

from the SKETCH PAD of LORRAINE JOHNSON

Two weeks ago it was my privilege to be invited to attend the annual meeting of the Oregon Art Alliance held at the Portland Art Museum and to represent the community of Klamath Falls at this meeting.

The Oregon Art Alliance is a voluntary association of organizations in Oregon interested in the development of the arts. Its primary purposes are to provide opportunities to bring those working in the arts together for mutual acquaintance and exchange of information, knowledge and facilities.

Representatives of art associations and art departments of all colleges in Oregon attended and gave short reports of the progress made in the field of art by their groups. Due to the fact that our art group was not a member of the Alliance, I was very surprised and happy to be asked to make a report on the activities of the Klamath Art Association because in other parts of Oregon so much had been heard of what we have been doing in this community.

As I talked with representatives of other art groups, I was very surprised that they seemed to know so much more of our activities and seemed much more interested in our group than the people right here at home.

It was very stimulating to exchange ideas with heads of other art groups and hear of their activities and art programs.

The meeting took the entire day with business sessions and the keynote speech in the morning, luncheon at noon in the beautiful Hirsch gallery amid the paintings of outstanding Oregon artists, and demonstrations in the afternoon. It was a day well spent and one long to remember for its inspiration and good fellowship.

Thomas C. Colt, Director of the Portland Art Museum gave the address of the day in which he announced the gift of the twenty-seven paintings of the Renaissance, presented to the Portland Art Museum by the Samuel H. Kress Foundation. This is one of the most important art events in the history of Oregon and this was the first public announcement of this great gift.

Mr. Colt showed slides and gave a very comprehensive description and interpretation of each painting. Each painting is noteworthy, aesthetically and historically; but the collection has the added value of having been carefully selected, as a group, to add to the viewers' knowledge of the significant changes which occurred in painting between 1300 and 1550 A. D.

The collection will arrive early in June and the opening is scheduled for June 20.

It gave me a great deal of satisfaction to attend a meeting of such great import and find that the work of the Klamath Art Association has been doing in the field of art has not remained unnoticed.

QUOTA CLUB

Ada Spout, new president of Klamath Quota club, was elected delegate to the International convention of Quota, at the noon business meeting held on Monday at the Pelican party room. Alternates chosen for the convention to be held at Coronado, California, in June were Vera Chase, past president, Nadine Colvin, Juanita Nellis, Florence Miller, Anne Mason and Elizabeth Derby.

Also attending from here will be the district governor, Alice Vitus, who will preside over a reception honoring the newly elected president of International.

Several donations of toys and books for the Community Lounge, to amuse the children while their mothers rest, were brought to Monday's luncheon. Helen Majors is in charge of this project.

New committee chairmen appointed for the year include Kitty Hanville, program; Elio Wallace, ways and means; Phyllis Robustelli, aid to hard of hearing; Helen Majors, service and welfare; Vera Chase, legislative; Anna Anderson, call and sunshine; Joy Rolph, publicity; Elizabeth Derby, decorations; Cudula Eells, world affairs, and Hap Lawler, membership.

CRISP-GOOD

A pretty party luncheon salad is made this way. Hollow out a whole tomato and fill with a chicken and Calavo salad mixture. Combine the diced chicken, diced avocado and sliced celery with mayonnaise and a little dash of curry for accent. Serve on crisp greens with a couple of whole ripe olives to add the finished touches to your salad plate.

FORT ROCK

By ROBERTA MCGEE

Yes indeed, there was a big turnout for Grange here in Fort Rock Saturday night, May 10. The meeting was opened with the officers seating drill. After the business meeting, Grange was closed, so that many non-grangers could witness the Lecturer's program which went as follows: Margaret Kaley presented a monologue "Her First Vote," which was very humorous. Nick Klerk read a piece on how to write to your senator in Congress. The Youth committee made its debut that night by presenting the Nightingale Ladies quartet. Did I say ladies? well pardon me! Their chapeaus and dresses were the most original that any mind could have created. Making up the quartet were: Harold Miles, Owen Pitcher, Burton Brown and Fred Kaley. Their songs and comedy kept the audience very much amused.

Here's hoping for many public appearances of the Youth committee in the near future.

The drawing was held and Roy Morehouse was the lucky winner of two ruby glass vases. The second door prize (this may sound like a put up job and it was) went to Mrs. Fred (Marie) Eskelin, who held number 76. When she came forward a surprise was indeed in store for her. Our Master Hazel Ward presented her with a white carnation corsage for being the most loyal and faithful Grange mother and one of the oldest.

Fred was also presented with a white carnation. Then a large box filled with individual gifts from Mrs. Eskelin's many friends, was presented to her.

Everyone sang happy birthday to Mrs. Eskelin who was 76 years young that day. Was she ever surprised.

The program continued after the presentation of the gifts, with Owen Pitcher giving a toast to all mothers. At that time I ask all the mothers to please stand and all the children came to the platform and received a pink or white carnation to present to their mothers. Now let me tell you they were sure surprised also, the children did real well in keeping it a secret. A Tableau, "Only a Mother," with Delores Morehouse and son,

One of Venita Branch's goats had triplets the afternoon of May 12, but two of the triplets didn't live very long due to the fact that they were killed by one of the burro's a few hours after their birth.

A plane landed on the Pitcher ranch here in Fort Rock Sunday evening before dark, on its way to Redmond and decided not to go any farther. It was a small plane and there were two men in it.

Eleanor Derrick reports that her daffodils have bloomed more abundantly this year than they have in the past several years.

Kenny, in the rocking chair, and Helen Parks reading the poem. Jo Gilder and Helen Parks sang Brahms Lullaby.

Mrs. Hughes recited a little poem which was real cute, didn't get the title of it though.

Teresa Ward and Joan Perry read "Somebody's Mother." Jean Kaley recited, "My Mommies Strike," and Jerry Pitcher and Bobby Gilder read "What Matters."

Clinton Perry and Teresa Ward did real well in presenting a monologue of a man and wife getting ready to go out.

After the program everyone went into supper where a birthday cake was presented to Mrs. Eskelin by Roberta Miles and everyone sang happy birthday to Mrs. Eskelin again. The gifts were opened after supper, and there was square dancing.

Mrs. and Mrs. August Eskelin and children and John Eskelin and children of Washington were present for their mothers party. They spent the weekend here and returned home Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Allen, parents of Mrs. D. M. Wilson and her brothers Lee, Lon and Rex and his family spent Mother's Day with the Wilsons. They are from Sandy, Ore.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Hadley were obliged into the Fort Rock Grange May 10.

A family dinner was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. McGee. It was Walter's third birthday on Sunday.

The Youth committee started its first project Sunday, May 11, by working on the Fort Rock Cemetery. They had a picnic lunch afterwards.
