Key In Car Drive Opens

The Klamath Falls 20-30 Club's annual "Keys in the Car" campaign gets under way in Klamath fall this week, with emphasis on educating the driving public to lift the keys from the ignition each time the auto is parked.

The project is carried on throughout the 20-30 Club International region.

Its purpose is to ultimately lower the theft rate of autos—especially by juveniles. 20-30 Club Pres. Ed Hoesley has pointed out that 55 per cent of the stolen autos were taken by juveniles.

"If the keys aren't in the car," he said, "it's practically impossible to steal the auto. That's the purpose of the campaign."

Starting tomorrow (Wednesday) YMCA boys will begin placing cards on windshields reminding motorists, and 20-30 members have obtained permission from the city council to stencil or stamp slogans to that effect on downtown park-

Army Course Slated Here

A three-man military instructor team from Sixth Army headquarters at Fort Lewis, Wash., will set up a "weekend" course in explosive ordnance reconnaissance agent training at Oregon Technical Institute starting Thursday.

The course, one of many being held throughout Oregon this month is to train peace officers and civil defense personnel in handling explosives.

Representatives of civil defense and county organizations from throughout Southern Oregon are to participate, according to an announcement by Civil Defense Director J. V. LaClair.

He said about 40 persons are scheduled to participate.

CIO Politician Slates Speech

PORTLAND (AP) — Jack Kroll, CIO political action leader from Washington, D. C., will be principal speaker at the 16th annual convention of International Woodworkers of America here Sept. 15-19.

Kroll was one of the labor leaders at the recent Democratic convention who told 74-year-old Vice President Alben Barkley they would not support him for the presidency because of his age. Barkley withdrew his candidacy after criticizing Kroll and others for being what he called "self-anointed labor leaders."

Two Injured In Car Crash

The "Big Key" displayed here during the campaign last year is to be set up once again. Pres. Hoesley said, this time both at the Army and the Courthouse.

Two Merrill men were injured about 2:30 this morning when their cars crashed head-on. The accident occurred on Oregon 39 one mile east of Tulelake junction. The two drivers, Donald F. Carr and Anthony D. O'Hara, both sons of Merrill, suffered head lacerations and bruises but neither required hospitalization. An unidentified passenger in the O'Hara car was not injured, according to state police.

The state police said the collision occurred on straight road and there was no explanation for its cause. No charges were made.
