Owls Look 'Loaded'

By RED HURD

Last season Oregon Tech "became of age" footballly and had grid customers talking in terms of post-season Bowl games. They finished with a 6-3 record—a room-for-improvement mark—but it's the way they finished that counted.

After dropping 6-19 and 6-14 decisions to Oregon College (Monmouth) and Boise Junior College in games that ringediers said could have "gone either way," the Owls went to work.

In succession came a 54-0 clobbering of Centralia JC, a 27-7 win over Vamport, a 41-14 win over Weber College of Utah, probably their best performance of the year, and a season-ending 73-0 romp over Eastern Oregon College, in which the Owls were trying field goals in the waning moments from ridiculous angles and distances to hold down the score.

This year should be even better, despite the crocodile tears streaming from the eyes of Grid Bosses Rex Hunsaker and Art Kirkland. Because not only will just three or four of last season's roster be missing, but there'll be a flock of newcomers on deck with bright high school reputations.

Don Foreman, razzle-dazzle halfback from Portland, will be back. Foreman was touted last year by many as a Little All-American candidate. The swift-moving Negro lad has had covetous glances cast his way from Pacific Coast Conference schools.

It would take more space than your writer has been given to list all the returning lettermen. Suffice it to say, the problem confronting Head Coach Hunsaker and Assistant Kirkland is where they'll use all the pigskin talent.

The Owls have an ambitious 10-game schedule slated with one open date they're trying to fill.

The early dope sheet points up Oregon Tech's best season and top-drawer football entertainment for its growing rank of fans.
