

Total Impact of Steel Strike May be Felt Over Long Period

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It will take more than a year, according to government officials, to get an accurate picture of the appalling damage done to America's economy by the steel strike.

Its ramifications and costs are fearfully vast and complex.

It will also take more than a year before even the direct effects of the strike have been overcome by government and industry, although much of the strike's damage is permanent and can never be completely repaired.

Here are some of the irreplaceable strike losses:

Far more steel has been lost than could have been produced by the facilities created since the start of the Korean war.

In other words, it is worse than if no steel capacity had been added for the Korean emergency. On July 1, 1952, production was down 7,750,000 tons, or 14 per cent below the first half of last year. Two weeks later the loss was 13,000,000 tons. Total loss could be many times that, when everything is considered.

Hundreds of millions of dollars in wages have vanished.

At the middle of July the loss of the steel workers was estimated at $300,000,000. It is many times that for the more than one million workers in other industries halted by the steel strike. Any increase in wages won by the strike won't begin to compensate the steel workers for their loss.

Hundreds of millions of dollars worth of production of autos, trucks, farm equipment, appliances and other major items using steel which has been lost by the strike can only partially be made up by a production speed-up later.

Strike layoffs spread all over the U. S.

Ford, Chrysler, General Electric, Westinghouse, Hughes Tool Co., and the Budd Co., top a list that reads like a full stock market report.

Thousands of tons of food will be lost.

Crops which can't be stored will go unharvested after summer and fall harvests because of the tin can shortage caused by the strike. Fruits are the crops hit worst.

Every day of the strike, cost to the U. S. Treasury is estimated to be at least $3 million in lost income tax.

The loss to the states in unemployment assistance is also staggering.

And certainly not the least is the permanent loss in the production of ammunition, tanks, Army trucks, Bailey bridges, mine detectors and aircraft landing gear.

That's merely the list put out by Defense Mobilizer John Steelman weeks before an end to the strike was in sight. Total damage done to defense production will have to be kept a secret. It's valuable information to the enemy.

Approximately 12 per cent of the steel industry has been kept going for the most pressing defense need, and about 30 small companies have signed agreements with the unions. This has helped stave off a downright calamity in defense production, but great damage has been done, nevertheless.

Here are some of the direct effects of the steel strike which will be felt during the next 12 months.

The strike halted ore shipments across the Great Lakes. This winter with the lakes frozen over and ore boats idle, the hungry blast furnaces of the East will have to close down. It takes a non-interrupted Summer haul to store up enough for full Winter production.

When the strike started there was talk of removing controls on steel because it was plentiful. Now the whole controls program will have to be completely revamped for each industry. It will force re-adjustment of production schedules for many months before the troubles are ironed out.

It only takes a week after a steel strike is ended to get back close to maximum production. But it will be many months before vital stocks can be built up again by defense contractors and the government itself. This also complicates planning and puts the country in a dangerously weak position in case of an all-out war, for at least a year.

Contractors who have lost stockpiles of steel during the strike will be reluctant to take government orders until their stocks can be built up again.

The effects of the strike will be felt on the political front for at least the next year. The question of the need for new legislation to take care of such disastrous labor disputes will be an important campaign issue and is sure to be fought out by the 83rd Congress.

Increased inflation is bound to follow a settlement calling for increased prices and wages.

The mere statistical report of the creeping paralysis on industry and the country's economy caused by such a strike doesn't begin to evaluate the human suffering involved.

Operations have to be put off, education delayed, and personal debts mount up.

Practically every industrial community in the U. S. will be suffering from the effects of the strike for at least the next 12 months.

MAKES LIGHT OF KNOWLEDGE—Six-year-old Maria Angela Bergonzoli, of Milan, Italy, can make quiz kid rinks as soon as she gets the hang of her father's electrically-operated children's encyclopedia. Invented by Perrino Bergonzoli, the volume answers 5000 questions by matching colored lights to painted symbols as the child reader operates a set of dials and switches. Bergonzoli gave the only copy to his daughter when told the book would cost $40 a volume to produce. Above, Maria gives her doll a free lesson.

Eugene Fire Claims Woman

EUGENE (AP) — A 57-year-old woman died early Friday in a fire that destroyed a Eugene home.

The body of Mrs. Elsie Keeney, 57, was found in her husband's bedroom after the flames died down. Corner Fred Buell reported she died of suffocation.

The widower, Hugh Keeney, a former sheriff's deputy, said he dragged her outside after waking up to find his room in flames. "Then she cried something about saving the children and ran back into the flaming house, Keeney said.

Keeney said she apparently thought her grandchildren still were in the house. They had been visiting there, but had left earlier. Keeney was taken to a hospital for treatment of burns.

District Attorney C. E. Luckey and Fire Marshal Lester Parker said they were investigating the fire.

USBR Starts New Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reclamation Bureau moved Friday to start building new irrigation projects, smashing a several year old administration policy against starting any such projects.

It acted under authority of Congress which wrote into an appropriation bill provisions for starting 10 new projects.

Reclamation Commissioner Michael W. Straus said he expects bids will be asked October 1 on a $700,000 job in connection with the Savage Rapids Dam in Oregon.

Straus expects to call for bids September 3 on the Chandler Canal between Prosser and Chandler power plants in the Kennewick Division of the Yakima project in Washington. One-and-a-half million dollars is involved.

Truman Okays Columbia Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman signed a bill Thursday authorizing five western states to negotiate a compact for the use of Columbia River water.

The states are Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana and Wyoming.

Before the compact may become effective it must be ratified by each of the states and approved by Congress.

Slide Halts Rail Traffic

GRANTS PASS (AP) — A rock and dirt slide buried 30 feet of Southern Pacific Railway track three miles east of here Friday.

The south bound Portland-Ashland train was held here and passengers were taken to their destinations by bus.

A bulldozer helping clear the track was caught in a second slide and another bulldozer had to be brought in to free it.

Raymond Griswell, Southern Pacific agent, said the track was expected to be cleared Friday afternoon.

Want Ad for Freak Attracted Barnum To Show Business

After failing as a storekeeper and publisher, Phineas T. Barnum was attracted to show business in 1835 by a Want Ad announcing "one of the greatest natural curiosities ever witnessed." Owners Firm In Ship Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Shipowners, insisting they will make no deals to end the 53-day-old West Coast shipping tieup, meet again Friday with striking AFL sailors.

J. Paul St. Sure, president of the Pacific Maritime Association, laid the position of the shipowners on the line Thursday.

"We've made mistakes and we don't intend to compound them," St. Sure told the Bay area Maritime Commission.

"Faced with the problem of dealing with seven or eight unions and with the bitter friction that exists between them, it was necessary to make deals day by day."

"We don't intend to repeat them."

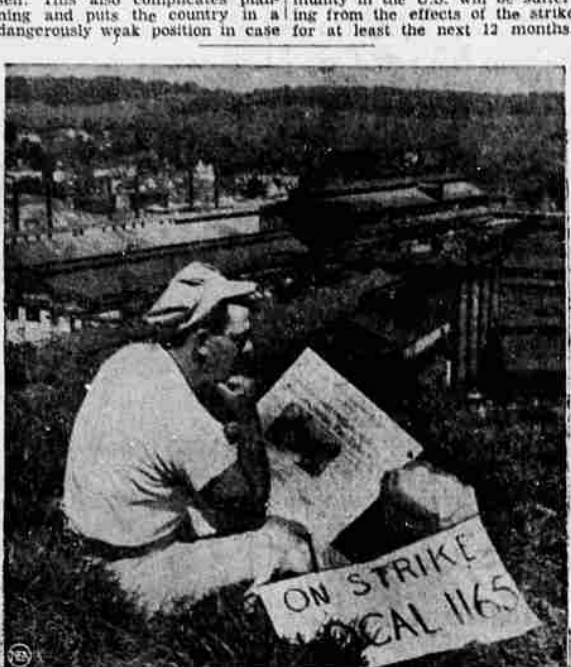

St. Sure said shipowners are prepared to let idled ships remain in port until the industry wins a long-term contract and puts a lid on pyramiding labor costs.

An hour later, a three-hour bargaining session got under way. No progress was reported toward settling the walkout that had tied up more than 110 ships and blocked a normal flow of supplies between Pacific ports.

Harry Lundberg, secretary treasurer of the Sailors Union of the Pacific, called "phony and an insult" the PMA's offer a 2 1/2 percent wage increase, the SUP, which had been holding out for a 5 per cent boost, hiked its demand to 11 per cent and fringe benefits.

Lundberg said a PMA "package proposal" to end the strike "smells" and next move is up to shipowners.

The PMA's package offer, beside the wage boost, included overtime concessions and a promise to have charges of unfair labor practices against the union filed with the National Labor Relations Board.

IDLE WORKERS — like this one sitting on a hill overlooking a steel plant in Coatesville, Pa., had lost an estimated $300,000,000 in wages by mid-July in steel industry alone.

IDLE STEEL — like these billets piled up at a South Chicago mill, added up to a loss of 13 million tons by mid-July.

IDLE SHIPS — like these ore carriers tied up at Milwaukee, usually work all summer to build up stocks for winter production. Idleness now will affect mills when lakes freeze.

OPS To Slice Staff In Half

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has laid out details of how it will fire 6,150 of its 12,000 employees in the Office of Price Stabilization.

A cut from 476 to 181 is listed for the Pacific Northwest offices, embracing Oregon, Washington and Idaho.

This came shortly after Economic Stabilizer Roger L. Putnam told his anti-inflation agencies Thursday to do the best they could with the 60 million dollars Congress gave him. He had requested 103 million.

Putnam said OPS would get $26,000,000, a 45 per cent cut. The remainder will go to enforce rent and wage controls.

OPS said dismissal slips were being sent out and its staff would be cut to budget size by Sept. 1. The agency said it would release about 700 of 2,500 Washington employees. Field offices are being directed to fire 6,450 of their 9,500 workers.

The biggest cut will be in enforcement personnel—1,697 of 2,922.
