Big Three Conclude Top Level Conference

LONDON (AP)—The Big Three Western foreign ministers ended top-drawer talks on world problems Saturday and put the final touches to an offer they will make to Russia for conditional four-power talks on unifying Germany.

After 148 hours on issues covering the Far East, the Middle East, Europe and Russia, U.S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman met separately for concluding discussions of individual problems.

Then Acheson flew to Berlin and Schuman returned to Paris.

At the airport, Acheson told newsmen the talks "have served to inform each of us on developments in various parts of the world and to strengthen the liaison and understanding among us."

The three ministers announced they had agreed on the substance of a note to Russia—expected to be delivered to the Kremlin late next week—outlining the conditions under which the Western powers would agree to meet with the Soviets to discuss unifying Germany and mapping an eventual German peace treaty.

They also announced they had "considered means" for insuring close cooperation in Korea and the Far East during their two formal meetings, which ended last night with a dinner given by Eden.

In his separate meeting with Eden Saturday, informed sources said Acheson again touched upon the American offer of a British link with the United Nations command in Korea—possibly a British deputy to the Far East commander, U.S. Gen. Mark W. Clark.

This offer was made, with President Truman's approval, after a bitter Labor Party protest in parliament because Prime Minister Winston Churchill's government was not in the dark about the U.N. bombings of the Yalu River power plants in North Korea this week.

State Bows To Lattimore

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department apologized Saturday to Owen Lattimore for the embarrassment resulting from a stop order to prevent him from leaving the country.

The Department at the same time announced it has revoked the order, which was sent to customs officers on June 11.

The order was based on a confidential report to the Central Intelligence Agency that Lattimore, Johns Hopkins University professor, was planning a trip behind the Iron Curtain.

The professor denied he had any such plans.

A frequent target of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) the Senator's charges of Communist infiltration in the government, Lattimore also has denied the McCarthy charges.

Danny A. Jarvinen, 32, a travel agency executive, was indicted at Seattle by a federal grand jury Friday on a charge of originating the report which the indictment termed "baseless."

Crude Cannon New Yorker Kills Child

ABERDEEN (AP)—A cannon he fashioned from a length of brass pipe and loaded with fireworks powder blew up Friday and killed Larry Mills, 13, of nearby Cosmopolis.

Larry, said Sheriff Richard F. Simmons, poured powder from seven, fourth of July bombs down the barrel of his cannon, stuffed in some paper and added a steel ball bearing.

The boy held the cannon in both hands, braced himself against a fence and had a playmate light a short fuse leading to the charge.

The playmate, Gerald Fix, 11, dodged behind a building and was not hurt. Sheriff Simmons said the bombs which provided the power were of a type not legal sold in the state.

New Yorker To Compete

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—It's Brooklyn against the world for the Miss Universe title Saturday night.

Red-haired, blue-eyed Jackie Loughery, 21, won the Miss United States crown early Saturday at the end of a four-hour charn contest that had 10 judges and 2,000 other spectators.

Beautiful representatives from 29 other lands bar Miss New York's path to a seven-year movie contract, a $3,000 automobile and other lavish gifts befitting the "World's Loveliest Girl."

There could easily be a repetition of the first-place tie that occurred in the U.S. preliminary between Miss New York and Miss Louisiana, Jeanne Thompson, 20, a statuesque brunette from Baton Rouge. It took an extra ballot before the judges picked the Brooklyn girl.

Miss Loughery, the U.S. winner, is a model and TV dancer and actress in New York. She is a petite five feet four inches and 108 pounds, with bust-waist-hip measurements of 34-21 1/2-34.

Low Grade Beef Slow

Low grade cattle markets in Oregon and California are falling a bit, stock experts told members of the Klamath Livestock Marketing Association during a meeting last night in the Community Lounge.

Guy Benson and Pross Clark, of Benson, Bodine and Clark Livestock Commission, Portland, said choice and prime beef grades were holding up, but there is a surplus of low grade beef coming off the immature grasslands.

Ray Griffin, California Farm Bureau Federation livestock director, said the same holds true for the California markets, excepting earlier grasses and consequent higher grades there.

The visitors were to go to Lakeview today to lay groundwork for establishment of a livestock association there.

A special meeting for discussion of a sheep shipping service was set for July 8 at the Merrill Recreation Hall, with all farmers having a lot of sheep invited.

The service would provide for shipping of fat lambs, and the possibility of a wool marketing pool is also to be discussed.

Mr. C. M. Warren of the livestock marketing association is part of a committee to set up the July 8 meet, which is to begin at 7:30 p.m. PST. Others on the committee include John Deegan, Merrill; Aubrey Fleming, Henley, and Association Secy. Herb Pollard.

Col. Defends Air Base Plan

WALLA WALLA (AP)—Col. William H. Mills, Walla Walla Army engineer, said Friday night that practices criticized by a House appropriations subcommittee were a "military necessity."

The committee report, issued Friday, said Colonel Mills' office had been pressured to obligate $922,000 for rehabilitation of the Mountain Home, Ida. Air Force Base without completed plans or specifications.

Colonel Mills, stating that as long as American troops are fighting in Korea all military work is under pressure, said the most part do not involve plans written by the engineers.

The committee reported the pressure had been brought by the chief of Army engineers 17 days after Mills' office had advised in June, 1951, that only $300,000 could be obligated.

Mills said the engineers awarded all contracts by formal advertisement rather than by negotiation. Mills added, however, that some urgent cases require negotiation but that the procedure is not unlike advertising for bids.

Mills further pointed out that in rehabilitating a base such as Mountain Home, each building is a case in itself and it would be impossible for the Army engineers to write complete plans and specifications.

BLM Lumber May Be Sold

PORTLAND (AP)—The Bureau of Land Management estimated Saturday it could offer 833 million board feet of timber for sale in 1953, much of it to be salvaged from windthrows, fire or pest-killed trees.

The emphasis will be on salvaging the timber before it becomes worthless, Roscoe E. Bell, regional administrator, said. The bureau administers the O & C timberlands in Western Oregon.

The estimates of sales by districts for 1953:

Salem district 100 million board feet, Eugene 150 million, Roseburg 100 million, Coos Bay 173 million, Medford 110 million.

Historical Incidents Recalled at Merrill

Old timers, old mementos and historical anecdotes were on the program for the June 21 meeting of the Klamath County Historical Society held at the Frank J. Adams home in Merrill.

This was the first meeting outside of Klamath Falls that the organization plans, to encourage attendance of interested persons and out-of-town members.

Hal Ogle, president introduced Mrs. Bob Adams Sr., program chairman, who in turn introduced Alice Applegate Peale, Ashland, first white girl born in Klamath County.

Mrs. Applegate gave some interesting bits of early history and supplied some highlights on County Commissioner Ed Gowen, Guy Merrill and others whom she taught in grade school. She recalled an early trip by buggy into the Lava Beds with her father, the late Ivan Applegate and Maud Baldwin that resulted in the discovery of a new cave by her father.

Fanny Adams Bryngelson spoke on prehistoric times of the Merril Community, displaying fossil bones of the ancient Bison of the Pleistocene age, identified by Dr. E. R. Crossman. The bones were found near Bloody Point.

Margaret Ann Takacs displayed a number of articles taken from the Lava Beds and displayed a huge old compass brought to Merrill by Frank Adams Sr., and an actual photograph of Wi-Ne-Ma given to Mrs. Bob Adams by Jeff Riddle. Tule sandals made to wear over moccasins when the Indians traveled over rock terrain and captured by Queen Mary, also shown.

Mrs. Bob Adams Sr. read an interesting story of an episode between Mavor Henry Cox and a State Highway patrolman and John Giamonini, Merrill, and Mr. and Mrs. Hal Ogle also added some interesting history of the early days.

It is planned to have the next meeting near Keno.

Mrs. Bob Adams Jr., hostess, served refreshments.

House Votes Air Money

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House voted $1,200,000,000 special appropriations for American air bases at home and throughout the world Saturday.

It upheld cuts of 568 million which the appropriations committee made in $900,000,000 program for air base construction, including fields.

The Air Force figures were included in a $2,167,809,840 military public works program covering all three services for next year. The overall allotment also was approved but in both cases the action was subject to roll call vote later.

Military construction is included in a $10,283,133,780 special appropriations bill which the house considered in the house.

After finishing military subjects, House turned to a $6,275,940,750 foreign aid budget for next year.

Further efforts to cut President Truman's $7,900,000,000 program even more were in prospect. A report (R-N. Y.) predicted an effort to cut at least another 200 million out of the Mutual Security Program for the year beginning July 1.

Strides Made In Atom Work

WASHINGTON (AP)—Hints of major American developments in the field of atomic energy eased the shock of jolting new estimates of Soviet atomic and air power Saturday.

Optimism stemmed from a White House visit of the nation's top atomic experts. One of them, Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission's (AEC) general advisory committee, said later:

"There have been such great developments in atomic energy we felt we should report on these directly to the president. We wish we could say what was in the report, but we cannot."

The grimmer side of the picture was revealed in screened testimony of top Air Force and Pentagon leaders before the Senate appropriations committee.

Urging approval of the $6 billion dollar defense money bill, Gen. Nathan F. Twining, acting head of the Air Force, said Russians soon may have enough atomic bombs to launch a surprise attack "plus a reserve for succeeding tries if the first should fail."

Twining said the Russians, while boosting their atomic stockpile, have also developed a powerful long-range bomber capable of delivering atomic weapons against distant targets.

"It is of some significance that a new long-range Soviet bomber of original design was observed over Moscow last summer," he said.

Klamath Rain Over Average

More than 17 inches of precipitation—in rain and snow—has been recorded at the Link River Copco powerhouse rain gauge since the present stream year began Oct. 1.

But from all indications Klamath Falls' measurements are about the driest of any recorded in the rest of the Basin during the past storm.

At Crater Lake, park headquarters reported about 2.5 inches of rain since last Monday, including the moisture in about 10 inches of snow. Snow depth on the level there has fallen from 74 inches as of June 1 to 21 inches Thursday.

Merrill measurements (taken from official weather gear at the E. C. Lemter ranch) showed nearly two inches of rain since Tuesday, while Klamath showed a shade over a half inch of rain this week.

Rainfall to date here measures 17.02 inches, as compared with a normal of about 12 inches averaged over the years since measurement records have been kept here.

Last year, when the final rainfall of the summer was measured on May 13, a precipitation of 14.84 inches stayed on the records until almost the end of the stream year on Sept. 30, 1951. It was a 139-day dry spell, one of the longest ever recorded inside Klamath Falls.
