

Sparkman Skips Civil Rights In Address

MENDENHALL, Miss. (AP) — Sen. John Sparkman skipped the touchy civil rights issue in opening his vice presidential campaign here last night.

The Alabama senator's blanket defense of the Democratic platform was the nearest he came to the subject.

The party platform that has caused strife among many Southern Democrats contains a proposed Fair Employment Practice Commission, anti-lynch and anti-poll tax plank.

Realizing there may be things in the Democratic platform that all of us cannot agree upon," he told an audience estimated at between 3,000 and 5,000 in the Mendenhall High School football stadium.

"But remember that this party of ours is made up of free people from all walks of life with many different beliefs."

Sparkman recently was called "a traitor to the South" for his support of the platform. His critics, dissatisfied Mississippi Democrats, formed a Democratic-for-Eisenhower movement and bolted the regular party.

Sparkman devoted most of his speech to "what the Democratic party has done for the people of this nation." But he took the time for a few swings at the Republicans.

"About the only issue the Republicans can raise is their cry that it's time for a change," he said.

"But you people can ask them — you will ask them — a change from what to what?"

"The senator then listed benefits he said the Democratic party has given the country.

Sparkman also defended the United Nations in Korea.

"Gen. Douglas MacArthur and even Gen. Eisenhower, who certainly could not be considered supporters of our party, have said that we could not have upheld our honor and stayed out of Korea," he asserted.

"Despite gloomy reports you hear, our foreign policy is making progress," declared the Alabama senator.

He called it a bi-partisan policy and named Dwight Eisenhower, the GOP presidential nominee, as one of many Republicans who have contributed to it.

Ike's Philadelphia Visit Is Work For Rank And File

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Major D. Eisenhower's first "dual political" speech as Republican presidential candidate comes off at Convention Hall here next Thursday.

Right now it has several hundred Republicans chattering in work.

Ordinarily party workers have an endless amount of work in election years. But the appearance of the presidential candidate in their city or area adds to the work and causes a whirl of arrangements, such as:

A timetable for the candidate, appointments of committees, press, radio and television arrangements, hotel quarters for the candidate's entourage, a motorcade, placards, transportation for the party faithful to the speech, police escorts and . . . well, you get the idea.

Eisenhower's itinerary looks deceptively simple. But behind each movement, appearance and speech there's a reason and hours of planning and preparation.

He arrives by rail at noon from New York City on Sept. 4 after a tour of six Southern cities. He must be met at the station by party leaders, arranged by protocol in the order of their importance. None must be neglected for fear of offending.

From there the motorcade (cars, drivers and traffic patrolmen must be procured) moves down Chestnut Street to Independence Hall.

Then Eisenhower must meet the proper officials, make the proper comments and leave within an hour. From there he moves to a hotel for meetings with the party's state committees. At each he must speak knowingly of their problems and at the same time not get bogged down in long conversations. The schedule must be met.

After the meetings, he meets the press at another downtown hotel. Then to Convention Hall.

Here the planners encounter other problems, such as the size of the crowd and the weather. Speeches by state dignitaries must be scheduled so they are finished by the time Eisenhower steps to the microphones and before the television cameras are rolling.

When the speech is finished and Eisenhower is acknowledging the applause, you can be sure several hundred party workers will sigh with relief. From then on all they have to do is get out the vote.

Elton Smith, campaign chairman for the coming Community Chest drive in Klamath County, said today dates for the drive would be decided by a Campaign Committee.

The Campaign Committee is to meet Tuesdays at the YMCA from now until the drive is completed.

Paul Landry, chairman of the Budget Committee, said this year's total goal has not yet been determined because all participating agencies had not yet met with his committee.

The Chest office is located at 111 Walnut Street (phone 6094). Mrs. Beth Anderson is office secretary.

SP Officials Visit Here

Three officials of the Southern Pacific railroad were to arrive in Klamath Falls this afternoon for a brief visit, and plan to stay overnight.

They are D. J. Russell, president of the railroad; Kenneth L. Isaacs of Boston, a director; and J. W. Corbett, vice president in charge of operations.

The Southern Pacific announced this morning that a troublesome car shortage of the past two weeks has been broken and that as of today the road is able to fill all orders for shipping space originating in the Klamath Falls area.

George (Bud) Morgan, SP district agent, said that in the week ending Aug. 26 the road carried 100 cars of grain from this area to Portland for inspection and diversion, and had freighted another 40 cars to elevators along the SP line for storage.

Trainman Dies Near Klamath

A veteran Southern Pacific railway conductor died aboard S. P. train No. 19 yesterday morning as he was being taken to the S. P. Hospital in San Francisco.

Hollis Arthur Staples, 60, Greenham, died a few minutes after the train pulled out of Klamath Falls. He had been ill for some time.

Accompanying Staples to the hospital were his wife, Lydia, and a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Doyle Staples.

The body was removed from the train at Dorris and returned here by Ward's Funeral Home.

American Legion President Backs Military Training Law

NEW YORK (AP)—Lewis Ketchum Gough, newly elected national commander of the American Legion, urges national security military training legislation to keep the nation in a state of preparedness.

The 44-year-old Gough, a World War II veteran now living in Pasadena, Calif., was elected yesterday as head of the Legion in the closing session of its 34th annual convention.

Gough, who served in the Navy with the rank of commander, overwhelmingly defeated his only rival, Walter E. Alessandrini, 36, of Philadelphia.

Gough is an inheritance tax appraiser employed by the state of California. His Legion office pays $15,000 annually. Election is for the ensuing year.

At ceremonies in Madison Square Garden, Gough had the red cap of Legion commander placed on his head by his predecessor, Donald R. Wilson of Clarksburg, W. Va.

In his acceptance address, Gough urged "intelligence, firmness and courage" in combating communism, and pleaded for a decisive military program for the nation's youth.

"For 34 years the Legion has had the answer," he said, "A national security training that is universal, economical, effective and safeguarded by civilian control."

Marine Units Provide Forms

To speed up mustering out payments to Marine Corps reservists who have lost or misplaced their required Report of Separation (DD Form 214), Marine Corps headquarters have set up a new procedure. Until now, it has been necessary to secure duplicate, certified copies of the form from headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Now, however, the Director of the Marine Corps Reserve District Corps reserve units, the commanding officers of all organized Marine Corps reserve units and the commanding officers of all Marine Air detachments are prepared to provide certified copies of the required form upon request. Volunteer reservists should apply to the District Director, Seattle, Wash., and organized reservists should apply to the commanding officer or inspector-instructor of their reserve unit.

Reservists who have been discharged and reenlisted since release from active duty or discharged and not reenlisted who have lost their report of separation must apply to the Commandant of the Marine Corps for mustering out pay, explaining the loss of the report of separation form.

Hot Springs On Schedule

Fred Jensen, operator of the city bus lines, says a special school run will be made in the Hot Springs district to meet a request by a group of parents. The new run will begin the first of the week.

The regular Hot Springs run and the Oregon Avenue run will be canceled if patronage does not increase. Jensen said yesterday. He said those two runs had been operated at a loss for some time and were now on a final trial basis.

Jensen also announced yesterday that children's fares, including all school children, were increased from the present seven cents to 10 cents, effective Sept. 1.
