians, contended that the Indian Affairs Office did not allow the Indians to arrange their own price on the original sale.

Judge Dickson directed Lomax

People have asked... "Why shouldn't you haul the other fellow's oil?"

One of the things people ask about Standard is why we do not let other oil companies use all of our tankers, marine terminals, and pipelines. They say, "Why shouldn't you haul the other fellow's oil?"

The answer to that question is that we're mighty busy hauling our own, meeting our regular obligations to our customers. Standard just can't share all of its transportation equipment with other companies. And it's unfair to ask us to do it. It's like asking you to let everybody else use your car,

You go out and buy a car for yourself and your family-a car big enough for your needs. So with Standard. We provide whatever facilities it takes to handle our own crude oil and keep delivering our own finished products where they're needed, when they're needed, to customers who depend on us for service

But the way some people seem to want it, our freedom of choice would be gone. It's as if you were to be forced to stop and pick up everybody who lifted a thumb at you whether or not you had room for him. We'd be required to carry anybody's oil in these tankers and pipelines, even if our own had to be set aside.

Now suppose you're driving your car and a hitchhiker thumbs a ride. You pick him up only if you want to. The choice is yours. So again with Standard. In our own pipelines within a state's borders, crossing only privately-owned land, and in our own tankers, we may choose to carry only our own oil.

another for your own use. Once again, so with Standard. If we were forced to carry competitors' oil, we'd have to buy or build additional facilities to handle our own. This would mean increased costs to us, higher prices to you.

When they're needed for national defense, of course, Standard is always among the first to make its private facilities available for public use. But we cannot do it as a general rule. We would lose the efficiency of operation we have achieved—a loss to you, our customers, as well as to ourselves. We don't believe you want it that way.
