Whiter Nylon Tops Offered By Expert

How to launder white nylon — to keep or to restore its whiteness — is a problem for many home-makers. Judging from the number of queries on the subject that come to county home economics extension agents.

Miss Lucy Lane, extension clothing specialist at Oregon State college, reports that the U.S. department of agriculture has done some research on the problem and has these recommendations to offer.

Wash white nylon separately from colored clothes. Soak them before washing; wash them with soap in soft or softened water, or with a "built" (alkaline) synthetic detergent, and rinse them thoroughly.

To restore whiteness to nylon garments which have been worn and laundered many times, soak the clothes in three or four changes of water softened with sodium hexametaphosphate, a product that sells at retail under brand name. This removes soil and hard-water "soap curds."

A chlorine bleach proved most effective for whitening grayed or discolored nylon, but has the disadvantage of weakening nylon fabric.

Sodium perborate, a milder bleach, ranks second for whitening and may be safer and easier to use. This can be bought a drug store and also is included in some packaged bleaching preparations. Two of these products were tested, one containing 44 per cent and the other only 5 per cent perborate. The latter was no more effective than washing in soft water and soap.

Bluing in the final rinse water was the only method found to be effective in giving a white appearance to yellowed nylon garments. The bluing disguises the yellow line.

Helpful Hints

Good to serve with a cheese soufflé; potato chips, a cooked green vegetable, and a salad of tomato aspic.

If you cook chicken at low temperature until it's well done you'll have a better flavor, better texture, less shrinkage and more attractive servings.

"We changed to Triangle Broiler feeds about a year ago and have had most satisfactory results ever since. For fast growth, feathering and finish, Triangle truly gets 'better results'. We have used both mash and Krumbles; we prefer Krumbles because it eliminates a lot of dust, eliminates waste and gives faster and more uniform growth."
