Merrill
By ROBERTA DEWEY
Merrill's Front Street is definitely taking on a new look these days, with several firms moving to new locations, store fronts being painted and general remodeling and furnishing of interiors going on. The Merrill Pharmacy, which moved several months ago to the building formerly occupied by Santford and Company grocery store, now supports an attractive new green front and large neon sign. The interior was remodeled at the time the move was made, and work is now progressing on new offices for Dr. F. F. Trotman, which will be located in the rear of the building opening on main street. Marks Cafe has just re-opened after a shut-down of two weeks for re-painting both the interior and exterior of the building. The Merrill Clothing Store has moved one door to the west, the building previously occupied by the Merrill Pharmacy. The interior has been re-done, and new shelves and cases added. Completing the round-robin of moving, the postoffice opened Saturday morning in the building vacated by the Clothing Company. It has also been completely re-painted inside, and new equipment is expected in the future. James and Paschall Hodges, who operate Hodges Brothers Grocery have announced plans for remodeling and enlarging their store. Their building adjoins the old postoffice, and they plan to take out the intervening wall which will almost double their floor space. Work will start immediately and be completed in the near future.
