

Envoy To Russia Named

WASHINGTON (AP) — Diplomat George F. Kennan one of the authors of America's stop-Russia policy, was sworn in Wednesday as ambassador to Moscow. He promised to work for an easing of tensions between the Communist and Western worlds and "the improvement of the international atmosphere."

"Those are objectives which seem to me urgently desirable and I see no reason why they should not be within the realm of possibility, if the desire is reciprocated," he said in a prepared statement.

Kennan is one of the administration's most trusted advisers on relations with the Soviet Union. He speaks the language fluently and will be the first American ambassador capable of talking with Generalissimo Stalin in his own tongue. There has been speculation that Kennan's assignment to the post was prompted in part by a feeling that if the Soviets did show signs of wanting to establish better relations with countries outside the Iron Curtain this government should have on hand a man competent to read the signs quickly and accurately.

Elderly Flier Praises Jets

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — "It's wonderful," said 89-year-old James W. Monte, "Smooth as silk."

Monte, the nation's oldest licensed pilot, was commenting on his first ride in a jet plane. He's flown just about everything else and riding a jet was his dearest wish.

He went aloft Tuesday with a Marine officer at the controls, and was allowed to handle the two-place trainer for awhile.

"Wish I could fly one alone," he said. "They are fast as lightning on a finger-tip touch. I'll bet I could fly one alone, too."

Dead Man Raised

NO—NO—Lord, do not open the grave for Lazarus has been dead four days already and by now he is in decay—the awful smell.
