4-H takes to the air every Saturday morning at 10:30 on KFLW.

There are 80 adults in Klamath County actively engaged in leading 4-H clubs. They're men and women interested in boys and girls, anxious to help them develop skills that will be helpful in adult life, and to develop character as they do project work. 4-H leaders meet with the club for 1 hour every week or perhaps 2-4 hours 1 day a month. They put in extra time to attend training meetings, run the spring and fall fairs, help with 4-H camp and summer school.

Most men leaders are parents of club age youngsters, but some clubs are led by younger folks or some by parents whose youngsters have outgrown the program. All who lead have a common bond. They are interested in boys and girls and willing to take time to work with the boys and girls in their neighborhood.

Two leaders who have been in the program for a long time are Mrs. Ray Loosley of Ft. Klamath and Rex High of Olene.

Rex High of Olene has been a 4-H club leader for 15 years. He started back in 1937 with 5 members in a weed club. This year he has 16 members in the Olene Dairy Club and sixteen beef members in the Olene Buckaroos. He's had a busy time those 15 years, for he's led 1 or 2 clubs, averaging 10 members per club, and every year has completed a year's work. Olene clubs have made floats for the 4th of July Parade and been exhibitors at county and state fairs, Pacific International Livestock and at the Coy Palace.

Looking at the record, one finds that 1937 was the year that Son Taylor started his club work too. He was in club work 7 years and took beef, garden, potatoes, and clover projects. Taylor's grown now. He and his wife live in the family place and have youngsters of their own (not old enough to be club members). And his Dad is still helping the boys and girls of Poe Valley-Olene to learn the fine points of raising and exhibiting show stock. It's taken a lot of Sunday afternoons in 15 years to help 155 youngsters develop their interest in livestock. Co, course it helped to have the fine fine fine interested in the club members and the parents of Poe Valley-Olene area. By their interest they have made the job more rewarding to Mr. and Mrs. High.

Rex is past president of the 4-H Leaders' Association, and active in Grange and other community activities.

Winner of the annual State 4-H Club News Reporters' Contest is Betty Brandejeck, 17 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Brandejeck of Henley. Last year Betty reported the doings of the Henley Beef Club led by Stanley Mastien. She had more than 50 inches of printed copy. In the contest, Betty submitted a fine copy showing original copy plus the printed stories. Judging was based on quality of the story, number of inches, neatness and the form of the original copy.

Betty has belonged to the beef club for 8 years and showed animals at the Klamath fall show as well as at P.I., but that's just one portion of Betty's club work. Other projects she has carried out are 4 years of garden, 6 years of sheep, 4 years of dairy, 4 years of clothing, 3 years of swine, and 1 each of poultry and room improvement projects.

Although beef is the only project she is carrying at the present time, Betty still has sheep, though not enrolled in the sheep club—and now and then, you might find her gardening or making clothes for school.

For winning the news contest, Betty will receive a $20 scholarship to 4-H summer school. Runners-up in the contest were Rose Lucht, 14 Wolalla, and Joanna Johnson, 13, Clatskanie.

new and it was helping me a great deal.

In my third year of 4-H I decided that as I was saving my money I might as well put it into something worthwhile. I've always dreamed of having a herd of registered Hereford cattle and so I decided to get me a few head. I purchased from Mr. Horton two real nice cows that were to have calves in the spring. In the spring one had a better calf and the other a bull. But then that summer I had a little bad luck, my cow that had the bull calf got into dad's clover and blasted and died as we weren't there to save her. I felt pretty bad, but I put my little bull calf on a nurse cow and now he is my herd bull and he has proved to be a very nice little bull.

That fall I showed another 4-H calf at the show and the money I got from him I bought another cow from T. W. Jones. She had a bull calf that spring but he wasn't very good, not even to keep for a club calf. I just sold him as a fat steer. My other cow I got from Mr. Horton lost her calf. It was born dead. So you see progress was not made very fast. I was beginning to kind of lose interest in them, but with encouragement from the folks and everyone I kept it up.

The next year I showed the Grand Champion of the Livestock show. I made a lot of interest in them, but with encouragement from the folks and everyone I kept it up.

Quotes From Filmland on Its Methods and Manners

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — On the record: Katherine Hepburn on love: "It is plain women, like me, who know about love. The beautiful are usually too busy being fascinating."

Errol Flynn, on how to keep young: "I'm on a rigid diet. I drink steadily, observe late hours, eat nothing that's the least bit nutritive and think of women constantly."

Dianna Lynn, after invading New York television: "On my first big television show they wanted me to strip down to a 1926 bathing suit—for laughs. I did it—for $3000."

Mickey Rooney growing at a report that he and Martha Vickers will reconcile: "Sure, I'd like to, but why build up a something that hasn't happened? Women are funny about things like that."

"It didn't help me with Martha. If people will only leave us alone, we may work things out. If we don't, then I can always say that I tried."

Hedy Lamarr, to a visiting British newsmag: "I have been successful, rich, famous, but not always happy. As a beautiful film star, one is always placed on a pedestal. It is difficult to balance there comfortably."

BOOST FOR NEW YORK
Anthony Quinn, about Hollywood vs. New York as a place to live: "It gets uncomfortable in Hollywood. People go into competition to have the fanciest homes and cars and swimming pools. You don't have this in New York. There's a sense of everybody being equal and it's the social divisions of Hollywood that drive you crazy."

The other day I wanted to buy a used car. "The salesman said, 'You can't do that, Mr. Quinn, you're a movie star, you've got to keep up the big front!'"

Katy Jurado, the Mexican flame-thrower on her resemblance to Dorothy Lamour: "When I was in school people call me 'Dorothee Lamour.' I think the type is a real the same, no? But I get mad. I say no, I don't want people make comparison with ees L a m o u r. I am Katy Jurado, no one else."

down displays, and plan some community service, and take part in group and C.I. programs. One of the folks that helped to build this reputation is Mrs. Ray Loosley, leader of the Kitchen Pals Cooking club and has led gardening and canning as well as cooking clubs.

The whole Loosley family has been interested in club work for quite awhile. When you add the years of club work done by the six children it totals 22 years with 20 projects. Mr. Loosley, led an agricultural club one year, and daughter Joan led a clothing club. Joan's away at college now, and the other Loosleys are grown and have left home, but Mrs. Loosley likes to remember the fine experiences her children had in club work. Besides learning about sewing, cooking, canning, gardening, poultry, and dairy animals, her youngsters took part in many special events. They attended 4-H summer school at Corvallis, 4-H camp, won trips to state fair, and P.I. As a parent she feels that the club experience helped her youngsters prepare for adult responsibilities. Perhaps that's one reason she continues as a club leader, working with other peoples' children.

Anybody Seen A Stray Barn ?

CUMBERLAND, Md. (U) — Anybody seen a stray barn? One's missing. It was 40 by 50 feet. With a metal roof. And valued at $1,500.

Eighteen months ago it stood on a windy hill, big as life, across the state in West Virginia. It was on the farm of Dr. P. L. Baker.

Dr. Baker died, and none of his heirs owned the 103-acre place. It remained idle until last week, when it was sold to settle his estate.

During the sale, someone remarked that it had a nice barn up on the hill. A young lad standing by shook his head: "No barn," he said flatly.

A quick check by the buyers and sellers proved him right. No barn. State police were called in. No trace of anything except the stone foundation. And no sign of its being carted away.

The farm's buyer, Dr. Thomas Beck, is still looking for his barn. Seen a stray barn around?

LINDA, THE GREAT
Director Stuart Heisler, on Linda Darnell's junket to Jamaica for "Saturday Island": "Linda took sharks, heat, insects, a hurricane and yellow jaundice without a murmur. She's the gam cat trouper I've ever directed."

George Montgomery, on women's clothes: "I'm not very style-conscious—any dress is fine if a girl looks pretty in it."

Director John Brahm, explaining Warner's reason for filming "The Miracle of Our Lady of Fatima": "The need for comfort and faith is incredible in the world today. This story is done out of the need of people for faith. We want to show them what faith can do."

"We're not worried about religion as a boniface subject. People will see this picture because it answers a deep need."

Piper Laurie, talking out loud about chesecake in Korea: "You go into tents and barracks and see your pictures stuck up on walls. It's a kick. I'm going to ask the studio to let me do more pin-up pictures for the boys."

Lana Turner and Betty Grable: "No, I didn't see any pictures of Lana and Betty in the tents, but maybe I didn't go into the right tents."

"I saw a lot of pin-up art of Jane Powell and Marilyn Monroe—mostly Marilyn Monroe."

IWA Readies Strike Votes

PORTLAND (U) — The Pacific Northwest's 50,000 CIO woodworkers will get strike ballots next week, one of the customary preliminaries in the annual contract negotiations.

A. F. Hartung, union president, said the ballots would be counted April 17 and a meeting the next day would map whatever action is to be taken.

Contract negotiations have been under way and the IWA reported talks "at a standstill" with groups representing some 250 operations. Negotiations still are continuing with 350 other operations, the union reported.

Among IWA demands this year are: 20-cent hourly wage boost, vacation liberalization, shift differential pay, three additional paid holidays, rest periods for loggers, minimum crews on power saws and other contract changes.

My 4-H club work started in 1945 with a beef calf my Grandfather gave me. I had a lot to learn in feeding him, but with the help of my folks, I made it. That year I didn't do bad for my first year so I saved my money and got another 4-H calf for the next year. He was better and all along I seemed to learn quite a bit more. Each year I learned something
