

CEREMONIES FOR INSTALLATION of 1953 officers of the Oregon Federation of Business and Professional Women at the Willard Hotel were impressive and colorful. The charge of responsibility was given by Miss Hazel Palmer, Sedalia, Mo., National Public Affairs Chairman and official representative of the National Federation. State Senator Phil Hitchcock was the speaker. Each guest, numbering nearly 300 delegates and visitors, was presented with a corsage of blossoms from Klamath Falls' gardens, made by a committee assisting Mrs. Coral Sabo.

Christianity To Be Theme Study in USA

With national political parties holding their nominating conventions this summer and the presidential election scheduled for November, the United Church Women of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A. have chosen as their summer and fall emphases, "Seeking Righteousness for the Nation."

From now until October they will be carrying out the theme in eight Regional Assemblies designed to "inform, inspire and train Christian women for the new era in co-operation among the churches" and to help them move their communities and their nation toward Christian objectives.

"Christian women are no longer content to let other forces mould their communities," said Mrs. W. Murdoch MacLeod, general director of the United Church Women, in announcing plans for the nationwide conference.

Nearly 2,000 women who are leaders in their churches and communities are expected to attend regional gatherings.

They will discuss such topics as equality of opportunity, freedom of association and expression, the right to a full and free education and active support of the United Nations, and will seek to develop a blueprint for bringing Christian influence to bear on these problems in their home towns and in the country as a whole.

U.S. Women Make Mark Public Affairs - Politics

The 1952 issue of an annual survey of about 10,000 women are county officials, in municipal government, there is hardly an office which has not been filled at some time by a woman.

The survey also includes a record of women's participation in all Republican National Conventions since 1892 and in official posts and

"This survey," Mrs. Mayes said, "is a factual compilation about women in public office and politics, and reflects the increasing role and interests of women in governmental affairs. More and more women are assuming posts of responsibility and authority, in all categories of government, and making their mark in an impressive fashion."

The survey, Mrs. Mayes said, presents the history and the current status of women's service in the Congress, in the Federal Government, in the foreign service, in state elective and appointive positions, in county and municipal governments and in judicial service.

These major facts report the status of women in public office: Eleven women are in Congress; women are serving overseas in the foreign service; approximately 600,000 women are in Federal government service; about 3000 women hold two state appointive positions; a total of 28 women are in statewide elective positions; there are 235 women in 1952 State legisla-
