Teachers Bid Life of Ease

A pleasant custom which has grown up in the last few years among Klamath County teachers is that of honoring their members who reach official retirement age.

Mrs. Josephine Penrod and Mrs. Elsie Burton were thus honored with a dinner by their fellow teachers at the cafeteria of the Altamont Junior High School, May 21.

Fred Peterson, former Klamath County school superintendent, master of ceremonies, recalled many incidents in his administration in which Mrs. Penrod and Mrs. Burton were participants. Mr. A. R. Mallard, principal of Fred Peterson Elementary School, and Mr. A. C. Olson, principal of Altamont Junior High School, spoke in praise of the two teachers, and Mr. Loy Barker, former principal of the Chiloquin Elementary school also spoke highly of Mrs. Burton.

Gifts of luggage, foam pillows, a platform rocker and a toaster for a life of ease, and corsages and guest books for remembrance, were presented, and responses were made by Mrs. Burton and Mrs. Penrod.

Eighty teachers and friends attended the dinner, which was arranged by Ellen Kenaup, Mrs. Alice Tomlin and Mrs. Ethel Pankey of Fred Peterson School, and Mrs. Irma Quick, Mrs. Maxine Burritt and Veve Liskey of Altamont Junior High School. Mr. Christine Murray and Mrs. Ottilie Ashley handled the guest books, and the dinner was prepared by Mrs. Allen Bates and Mrs. Otto Glasgow of the Altamont Cafeteria staff, and was served by Altamont Junior High School girls.

FOUND DEAD

The body of Patricia Steele, 34, wealthy Hollywood socialite, was found in a Los Angeles alley. Autopsy surgeon Dr. Victor Cefalu said she died as the result of an illegal operation. Police said she had been dead a number of hours before her body was dragged to the spot where it was discovered by a man on his way to work.

School Closing Exercises Held

Chiloquin Elementary School presented its annual Achievement Day to a large crowd of parents and friends May 27, 1:30 p.m. An excellent program and songs and dances by the six grades was given in the gymnasium. Chiloquin winners in the Klamath County Schools Soil Conservation program were also presented, and awards made.

Fine work of the students in art and letters was on display in the school rooms, and teachers greeted many parents who came to inspect the achievements their children had made during the year.

A tea, honoring the parents and friends of the students, was held in the school cafeteria, with Mr. Harley Zeller in charge and the teachers assisting. Mrs. M. L. Ray and Mrs. Andrew Oris poured.

The Soil Conservation Program awards were made by M. L. Ray, principal, to Delos Echlin, Fifth Grade, and to Roberta Dumont Fourth Grade, winners of first and third places respectively in Division of the countywide poster contest and to Anita Vaden, Sixth Grade, winner in the essay contest.

Glamor Dolls Sloppy Sues, Wails Fox Wardrobe Chief

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
HOLLYWOOD — (NEA)—Behind the Screen: Movies may be better than ever, but not the rating of movie queens as snappy dressers.

Hollywood glamor dolls, wailed Charles LeMaire, Fox natty and impeccable wardrobe director and designer, are still on a Sloppy Sue ear and it's hurting movie glamor at a time when it could stand a boost.

"Most stars forget that they owe something to the industry when they appear in public," LeMaire sadly remarked. "They forget that Hollywood is a tourist town and that thousands of people see them and talk about them to the people at home."

"An actress can't be a Jekyll and Hyde in this business. She has to be as glamorous after hours as she is in front of the camera. If she wants to look like a housewife, she should stay at home."

Tops in LeMaire's book: "Gene Tierney, June Haver, Anne Baxter, Joan Crawford and Loretta Young, who look like a million even when they're shopping for groceries."

"A star these days," groaned LeMaire, "puts on an old dress. Then she combs her hair, slips into a mink coat and pins on an orchid. Underneath her mink coat she's about as fashionable as her cook. Unless there's a party afterwards, stars just don't dress for premieres anymore."

Howard Hawks, who discovered him, is denying a reported feud with Montgomery Clift. He told me: "Absolutely untrue. I didn't use him in 'The Big Sky' because I didn't think he was worth his salary demand. Not with the financial structure I had on the picture. It's one thing to pay a big salary when a star has two smash hits behind him. It's another thing when he's had two flops."

Novelist Erich Maria Remarque wouldn't agree to sell the movie rights of his "Spark of Life" to Jose Ferrer via trans-Atlantic telephone, so Jose will go to Switzerland to close the deal with Remarque. Hmmm. After what Hollywood did to "Arch of Triumph," you can't blame Remarque for being cautious.

Aldo Ray, who starred with her in "The Marrying Kind," is doing a flip-flop over Judy Holliday. He told me:

"I've heard that some actors can't get along with her. I don't know why. She'd do her scenes on the first take. Me, I'd have to have 10 takes before I'd get it right. She's a great actress and a great woman. Nobody else would have had the patience with me."

Loretta Young is confessing that she's knee-deep in talks with NBC and CBS executives on the subject of a TV series—"Not to mention a smaller company"—and that stay-at-homes will definitely be seeing her as a full-fledged video queen.

"I'm taking my time and not rushing, though," confided Loretta on the set of UT's "Magic Lady." "It's no good doing anything half-baked just because I'm enthusiastic about television and think it's a wonderful new medium. I'll be in it as soon as I find the right property. Nobody can ignore TV. I look at it all the time. Even when it's bad."

Huge Crowd Visits Park

Memorial Weekend travel at Crater Lake saw 1,077 people tour the national park in 384 cars, according to Chief Ranger Lou Hallock. The ranger reported May travel totaled 3,812 autos bearing 12,007 people, an increase of 11 per cent over May of 1951. Travel on Memorial Day itself, Hallock said, was up 19 per cent from the same day last year.

There is 74 inches of snow at the park, but all south and west entrance roads are open and in good condition.

John Huston won't film "Moulin Rouge" at Paris's famous Moulin Rouge but at Moulin La Gallette in Montmartre, because the latter looks more like the public's conception of Moulin Rouge. More and more episodic films (the better to slice up for television later on) are on the way. The latest in "Tales of Cairo," to be filmed in Egypt by Dan Duryea and Paul Henreid slated to star in an episode each.

The word from MGM is that the cheesecake photos being made of Zsa Zsa Gabor in the lace panties and bra she wears in "Lili" are rippier than anything the studio's tried since Lana Turner's sweeter days in the art gallery. And that Zsa Zsa is blushing through it all. Zsa Zsa blushing?

Let it not be said that 1952 will be strictly an Artie Shaw literary year. Ex-wife Kathleen Winsor has just completed her new novel, "The Lovers," said to be more Amberish than Amber.

Ginger Rogers on her stepped-up movie career: "Every actor who has anything at all has been up and down. You don't stay at high levels in Hollywood. You come back to high levels."

Cesar Romero's telling it on himself. While in India for a movie he was introduced to Promoter Nehru. Nehru shook hands, then whispered something to an aide. The aide later confided to Romero:

"The premier never goes to the movies. He asked me who you were?"
