

Pilot Guides Flaming Airliner To Safe Landing In Field, Passengers OK

HUGGTON, Kas. (AP)—Two pilots guided a flaming airliner with 50 persons aboard to a perfect landing in a wheat field Wednesday, then brushed off the feat as an ordinary job.

Europeans Talk Money, Trade Plans

PARIS (AP)—Finance and foreign ministers from 18 nations gathered here Thursday to discuss Western Europe's money and trade problems in the face of mounting rearmament.

Help Given Sick Friend

PAW PAW, Mich. (AP)—The big sale at the O'Grady brothers clothing store is nearly over and it has been a whopping success thanks to the good salesmanship of competitors.

Cops Chase Speeding Car

PORTLAND (AP)—Cars raced at a hair-raising clip through downtown Portland Wednesday, leaving a trail of bashed fenders and a broken barricade, before police finally nabbed two men.

Labor Election Set For Firm

WASHINGTON (AP)—Labor elections will be held within the next month at the logging camp and the Brookings plant of the Brookings, Ore., Plywood Corp.

"The only sensible thing to do was land."

Minutes after the 45 passengers and five crew members scurried out, flames consumed almost the entire plane.

The passengers included Dr. George H. Lago of Portland, Ore., and Maurice E. Heimer of Seattle.

Neither Stanford nor copilot John Beakley, both of Dallas, Tex., would take credit for an extraordinary job. They had little to say.

"I was sitting on the right side about two seats back of the wing when I noticed fire around the right inboard engine. I called the stewardesses and they went forward to tell the captain (Stanford)."

"He came back, took one quick look and told us to fasten our safety belts. Then he barked the plane to put the stress on the opposite wing and started down."

"About halfway down the motor fell off."

"No one talked at all. I guess they were too scared, just like I was."

Bittes said the passengers "could feel the heat of the flames as we came into the wheat field."

The injured passenger was Miss Jesse Watts, Greensboro, N. C., who skinned a leg sliding down a rope.

The plane was enroute from Denver to Oklahoma City.

The O'Grady store, an institution here for half a century never disposed of any old goods.

Ed O'Grady died a few years ago. The surviving brother, James, carried on the business. But he became ill recently.

The store was full of old clothing—some of it 40 years old and in the antique class.

James O'Grady had to go to a convalescent home and he had no chance to take inventory or clean out the stock.

Other merchants heard of his plight. They all pitched in together and took inventory and put the goods on sale.

The demand was surprising. Western Michigan College bought a lot of old-fashioned clothing for its dramatic department. Some people made purchases for keepsakes.

The merchants figure they have crossed a sum two and a half times the highest offer for the complete stock.

One of the salesmen was asked how business went in his own store during the O'Grady sale.

"Business has been lousy," he said. "Then he added with a grin: 'But we sure put it over for old Jim, didn't we?'"
