Merle Dameron, has been awarded a covered Air Medal for making 20 missions in an unarmol liaiston plane in Korea. This was quite a lengthy article and was taken from the Los Angeles Examiner, edited by their star reporter Julian Hartt, who is the only staff 'representation to the actually with the division in Korea. It seems that Lt. Dameron and another licutenant from Wichita, Kas. were flying over our tank infantry patrol from the 233rd regiment. They noted that the leading tanks were halted and seemed to be having trouble. The infantry men were under fire from the bunkers and Dameron noted a small puff of smoke about a mile down the lines. He thought at first it was a Chinese artillery position but through careful observation-lessaw it was a mortar since it didn't have the flame of an artillery piece. His guess was correct, it was about a 120 millimeter mortar blooping out those big packages of destruction right into our men of the patrol as they were fighting for their lives against the bunker. Dameron and his licutenant partner spoke over their microphones and by shrewd guesswork told our artillery the direction to fire and consequently they were able to blow apart the Chinese whomaned the weapons.

KINGDOM ?

But in all probability people will keep right on using the term "empire" to mean the far-flung organication of kingdoms, common-wealths, dominions, protectorates, colonies, condominiums and dependencies in the Commonwealth of Nations.

Empire is as good a word as any for something even the British always had difficulty describing. A quarter-century ago, an imperial conference at London agreed that, "nothing would be gained by trying to define the Empire."

The strength of this processors are shown on the accompanying map, Many, however, cannot be shown pictorially. Practically all the old units of empire have achieved greater self-reliance in a political evolution. In most cases, the process has been peaceful—but not always.
