BILL-BOARD

By BILL JENKINS

Now that the conventions are past perhaps we can pin our attention to the really important happenings in life. Such as flying saucers.
The mysterious sky objects were spotted again Friday evening by several Klamathites. One of them was Benny Loftsgaard who was driving along the North Entrance with his wife when they spotted the object. Benny is a pretty fair observer and I'll quote what he said about the "thing."
"Here is a sketch of the thing my wife and I saw. She called my attention to it as we drove along Kit Carson way about 7:30 Friday evening. I pulled up alongside the road, turned off the motor and the radio and listened as we watched. We heard nothing. The object seemed to float, twisting and turning as it did so. The top half was shining like a mirror as it reflected the sunlight. The bottom part was light blue. We watched it for about 30 seconds as it moved northward and then veered off toward the N.E. It vanished suddenly. We drove on to the highway scales near Wocus trying to find out if a small plane were flying around between the hills but couldn't locate any."
And that's that.
The report sounds very much like a good many others that have filtered in from over the country as a whole. They stick so closely together that there must be something to them.
The object Benny and his wife saw was described as an elliptical object with a convex bottom on it that varied from straight and normal flight to a swooping motion. Now if we could just get a camera in action and secure a picture all would be well.
In the meantime keep your eyes peeled.

Hal Boyle

HOMETOWN, U.S.A. (H) — When Trellis Mae Peebie, America's average housewife, returned home from the Democratic National Convention, she found her husband drinking a bottle of milk of magnesia.
"There's nothing else left in the house to eat," explained Wilbur. "The sardines gave out Wednesday — and I ate the last of the canned chili yesterday."
"You poor dear — you begin to fall apart every time I go away," said Trellis Mae, who took her husband's malnutrition as a personal tribute.
She phoned for some groceries, cooked him a square meal, then said:
"Well, I suppose you want to hear more about my trip? There is certainly nothing more fun than a political convention. Parties every night. And so cheap, too! I think every housewife in America ought to attend a national political convention."
"Cheap?" exploded Wilbur. "It cost me $425 to go to the Republican convention, and I'm afraid to ask what you must have spent at that national donkey serenade in Chicago. You wrote for money every day."
"Oh, I just did that so you wouldn't spend the money yourself," said Trellis Mae. "Here it is all back to the hotel and fifty cents for the bellhop. That makes $43.25 all told."
"What do you mean — $43.50 all told?" said Wilbur. "Didn't you eat all week? How about your hotel bill, that new dress you bought to go to Perle Mesta's party, and your plane fare home? Don't tell me the Democratic National Committee paid for all that?"
Trellis Mae looked a little vague. "Oh, no, that was Mr. Petrol, the Texas oil millionaire delegate I met," she said. "He insisted on taking care of all my incidental expenses."
"Now, Trellis Mae, you know better than that," began her husband suspiciously.
"Oh, don't be silly, Wilbur," said Trellis Mae. "He was old enough to be my father. Besides, what could I do? The man simply dripped $100 bills wherever he went. When I objected to his grabbing the hotel bill out of my hands, he said, 'If you are going to make a scene about this, I'll simply buy the whole damned hotel, and cancel your bill.'"
"And the same thing happened at the airport. He threatened to buy the airline if I wouldn't let him get my ticket. When we shook hands goodbye, Mrs. Petrol said, 'Trellis Mae, it sure has been fun. I'm going to name my next oil well after you. See you at the 1956 Democratic convention.'"
"He certainly sounds fatherly," remarked Wilbur, acidly.
He looked with interest as Trellis Mae removed two photos from her suitcase and put them on her dressing table. One photo was inscribed, "Dear Mrs. Peebie. You were the hit of my party. Be sure to bring Wilbur and visit me in Luxembourg, Perle Mesta."
The other photo said, "To Trellis Mae, conventionally yours, See you in the White House."
"I can't read the signature on this one," said Wilbur. "What does it say?"
"It says 'Adlai,'" said Trellis Mae acidly. "Who else?"

Thousands In Argentina Mourn Death of Eva Peron

By STANFORD BRADSHAW
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, (H) — Argentina's humble thousands paid grieving homage Monday to Eva Peron. They waited four abreast in mile-long queues for a 20-second walk to the bier of their president's wife and political partner, who died Saturday night after a long illness.
Mrs. Peron's death in her early 30's was generally attributed to cancer although there had been no official announcement of the nature of her illness.
The blonde wife of President Juan D. Peron lay in state in the hall of the Labor Ministry in a glass-topped casket of mahogany draped in white orchids awaiting a full military funeral Tuesday afternoon. Tons of lilies, roses and carnations packed the hall and overflowed into the streets outside. Crowds of somberly dressed, sober-faced mourners were first admitted to the improvised chapel Sunday afternoon and continued in an endless procession throughout the night and morning.
Peron spent much of Sunday beside the casket and personally arranged the placement of the bier. After a private funeral mass, attended only by government ministers and intimate friends, he addressed the restless crowds admitted. They had shouted to see the body, and once broke a police cordon to get closer to the entrance.
The mournful viewing of the body was accompanied by an unexpected tragedy. Gen. Juan Esteban Yacca, director of the Army Superior School, suffered a heart attack while viewing the bier Sunday night. He died shortly after.
Peron's decision still was awaited on his wife's permanent burial place. Two suggested sites are the headquarters of the multi-million dollar social foundation which she headed, or in a great national monument built for her.
Temporary interment, at her own request, will be in the hall of the 6,000,000-member General Confederation (CGT). She was the unofficial head of the CGT, and her following among its members made her the nation's most potent political force after Peron himself.
At the age of 30 according to her official count — the slim beauty was regarded as the most powerful woman in politics in the world.
The nation's military chiefs decreed her a funeral hitherto reserved for presidents who died in office. At the hour of burial, all Argentines will observe five minutes of silence. Church bells throughout the nation will toll for 15 minutes. Minister of Interior Angel Borlenghi, one of her closest friends, will be the chief speaker at the rites.

Heat Hatches Idaho Chicks

BOISE, Idaho (H) — The mercury climbed to 93 in Boise Sunday — not hot enough to fry an egg but warm enough to hatch three of them.
Oliver Gregson took three eggs from underneath a bantam hen and put them in a box outside in the sun. Later in the day he found two chicks and a third just poking out of its shell.

CASUALTY LIST

WASHINGTON (H) — The Defense Department Monday identified 119 in a new Korean War casualty list (No. 614) that reported 17 killed, 86 wounded, one missing and nine injured.

Adlai E. Stevenson

By Roger F. Lane

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (H) — In choosing Adlai Ewing Stevenson, Democrats gave their presidential nomination to a man some political prophets have seen all along as a kind of prairie Roosevelt, a man of destiny.
It's primarily his personality that evokes comparison with the late FDR.
He has statesmanlike qualities combined with political sagacity — this man of the rich, intimate voice tinged with an Ivy League accent.
The biggest single impetus for Stevenson's sudden rise was his 1948 election as Illinois' governor by a margin of 872,000 votes, a state record.
But back of that was an impressive record of shooting stars in federal appointive posts.
Stevenson was born in California, but reared in Illinois, one of two children of well-to-do parents. He had one sister, Elizabeth, two years older.
Young Stevenson had minor troubles, and one tragic incident, in boyhood.
Among the minor incidents were kid fights that broke his nose three times. It's still all over the place.
The tragic episode marred his boyhood in his 13th year.
A rifle he held discharged unexpectedly, fatally wounding his cousin by marriage, Ruth Mary Mervin, on December 30, 1912. The death was ruled accidental at a coroner's inquest the next day.
This is what happened.
A teenage party was arranged for friends of Adlai's older sister, Elizabeth. Adlai was given an early supper but permitted to join the guests afterwards. Meantime, the parents left the house to call on neighbors.
One of the guests was a student at a military academy home for the Christmas holidays. Adlai was sent to get out a .28 caliber rifle, and the academy youth proceeded to entertain the others by demonstrating the manual of arms after examining the weapon to make sure the magazine and chamber were empty. The inspection proved faulty.
When Adlai sought later to duplicate the manual of arms rou-

Governor Calls For Expansion of Legion

The 34th annual convention of the Oregon Department of the American Legion moved into its second official day today after hearing two dignitaries during opening sessions at the Army Sunday afternoon.
Oregon Gov. Douglas McKay and Gen. John Thomas Taylor, the American Legion National Legislative Consultant, spoke before some 500 persons following opening Memorial ceremonies.
"This country," Gov. McKay said, "has nothing to fear but the apathy of its people. It will go on as long as the people want it to."
Himself a member of the Legion, Gov. McKay called for the expansion of the American Legion ranks until it is the powerful force it ought to be. He told the convention the Korean veterans should get the same gratuities from the state other veterans are getting.
"This is an emergency," he said. "Korea is a war today."
Gen. Taylor, retired because of his age during the latter part of the war in Europe in World War II, sketched the background of the American Legion and showed its constant fight to legislate support for veterans and their families.
"He was pinch hitting for Nat'l. Comm. Donald R. Wilson, who for medical reasons, could not attend," he cited 1932, when Republican Pres. Herbert Hoover had a Democratic Congress, as the beginning of an era which had a great effect on veterans affairs. He asserted the Legion's pressure has consistently re-established benefits for veterans whenever they have been threatened.
Gen. Taylor, who served under Gen. George Patton in North Africa and later went on through most of the battle of France, warned that though veterans and their families

3 Arrested For Drunk Driving

Three persons were arrested by State Police over the weekend for drunk driving.
They were Mike Zupan, 29, 428 Commercial; James Mouny Rainbolt, 37, 29 Main; and Bruce Donald Miller, 30, of Chiloquin. All were due for District Court appearances today.
Zupan also was booked for driving while his operator's license is revoked, and is in the County Jail. He was picked up yesterday afternoon on the Fairlie Road.
Miller, an Indian who has appeared on boxing cards here many times, was arrested on US 97 after his 1948 Dodge coupe hit a telephone pole Saturday night. He admitted he was driving but said he couldn't say how the accident happened.
He was booked also for having no operator's license, and a companion, Carmelito Rodriguez, 24-year-old Mexican, was arrested on a drunk charge.
Rainbolt was arrested on Oregon 66 Saturday night after his 1950 Plymouth reported to have the rear end of another car. He was released from jail on $250 bail yesterday.
A Merrill attorney, Wilbur O. Bricker, was in the District Court showing following early Sunday morning near Merrill. He was charged with failing to drive on the right side of the road. Bricker's 1935 Dodge pickup struck a 1938 Dodge coupe operated by Fred Gene Underwood of Tulelake.
Both vehicles were damaged.
Joe Rummierfeld, 35-year-old woodcutter living near Reno, was jailed by State Police Saturday night on a drunk charge after several reports were received that he was threatening to shoot up the town with a 30-30 cal. rifle.
Rummierfeld told officers he meant no harm, was just trying to scare someone. He was released from the County Jail yesterday morning.

Texans Reject Truman Men

DALLAS, Tex. (H) — More than a million Texas voters turned a political cold shoulder to Washington Saturday as they rejected Alan Shivers and Price Daniel, state attorney general, back into office. Both are anti-Truman administration Democrats.
The voters beat down the double-barreled challenge of Alan Shivers, Rep. Yarborough, backed by the pro-Truman faction of the state Democratic party, and Mrs. Allison Traylor, San Antonio housewife.
Incomplete returns gave him 672,456 votes to 394,802 for Yarborough, who conceded. Mrs. Traylor polled only 29,843.
Daniel bested by Rep. Lindley Beeson, regarded as a Truman administration favorite, and W. Napier, an unknown Wichita Falls attorney, went into office handily as the successor to colorful U. S. Sen. Tom Connally.
A Sunday night count gave him 726,844 to 234,203 for Beeson and 12,947 for Napier.
The voting was in the Democratic primary in which nomination usually means election in heavily Democratic areas.
The primary results and precinct meetings Saturday left the state Democratic outlook as uncertain as it has been.
Another battle between state party factions over the binding of presidential electors to national party nominees seemed a sure thing for the September state convention.
Meanwhile, it appeared Martin Dies, original chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, faced a runoff with former Lieut. Gov. John Lee Smith of Lubbock for Congressman-At-Large.
Dies held a majority until early Sunday night, then Smith edged into the picture.
The latest tabulation showed Dies with 42.34 per cent of the vote among the seven candidates.

Soroptimists Grant Money

Soroptimists, in their national convention which was concluded this past weekend in Washington D. C. voted a grant of $3,000 to the Women's Medical College of Philadelphia, the only such women's institution in the U.S.
Word of the grant was sent to the Herald and News by Mrs. J. Frank Adams, one of four Klamath women attending the national convention. The other three were Mrs. Isabelle Brinker, Mrs. Dena Backes and Mrs. Emil Abrecht.
This organization is closely tied to the United Nations and is supported by the vast majority of the members of that organization.
Another group which aims to improve the health of the world is the World Medical Association, which is a private organization composed of the medical societies of a large number of nations. This second group is primarily interested in the standards of medical practice.

Two Hurt In Train Crash

Two railroad employees injured last Friday when a flatcar loaded with logs overturned near Braymill below Kirk have been taken to the Southern Pacific Hospital at San Francisco.
They are Ralph Baker, 27, and Lewis Wilson, 44, both of Kirk. Neither was believed seriously injured. Baker had a broken collarbone and a bad cut above his left eye, and Wilson had head injuries.
They were reported to have been riding on the lead of logs when the car overturned. The men were brought to Klamath Valley Hospital for treatment, and loaded on the Cascade for San Francisco last night, transferred from the hospital by Kaler's ambulance.

Hurricane Lashes East

SALEM, Mass. (H) — A brief, violent line squall with hurricane wind gusts up to 43 miles an hour smashed through this famed old seaport Sunday leaving four known dead and at least three missing. The victims were in small craft capsized in the harbor.
The squall, accompanied by a driving rain, lightning and hail, struck a dozen Essex county communities, capsizing small craft, knocking out power and communications lines and uprooting trees and falling telephone and power poles.
One of the missing was reported seen going under water and falling to resurface.
The others were not accounted for Sunday night when the Coast Guard halted its searching operations until morning.
Some 200 craft capsized in Salem harbor which bore the brunt of the 20-minute storm. The Coast Guard and private motor launches rescued about 100 persons in small boats.
More than 30 persons were listed as missing at one time but they were traced during the 3-day convention of the Massachusetts or in refuge on the numerous islands in the harbor.

KF Men To Moose Posts

CORVALLIS — Three Klamath Falls men were named to important convention committee posts at the 21st annual convention of the Oregon State Moose Association in Corvallis July 25, 26 and 27.
They were Clyde Hoopes, G. B. Leach and Al Nyback. Hoopes was selected as a member of the Rules and Order Committee while Leach and Nyback were named members of the Resolutions Committee.
More than 1,000 members of the Moose Lodge from throughout Oregon attended the 3-day convention. Among the highlights were the first annual Moose golf tournament at the Corvallis Country Club and the appearance of James M. Ballard, supreme governor of the Moose Lodge of the U.S. Ballard is a Seattle attorney.
