

City Council Studies Plan For Paving Of Streets In Area; Maintenance Eyed

Residents of the unpaved portion of Worden street are planning to petition the City Council to start a paving project there, and the City feels bound to do something about the muddy, sinkhole block between Carlisle and Addison.

The City owns all the property in that block, including Fairview Park, with the exception of a single lot.

Last night several property owners of the street appeared before the Council and asked for some financial help in putting gravel on that part of the street, and also to inquire about the cost and procedure of instituting an improvement unit for the five-block unpaved portion of the street.

PLANS
Ed Jolly, 2046 Worden, who acted as spokesman for the group said he would try to get the names of 10 property owners on a petition by next Monday, asking the improvement unit be started. In the meantime, Mayor Bob Thompson promised, the City will try to improve the bad block. It was the opinion of the Council that if property owners want a paving project, the City should try to dig up money for paving alongside its own property.

A start was made last night on two other improvement projects, Lawrence and Painter from Pacific Terrace to the alley next to Elorado. City Engineer Taxi Thomas estimated the Lawrence Street job will cost $8,451 and Painter $7,376, with sidewalks an extra $2 a linear foot.

The Chicago Pump Company, Chicago, was low bidder on a compressor (machine to pulverize residue at the sewage disposal plant). That company's bid was $5,187, with delivery promised in 16 to 18 weeks. Klamath Machine Company bid $6,100.77, delivery in eight months. The bids were turned over to the Street Committee for study.

The Council last night adopted an ordinance agreeing to allow the Ad-o-Meter Corporation to install 5x7 advertising placards on the City's 746 parking meters. The City is supposed to get 60 cents a month per meter from the advertising.

ROUTINE
Otherwise, last night's Council session was routine.

Building permits totaling $26,000 were allowed. The largest, $15,000, was for remodeling the 9th and Klamath building recently bought by Klamath Production Credit Association. One for $10,000 was for a new residence at 2145 Darrow, and one for $1,000 for re-roofing on the Klamath Falls Creamery building.

City Engineer Thomas was given permission to try an emulsified asphalt mix for dust-coating of unpaved streets this summer, instead of the fuel oil used in the past. The asphalt palliative is supposed to be considerably cheaper and cleaner.

Bob Rhodes, auctioneer, asked permission to hold a farm machinery auction in a hangar at the airport, and was told to see what the Airport Commission thinks of the idea.

City Attorney Henry Perkins was authorized to hire some help in locating various property owners regarding the Eldorado Heights replatting program.

Extravaganza Huge Success

MALIN—The fourth annual Extravaganza, sponsored by the Malin Mariners, played to a packed house on both nights it was shown at the Broadway Theater. Tickets were sold out in advance of both shows.

Theme of this year's show was "showboat" and was well received by the audience. Extremely fine talent was used in the various numbers, which represented folk visiting the showboat, that was anchored to shore.

Fifty five persons took part in the extravaganza and included singing, musical talent and dancing. One of the best received acts was the girls chorus with participants from Merrill, Malin, Bonanza and Tulicake. Costuming in all acts was beautiful and in keeping with the showboat theme.

Musical background was played by Mary Jane Fayr on the electric organ, which the Mariners Club was fortunate to have loaned to them by the Kyle Morgan Piano Company.

The entire show was directed by Mrs. Florence Wilson with choreography and dance directing under the supervision of Mrs. Rubye Kujac and singing instruction in charge of Mrs. Eileen Herringshaw.

The extravaganza will be held again this Friday night, March 7, at the Mills Auditorium in Klamath Falls.

Mobilization Chief Asks Price Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mobilization Chief Charles E. Wilson urged Congress Tuesday to extend price and wage controls for two years.

"We cannot hold back inflation unless we hold down prices," Wilson told the Senate Banking Committee, adding that "conversely, we cannot hold down prices unless we hold the wage line."

Wilson told the senators there has been "some easing" of shortages in such materials as copper and aluminum but he said it is still too early to know for certain whether this "easing" will continue.

At the same time the Defense Production Administration announced it will allot 30 million more pounds of aluminum and up to 25 million additional pounds of copper to civilian industries during June.

DPA Boss Manly Fleischmann said the agency will decide this week which industries should get the metals.

The allocation was made possible, he said, because of the return of surplus metal by the military and because orders of some companies were not as high as expected.

The mobilization boss was the kickoff witness at the Senate opened public hearings to decide whether or not to extend the Defense Production Act, which authorizes price and wage controls.

The act expires at midnight June 30. If Congress doesn't extend it, the act's price and wage controls would be ended.

Wilson said "no present easing of a shortage here or there, no decrease in some prices, should make us throw away the keys to our security."

Wilson endorsed President Truman's appeal to wipe out the Capehart Amendment—which permits manufacturers to pass their post-Korea cost increases on to the public—and the Herlong Amendment, which guarantees merchants their margins over cost.

These amendments were tacked onto the act when it was passed last year.

The Banking Committee expects to hear about 75 witnesses. Some members say they expect Congress to vote to continue controls, but that there'll be some loosening of regulations.

All Presidential Candidates Certain Of Victory As New Hampshire Primary Nears

By The Associated Press
The presidential campaign of the three top Republican hopefuls was attuned Tuesday to the theme, "I can win no matter what anybody says."

Escape List About Normal

SALEM (AP)—Twenty-two prisoners have escaped from the Oregon State Penitentiary since Warden Virgil O'Malley took over 5 1/2 months ago.

That's about average, O'Malley said, because 21 escaped in the 5 1/2 months before O'Malley came here from the California prison system.

Of the 22 escapees, 20 were trustees who walked away.

O'Malley pointed out that the prison now has 200 trustees, or double the number of trustees before he came to Salem.

Part of the increase in the number of trustees was caused by establishing the forest camp in the Tillamook Burn. This camp is manned by 50 trustees.

Mac Still Wants Out

NEW YORK (AP)—Gen. MacArthur has asked the man who filed his name in Oregon's Republican Presidential Primary to withdraw it.

An aide said Tuesday the telegraphed request had gone to F. E. Epton, who filed the petition without MacArthur's consent.

Attorney General George Neuner of Oregon ruled Monday that Gen. MacArthur could not withdraw.

He followed a 1916 ruling by the state supreme court that a candidate cannot withdraw his name once it has been filed by petitions bearing signatures of 1,000 voters.

MacArthur's aide said it was the understanding at the General's office that the person who filed the petition could withdraw it.

SEUL GROWS
SEUL, Korea (AP)—Despite a ban on returning to war-torn Seoul and a blockade at every entrance, the population has grown from 150,000 to nearly 800,000 since Allied troops recaptured the city a year ago. Seoul's pre-war population was 1,500,000.

Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, the most active Democratic candidate, pitched his speeches to the much the same key.

The candidates aimed their political oratory at New Hampshire's voters, who hold the nation's first 1952 Presidential preferential primary next Tuesday.

On the Republican side, former Minnesota Gov. Harold Stassen and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's campaign manager, Sen. Lodge of Massachusetts already were on the scene. Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio was due Thursday.
