State Fudges On Hiring Of Jap Tax Man

SALEM OF — The Oregon State Tax Commission refused to hire an American-born Japanese man, and is being accused by the State Labor Department of violating the state's own fair employment practices law.
State Labor Commissioner W. E.
Kimsey, who administers the law that was passed in 1949, said it is the first case in which the state government has been found violating its own FEPC law.
It all happened during Brotherhood Week, too.
The law prohibits racial or religious discrimination in hiring employes. SALEM OF - The Oregon State

The Tax Commission, Kinsey said, claimed it passed over the Japanese because the public wouldn't approve dealing with a man of his race. Kimsey advised the commission it is violating the FEPC law, and asked it to comply in the future.

Kimsey has take no action yet. The next time the commission wants to hire an examiner, the name of the Japanese again will head the Civil Service list.

"We expect state departments, above all other employers, to comply with the FEPC law." Kimsey said. "The state departments must set an example for private employers and labor unions.

* MARKETS and FINANCIAL Grazing Land Plays Big Part In Development Of Conservation Districts

By HALE SCARBROUGH One of the federal agencies involved in the Langell Valley pilot soil conservation district, as related earlier, is the Bureau of Land Management, a branch of the Department of Interior. The bureau administers what is called the Bonanza grazing unit, about 150,000 acres of land lying in the Southern part of the district between the agricultural portion of the valley and the higher elevations of the Fremont National Forest.

Several thousand head of cattle

Several thousand head of cattle and sheep graze on land under BLM management, by permit, and in addition thousands of the acres in addition thousands of the acres are timbered with merchantable pine and also with large stands of considerably less valuable juniper. The grazing lands, sloping into the farming lands, exercise a profound effect upon the whole watershed.

Officers of the Langell Valley pilot district have outlined a suggested program of conservation and improvement they would like to see put into operation by the Bureau of Land Management.

The Bonanza grazing unit con-Bureau of Land Management.

The Bonanza grazing unit contains something over 95,000 acres of vacant public domain, over 15,000 acres of land withdrawn from the public domain by the Bureau of Reclamation and other agencies, some 36,000 acres of privately owned property and 2,329 acres owned by the State of Oregon.

Merchantable yellow pine on 14,925 acres at the present time in worth about $2,654,000 and the BLM annual revenue from timber is just $22,500 approximately. Juniper on the land is figured at a value of $4 an acre for firewood and posta, a total of around $296,000.

management.

In other words, BLM should institute practices to get better stands of grasses for grazing, so the land will afford forage for more animals, thereby obtaining more return from grazing fees.

Also, it should manage the timber resource better, increase the use of mature and over-ripe timber, reduce losses to insects, disease, lire and windfall, control erosion and get its timber in that area on a sustained yield basis, to raise the value of the stand and returns from timber sales.

A needed step toward making the area accessible for the other resource development work is road building. It is being recommended that BLM put in 35 miles of all-weather roads plus 25 miles of secondary roads, and reconstruction of about 30 miles of roads already there.

An accurate inventory of the timber resource also is needed to get tablish an intensive forest manage-ment program.

Improvement of the grazing re-source can be made by saving the water as high up as possible, re-seeding, more studied grazing use and the like, and to accomplish this betterment of the grazing land these measures are suggested:

A number of small detention and check dams to control guily ero-sion; 23 water spreader structures to restore better than 8,000 acres of range meadow and also to prosion; 23 water spreader structures to restore better than 8,000 acres of range meadow and also to provide water for liveatock; development of 15 existing springs; about 25 miles of fence to protect thousands of acres of land which could be reseeded; and control of livestock pests and disease, of noxious and predators, and fire control. Sagebrush and other worthless growth covers large tracts in the Bonanza grazing unit, and the Langell Valley pilot district plan calls for getting rid of that commodity by burning, spraying or mechanical means to give native grasses a chance to make a stand.

Top Woman To Be Named

Klamath County's "Woman of the Year" is to be named tomostown night at the Soroptimist Club's annual Award Banquet. The event is to be at the Willard Hotel, 7 p.m. The banquet is to be a husband-and-wife event. Besides Soroptimists, heads of the various men's aervice clubs and other special guests have been invited.

L'ast year's "Woman of the Year" was Mrs. R. Parcher Ellingson. She was selected for her outstanding work with youth organizations.

Identity of the woman selected for the honor is not announced until the presentation is made at the banquet. The woman must be a non-member of Soroptimist.

At the banquet tomorrow evening, Mrs. Robert O'Dell is to make a talk on "Business and Professional Women in the Horse and Buggy Days."

Solos and duets are to be offered by Ruby Gehring and Gerry Igle, with Mrs. George McIntyre directing and accompanying.

WASHINGTON (P)—Bullet-proof windows have been installed in the refurnished White House, the Washington Post said Thursday.

The President moves back to the 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. address on his arrival from Key West, Fla., after more than three years in Blair House.

Secret Service officials declined to comment on the bullet proof windows.

It was while the Trumans were living in Blair House in 1950 that an attempt was made on the President's life. His family was uningured but a guard and one of the two assassins were killed.
