Master Plan of Defense Now Up to the Countries Helped

By STAN SWINTON
LIBBON, Portugal (AP)—The 14 Atlantic Allies Monday end a historic meeting which produced a master plan for Western Europe's defense.

Just two problems remained at the final sessions of the North Atlantic Council:
1. How much the U.S. will pay of an estimated 450 million dollar "infrastructure" program to string air bases, communication networks and headquarters across Europe. The best guesses were at least 40 per cent.

2. Streamlining of the NATO civil and economic organization under a permanent secretary-general.
A Big Three meeting on Germany and Austria Monday holds U.S. Secretary of State Acheson, Schuman and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden here.

They will talk chiefly about lifting Allied controls on defeated West Germany's war industries and try to settle the final size and form of its contribution to Western defense.

By the end of 1952, he is due to have in Europe a 50-division, 4,000 aircraft fighting force with strong naval support.

In 1954, this is to grow to about 88 divisions, by the economists' calculations, or 100 divisions, if the military men's full target is achieved.

This three-year program, the economists estimated, will cost Western taxpayers a total of 300 billion dollars.

Eisenhower will assume important new responsibilities. His SHAPE headquarters will mushroom as Allied forces from Iceland and the Dardanelles are unified under a single command.

An estimated 200 plus airbases will provide insurance against sudden major surgery.

den attack by Russia's Korean-proved jets or new long-range bombers.

The Atlantic Council also gave its blessing here to the European Defense Community (EDC).

That is a plan for a super-national European force made up of French, Italian, West German, Belgian, Dutch and Luxembourg fighting men.

Eisenhower would be in command, just as he would over U.S. British and other forces committed to NATO but outside EDC.

The European Army is a long way from existence still. First each nation must sign a treaty. Then each Parliament must ratify it. Only then can German recruiting begin.

The Lisbon decisions mean new sacrifices of citizens of Allied powers. They probably will have to be stepped up to meet spiraling costs of the atomic age defense.

French Premier Edgar Faure, for instance, said Monday France's taxes will be upped 15 per cent—instead of 10 per cent, as previously planned.

Legions of men must don uniforms—and quickly.

Eisenhower now has less than 30 divisions combat-ready or available within two weeks. Twenty more must be built within 10 months to meet the Lisbon targets.

Today under 1,000 fighters and bombers, mostly U.S., are in Europe. The year's goal is four times that.

Despite difficulties ahead, senior U.S. officials were heartened over the Lisbon meeting.

They believe Europe's steps toward self defense will lessen the difficulty of winning U.S. Congressional approval for President Truman's $7,900,000,000 request for foreign aid next month.

"Without progress here," I'd hardly have dared go up on the hill to testify, one American official was quoted as telling friends. "It's going to be rough going anyway."

The big question Congress is expected to ask is, "Can Europe defend itself if the Lisbon targets are met?"
