

Oregon Pen Prisoners To Stage Con-Glomerations Show To Help Heart Fund

By PAUL W. HARVEY, JR.
SALEM (AP) — Sixty Oregon State Penitentiary convicts, directed by three prisoners with a wealth of professional experience, are busy rehearsing for "Con-Glomerations of 1952," a show they'll present to the public for the benefit of the Heart Fund.

The public will see it in the 1,200-seat prison dining hall April 18 to 26.

The convicts decided themselves they wanted to help the Heart Fund, noting that the fund was short of its quota in Oregon.

A musical comedy, "Short Detour," will be the main feature, but there also will be a convict playing two trumpets at once, a professional rope spinner, a convict who impersonates motors with his throat, adagio dancers, square dancers, vocal quartet, a violinist, mountain music, and a one-armed convict who's an expert on the bull fiddle and the bass drum.

Music will be provided by the 17-piece prison band, a five-piece Dixieland jazz band, and a six-piece Western band.

The three men running the show are all California professionals who are prison trustees.

Mr. 20116, who doesn't want his name used because he has some California friends who don't know he's in the Oregon prison, wrote the show. He's 36 years old, has been a professional actor on the stage and in movie bit parts, and also is an architectural engineer. He directs the show.

Seth Schwartz, 30, runs the musical end. He's a good baritone and had had lots of voice training.

The third man is Fred Peppie, 43, prison musical director who runs the band. He has played in orchestras most of his life.

"Schwartz wrote a song, 'It's No Dream,' for the show. The convicts think it will be a hit. Schwartz is trying to sell it and if he does, he'll give half the profits to the Heart Fund.

Bob Neally, a 45-year-old professional musician who can play any reed or string instrument, also wrote a song for the show. It is called "There's Too Many Clouds in the Sky," and the directors think it might be a hit, too.

Every customer will get a two-way ticket. He'll use half the ticket to get in to the prison, and the other half to get out after the show.

Mr. 20116 explained there might be some last-minute changes in the show "because we can't tell when some member of the cast might decide to go away on a vacation or might get caught making arms." Pruno is a taboo alcoholic beverage. The penalty for making it inside the walls is banishment to isolation.

The men, with Guard Lt. Lloyd Francis solving their tougher problems, are very enthusiastic about their show. They rehearse three or four nights a week, using only their own recreation time. The Heart Fund is paying all expenses.

Mr. 20116 says the men in the cast get a lot of benefit, too, because "they forget their troubles and jealousies."

The Heart Fund is handling all ticket sales, so don't call the prison to buy tickets.

The prison guards will donate their services, as it will take many guards to get the big crowds in and out of the prison. Every visitor will be counted going in and out.

All convicts except those in the show will be locked in their cells while the show is going on. That should make it impossible for a convict to mingle with the crowds and thus get outside the walls.

McGrath To Pace Probers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General McGrath said Friday he would be "most happy" to go before the House Judiciary Committee, "in order to discuss matters relating to the general administration of the Department of Justice."

The committee promptly fixed next Wednesday for McGrath's appearance.

The Justice Department in a brief formal statement said McGrath had accepted the invitation to discuss the Justice Department which he heads.

The committee, in extending the invitation to McGrath last Tuesday, voted also to ask President Truman for the right to look at income tax returns of McGrath and 19 other unnamed top officials in his department.

The Justice Department's brief statement Friday did not indicate whether or not the income tax inquiry would come up at the committee hearing.

Harold E. Stassen, former governor of Minnesota and a candidate for the Republican nomination for president, has said McGrath became a millionaire since taking office.

McGrath replied that he was "complimented" by "candidate" Stassen's remark. He did not discuss the question beyond that.

Pay Raise Due For Army Men

WASHINGTON (AP) — Everybody in uniform—from boot private to five-star general—probably will get a pay raise before Congress quits.

The exact amounts and the date it will begin are questions no one can answer just now.

"But I'm pretty certain that we'll pass a bill," Chairman Russell (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee told a reporter.

Democratic senators discussed the pay bill at a closed door conference Friday and Russell reported afterwards that they appeared to "strongly favor" the Senate measure rather than a House-passed bill. The group agreed to Senate consideration of the legislation at the earliest possible time.

Majority Leader McFarland (D-Ariz.), said the military pay bill is next on his list, as soon as the Senate completes action on a measure dealing with submerged oil-bearing coastal lands.

Shirts To Go To Solons

SALEM (AP) — The 22 directors of the Oregon Farm Bureau Federation announced Friday they would mail their shirts to Oregon's congressional delegation as a protest against high taxes.

The shirts are to be mailed late Friday, with this note attached: "You are taking about everything we have in taxes except my shirt, and you might as well have that, too."

The directors said the move started in the California Farm Bureau Federation, and is spreading throughout the country.

Marshall Swearingen, president of the Oregon Farm Bureau Federation, said: "This is not a gag. It's an appeal to Congress to use statesmanship in spending the taxpayers' dollars."

Pinballs Win In Portland

PORTLAND (AP) — No pinball pledges signed by Portland tavern operators were rescinded by the city council Friday.

Commissioners Ormond B. Bean, William A. Bowes and Fred L. Peterson voted to let the signers put the machines back in their business establishments. Mayor Dorothy McCullough Lee and Commissioner J. E. Bennett opposed the action.

Last year the council demanded that applicants for license renewal sign pledges they would remove the pinball machines. But the Oregon Liquor Commission refused to deny licenses on the pinball basis, and some taverns kept them.

Commissioner Bean argued that, as a result, the pledge was unfair to others and Bowes and Peterson agreed.
