Dunsmuir Man Services Held

DUNSMUIR — Funeral services were held in Marysville, Calif., Saturday for Lloyd L. Fortna, Southern Pacific locomotive engineer and resident of Dunsmuir 34 years.

Burial also was at Marysville, Fortna was 59 and a native of Sutter, Calif.

He and his wife were driving to San Francisco last Wednesday when he became ill in the car north of Willows, Calif. They stopped at a physician. He dropped dead in the doctor's office.

Survivors include the widow, Erma; a son, Jack, of Marysville; a daughter, Virginia Saunders, Coos Bay, Ore.; a stepson, Fred Gerzen, Dunsmuir, and three sisters.

Radio Service Near Reality

LAKEVIEW — Preparations for installing radio facilities on top of Black Cap were reaching the completion stage this week and some of the users are expected to have their radios in use shortly.

West Coast Telephone Company has completed placing the phone cable from the Lakeview central office to the peak and the crew has returned to Forest Grove. It was announced by A. M. Denio, local phone manager.

California Oregon Power Company was to complete Wednesday its installation of power lines to the peak, said Phil Quisenberry, assistant manager for Coppo at Lakeview.

A building to house most of the radio equipment has been constructed on top of Black Cap, and Don Strong is installing the radio equipment. The new installation will provide radio-telephone service for Lakeview Logging Company, White Pine Lumber Company, Adams Lumber Company, American Forest Products and the Fremont National Forest.

Safety Swim Classes Held

LAKEVIEW — A course for water safety instructors was conducted at the municipal pool this week by Carl Ross, of San Francisco, regional water safety director for the American Red Cross. Seven persons are enrolled, including Don Kistner, Duke Stewart, Ann Barry, Margaret Kucera, John Dalen, Melva Bach and Janet Morris.

Classes were held from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. daily, and those who completed the course satisfactorily will be issued instructor's certificates making them eligible to instruct swimming and water safety courses.

Of the nine persons who took the senior life saving course last week under instruction of Stanley Tooke, pool director, four completed the work and qualified for their senior life saving certificates. The four were Margaret Kucera, Janet Morris, Duke Stewart and Ann Barry.

The regular swimming lessons at the pool are continuing. Several have passed the beginners test and are now in the intermediate class. These are Janet Morris, Elizabeth Bokker, Lief Ostmo, Don Gray, Charles Vandergraw, Susan Shoultz, Philip Langley, Carter Franklin, Jo Ann Groom, David Elliott and Susan Quisenberry. Several others will complete the course within the next week.

Hollywood Stars Meet TV With Return To Musicals

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Exclusively Yours: There's a new revolution in Hollywood comparable to the hectic years when sound swept in and silent stars learned to talk. It's a bilingual frenzy and stars are feverishly bunting up on their dancing and singing.

"The biggest dramatic stars in Hollywood," Dance Director Charles O'Curan told me, "are begging me to give them private dancing lessons. Even a couple of Academy Award winners."

There's no doubt about it that musicals are Hollywood's best ammunition against TV and that the stars who will survive are those who can do everything—act, sing, dance, juggle and even somersault.

"Hollywood's looking for performers like Donald O'Connor," O'Curan said on the set of "Road to Bali" where he's doing the one-two-three-kick number for Bing Crosby, Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour. "Actors who can't do anything but act are no longer being signed to contracts."

Jeanne Crain is still under doctor's orders to stay away from the sound stages. She's asked Fox for the whole summer off. Hedy Lamarr asked pretty-please, but razor blade king Joe Mailman decided not to angel her independent production of "The Story of Esther."

Gloria Swanson is shrugging off the roasting that her new picture, "Three for Bedroom C," is getting from the critics. The film cost peanuts and Gloria, with a hefty percentage, will make a small fortune.

Ida Lupino and Howard Duff will costar in "The Thunderbird" for Joseph Bernhart and King Vidor when Ida finishes her directorial stint for "The Difference" at RKO. Last time they shared marquee billing was in "Woman in Hiding"—the picture in which their romance blossomed.

Mercedes McCambridge who has not made a movie since "Inside Straight" a year ago, is about to don studio green again. And her radio show, "Defense Attorney," goes before the TV film cameras at the end of this month.

Rita Hayworth's seven-and-a-half-year-old daughter, Rebecca, is beginning to exhibit such talent for dancing that mama is having her take lessons from the man who taught her to dance—Eduardo Cansino, Rita's father.

Her pals are concerned about Gail Robins' continued illness. The malady forced her to give up a role in the Broadway musical, "Top Banana," and still has medical puzzled.

The romance of the almost ex-Mrs. Joe Pasternak and John Perona, of New York's El Morocco, is as flaming as a skewer of shish-kebab.

Heav about the movie couple who wear the same psychanalyst to cure their jangled nerves? Their bath towels were marked: "His-terics" and "Her-sterics."

Lots of lifted eyebrows on the casting of Corinne Calvet and Rory Calhoun as costars in "Powder River." They were amiablely romantic twosome before Corinne married John Bromfield and Rory hitched up with Lita Baron.

Deborah Kerr, who hasn't been happy with her roles at MGM, is now all smiles. She's been assigned the co-starring role opposite Gary Grant in "Dream Wife." It's the comedy she's been yelling for.

An open letter to Jean Simmons in a British newspaper won't make Hollywood happy. The "Dear Jean" letter begins:

"You are like a little white gull being tossed on the dark and stormy waters of dispute. You want to fly to safety, but your wings are clogged by the oil smog of Hollywood intrigue."

Somebody should tell the English scribe that his little white gull has been referring to her long-term pact with J. Arthur Rank, the English producer, as a "slave contract."

Maria Cooper, Gary's daughter, is Peter Lawford's most fervid fan and that makes the friendship of Peter and Rocky Cooper, Gary's estranged wife, real cozy.

Press bulletin from Fox: "Marilyn Monroe's 'Niagara' gowns expose the beauty mark over her heart for the first time." Yipe!

Frank Fontaine's definition of a "Hollywood-type friend": "One who never knocks before entering—and always knocks after leaving."
