Stocks

NEW YORK — Stock prices advanced fractions to around two points in Tuesday's market. The gains were recorded in a mid-day flurry of demand, and many of them were well maintained, but closing prices were under the day's best in many cases. Chemical and rail issues were prominent in the upturn. Volume was around 1,100,000 shares.

GRAINS

CHICAGO — Grains held around Monday's close during most of Tuesday's board of trade session. There were no new buying incentives, but fairly steady covering by shorts on the decline gave the market a steady close. Most of the trading was in the nature of evening up for the close of the May contract. Some moisture was reported in the Dakotas, and in general all crops were said to be making good progress.

Grass Forum Interest High

"Grass is Gold—For You" will be the subject for discussion by a panel of experts from the Agricultural Committee of the Portland Chamber of Commerce at the regular meeting of the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce, Wednesday, 11:45 a.m. at the Widena Hotel.

The program will be similar to one presented before the Portland Chamber of Commerce Forum on Feb. 11. The panel will consist of Marshall N. Dunn, assistant of the United States National Bank, and long time editor of the Oregon Journal editorial page, as moderator; Herbert M. Peet, special representative of the Secretary of Agriculture, who will discuss the national and regional aspects of grassland development; E. R. Jackman, extension agronomist, Oregon State College, who will cover the Oregon situation; Walter A. Holt, Manager, Pacific International Livestock Exposition, and Chairman of the Portland Chamber's Agricultural Committee will summarize by pointing out the economic opportunity and what it means to the business interests of the state.

To support the arguments of the panel members, there will be a special graphic display of the products of grass and grassland improvement.
