Eugene Snarled By Phone Time

EUGENE (AP) — Eugene is on standard time. When residents are in doubt about it, they can dial for the telephone company's free "what time is it" service. Trouble is, when they dial they get hooked up with the Portland recording and out comes the answer in daylight time.

Residents have been asked by the local company to subtract one hour from the time they get. That is supposed to do it.

Anti-Stoppage Law Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation aimed to assure continued operation of defense vital industries was introduced Wednesday by Rep. Smith (D-Va.)

It provides for appointment of receivers for both companies and unions if necessary to avoid a shut down due to a labor dispute.

Smith's proposal was one of several moves touched off in Congress by the steel strike and a federal judge's decision that President Truman had no lawful power to seize the steel mills.

One group was talking of giving the President seizure power.

Another was out to make the judge's ruling "absolutely air tight on a much broader scale" as Sen. Maybank (D-S.C.) phrased it.

SUPPORT
Smith's plan was introduced as an amendment to the Selective Service Act and was referred to the House Armed Services Committee. It reportedly has strong backing there.

The legislation contemplates that it would come into operation only when emergency procedures of the Taft-Hartley labor law was exhausted.

The Taft-Hartley act permits the government to enjoin threatened strikes, which would create a national emergency by obtaining injunctions that can last a maximum of 60 days.

It makes no provisions for operations beyond that period.

Smith's proposal provides that if a labor dispute has not been settled when the injunction expires, the court shall appoint receivers for both the company and the union involved and enjoin both sides from interfering with the continued operation of the industry.

Court May Up Damages

SALEM (AP) — The Oregon Supreme Court decided Wednesday it has authority to increase the amount of damages awarded by a lower court.

The high court many times has reduced damages awarded by a circuit court, but Wednesday's case is the first within memory of Supreme Court cronies that it has increased damages.

Mrs. Mildred Snyder, struck by an automobile while crossing a street in Eugene, sued for $8,500 damages against Dale E. Ammerman Jr., driver of the car. She was awarded only $532 to cover her medical expenses, and she appealed.

The Supreme Court awarded her $2,500 besides the $532. The opinion, by Justice Earl C. Latourette, modified the order of Circuit Judge G. F. Skipworth of Lane County.

Other court decisions included: Beattie Jennings, appellant, vs. T. R. Conn and others. Appeal from Lake County. Suit to establish a trust and for an accounting of the estate of C. W. E. Jennings, deceased. Opinion by Justice Latourette. Judge Charles H. Combs, reversed.
