Mrs. R. Maxwell Honored at Quota

Quota Club's dinner meeting Feb. 25 in the Pelican Party Room was devoted to celebrating the 33rd anniversary of Quota International.

Highlight of the evening was the naming of Mrs. Richard B. Maxwell (Mrs. Mary) as Woman of Achievement for 1951, when Cardula Eells, program chairman, presented her with a red rose corsage as a token of esteem.

Mrs. Maxwell, as Chairman of Volunteer Services for Klamath County Red Cross, has shown outstanding leadership in the successful establishment of the local blood bank. It has taken several years of ground work, combining much effort and perseverance to acquaint the public with the need for volunteers to serve in the various processing steps, as well as blood donors.

Mrs. Maxwell has conducted four orientation classes, which produced 46 certified volunteer workers. This has made possible 10 blood unit operations in Klamath County, with a visit of 30 to 35 volunteers serving at each operation. All of the committees function under her leadership.

She is also a member of the Southern Oregon Council, comprising four Red Cross chapters which serve the Veterans Hospitals. This includes the production work in which church groups, sewing organizations, and individuals participate. Mrs. Maxwell also served the community as PTA president, and has been an officer of the Young Republicans organization.

Commemorating the Klamath club's fifth birthday, a lovely candle-lighting ceremony was held, with each past president lighting a candle and making a wish of success for the club.

Fast presidents attending were Cardula Eells, Joy Rolph and Catherine Fyock.

President Vera Chase officiated for Alice Vitus, first president of the local chapter, who, as governor of the 14th district is making her official visit in Seattle.

Joe Lazclair, Audio-visual director of KUHHS, showed an interesting film on French Morocco.

Member Irene Van Winkle also showed colored slides of scenic points on her recent coastal trip to California.

I wish to take this opportunity to apologize to Harry Beck and the '47 class of BVHS. In a report of the Yreka-BVHS basketball game in Yreka last Friday night, in which I quoted a Yreka official, I stated that Butte Valley High had not defeated Yreka in 13 years. This was incorrect. It should have read five years.

Butte Valley High School meets Wed on the home court Friday. The VFW dance Saturday night at the Red Barn was very successful, with a large turnout of both Dorris folk and people from Klamath Falls.

Hilda Stumbaugh and son, Ronnie, were in San Jose over the weekend. Beverly Webster, daughter of the Siskiyou County Farm Bureau dinner at Montague Saturday night. She specializes in the blackface numbers, movie famous by Al Jolson. Mrs. Biard Kelly was her accompanist.

BVHS and the Dorris grade school will both send a band and a chorus to the annual musical to be held at Mt. Shasta, Apr. 3 and 4. Robert Laxton of Chico State College will be the judge. Residents of Dorris are very sorry that Ralph Fife has closed his jewelry store and moved his family to Arcata where he expects to open a watch repairing shop. The coastal town offers more opportunity than this part of the country, Ralph says, and though he liked Dorris and its people he had to move.

AAUW Musicale

It Happened This Way New Pine Creek

By IRVIN FARIS
"Now isn't that a darn shame!" The little Peruvian lady—the recent bride of Pat O'Conner, Wilcox Ranch office employee—is now probably back in Peru and Pat is in the hospital with a fever and almost "lifeless" over the shock.

Reason: Mrs. O'Conner entered the U.S. under an "Immigrants Visa" a visiting permit. But it is strictly against the U.S. immigration laws to get married here under such a permit. It seems she got married two or three months ago—innocently enough, but "ignorance of the law" is no excuse. When she read the federal proclamation that her marriage was illegal, she sobbed bitterly, uncontrollable tears. She had 30 days in which to make amends of some sort—a readjustment, an annulment or something — before she would be compelled to leave the country. But nothing doing.

When her husband came home from work—that night of one day early last week—she implored him with tears, with a broken heart filled with compassion and disillusionment—that she must return immediately to her homeland.

She was in a strange land and the harsh laws of that land suddenly had played ruthlessly and cruelly into her life. It seemed, "I'm going home!" she cried almost by herself. And her mind was so definitely made up that there were no words of dissuasion to which she would listen. She packed up her personal things and the next morning her husband took her to Klamath Falls where she boarded a plane for Peru via Houston, Texas. So—the colorful little lady whom everyone had learned to like, is gone from our midst like the "will o' the wisp." Will she return?

It is understood that the only way she can gain permanent residence in the USA is to wait in line on the immigrants exchange quota basis but in the present time it seems that this country has no exchange quota on immigrants set up with Peru. The picture, therefore, looks gloomy for these newly wedded. It is a wonder Pat has that "woe-begone" feeling in the pit of his stomach—wouldn't you?

So sorry! My face blushes crimson. Hope it will scare Walter King Jr. off me when next we meet for "having" fun. Pat is a W-O-W-I-E! It was supposed to have been Walter Robert Junior Jr. for whom a call show was given. They call him Bobby to avoid confusion. All this I should have known but there was a "low amp plug" on this end. I trust there was no serious damage from back fire on the other.

Cat fishing isn't nearly so good down on the tributaries of Pit River as the squirrel shootin' is up at the Sanford ranch to which the following early fishermen came: O. Johnson, who was the first person in 1952 to buy a California fishing license. George Converse was second and Clayton Neilson was third. Clayton, by the way, is back in the Lakeview Hospital where he is recovering from a leg removed in Portland some time back. Ulcers! That's a tough one and he has our sympathies. But along with these other nimrods, he did get to go fishing a day or two. The catches, however, were poor!

Rev. Eugene Barrow went too. He was the first to get a license out of state license for California and the first to purchase an Oregon resident combination hunting and fishing license in 1952.

All of which reminds us that the old-time word for Monday Cook is the one Verle Cook found back in '46 when he was helping his Uncle Lute Miller with the farm work down on his ranch that spring. The ranch, incidentally, is now owned by Jimmy McDonald Jr.

Now this hunting tag is so different. It is a round flat piece of aluminum with the number 32,434, expiration date of June 30, 1952, State of California. Verle brought it up and we straightened it out—still somewhat crinkly it is—but we put it on display inside an old shoe box. This case was used to protect from out flying store building in '49 so it is still in use with the ancient tag still stuck inside it with a strip of scotch tape—a relic inside a relic.

The PTA will hold a big bazaar this coming Friday evening, Feb. 29, built around the idea of a country store. Plans are pretty well laid to make this event outstanding in variety and uniqueness. It will include a raffle, an auction sale, as well as a luncheon, fish pond, cake walk and a fancy work counter. There will also be prizes and other attractions. The store will simulate a big day special with many items for sale. Free suckers will be given away to children who have their parents or a guardian with them.

There will be fun for everyone with something for the hot dinner lunches and other needs in the betterment of the school.

Earl Butler underwent major surgery for double hernia at the Lakeview Hospital last Thursday morning, Feb. 21. He was on the operating table about four hours and has been a pretty sick man. Much of his trouble stemmed from a fall off a hay stack he suffered a few years ago which caused complications in the present case. It was learned from his brother, Lawrence. The last report were that he was getting along pretty well with average speed of recovery from such ordeals.

The deceased is the father of Assistant Forest Ranger Clarence E. McCulley of the Buck Creek Ranger station.

As it happened once before this year, again the correspondent has reported the illness of a person who has passed away before the publication of the item. Ernest Call, father of Mrs. Kermit Keyser, passed away in California a few days ago. Keyser and the two older girls in the family drove down for final rites and to bring Mrs. Keyser, Marianne and Kathleen home.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Swanson and children of Collier Park (after recovering from a siege of flu) took a short trip to visit at their former home in Hillsboro, Ore. On Monday night a fire broke out in the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Burdick and children. The kitchen and one bedroom were burned badly. The remainder of the house suffered smoke damage.

Ray Giesner, owner of the building, reported that repairs would be started at once. The Burdick children were home alone when the fire broke out about 7:20.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Avila are parents of a fourth son born last week at Klamath Valley Hospital. The family also has two little girls, Mrs. Rena Gibbons is the maternal grandmother of the new arrival.

Margaret Mollitor, Mrs. Sam Rife and Mrs. Les Hoback were all three down with the flu for part of this week. Substitutes took their places on the school faculty. On Thursday afternoon, Valent-time's Day, each of the first eight grades had an hour's party at school. Beautiful Valentine boxes were opened and innumerable val-and on or two games played.

The annual Eastern Star Valentine card party was held on Wednesday night at the activity room behind the grade school. The room entines given, refreshments served had been very cleverly decorated with Mrs. Joseph Mercer, and Mrs. Dwight Kircher in charge.

Three out of four winners for Fort Klamath people, Gus Page took first for canasta, Gene Page for pinocle, Mrs. Harry Whiting—bridge, and Mrs. J. Q. Buell the winner of the special award.

Mrs. Vernon Norval took charge of prizes. Mrs. Harney Zeller was refreshments chairman.

Workmen on Friday replaced the all smokestack on the brick flue of the grade school gym. It blew over a week ago in one of the bad storms and the building had been unheated for the past few days.
