Texas Democrats Work For Eisenhower

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Rebellious Texas Democrats have a state-wide organization to back GOP presidential nominee Dwight D. Eisenhower today but no way to put his name on the ballot under a Democratic label.

Judge Jack Roberts in Austin's 120th District Court yesterday prohibited the use of the Democratic label or any variation of it for Eisenhower on the state's general election ballot Nov. 4.

Judge Roberts' decision came just a few hours after a group of Democrats, meeting in Austin, set up a state organization and planned a "grass roots" campaign for a Republican victory in Texas.

Claud Gilmer, former speaker of the Texas House of Representatives and a Rock Springs attorney, was named to lead the movement under the name of "Texas Democrats for Eisenhower."

The prohibition to use the Democratic label for the Republican nominee came in a temporary injunction forbidding Secretary of State Jack Ross of Texas to certify Eisenhower's name as the presidential candidate for the recently organized "Texas Democratic party."

The party was organized in an effort to give Texas Democrats who oppose Democratic nominee Adlai Stevenson a chance to vote for the Republican nominee in some kind of Democratic caucus.

The State Democratic Convention at Amarillo, Tex., Sept. 9 certified Eisenhower as its nominee but urged all Democrats to work and vote for Eisenhower.

A day later, the "Texas Democratic party" was organized in Dallas and the Republican nominee certified as its candidate.

There were these other Texas developments:

1. Ben Gull, state Republican campaign manager for the Eisenhower forces, said vice presidential candidate John Sparkman's statement Monday that the Democratic party could fashion legislation giving Texas a fair share of the tidelands was "the inevitable bait."

Gull said at Ft. Worth, "It is the same type of promise Truman made to Texas in 1948 and the same that died the day after the election."

2. Sinclair Weeks, chairman of the National Republican Finance Committee, was in Ft. Worth and Dallas on a whirlwind tour to collect funds for the Eisenhower campaign. He said Eisenhower would spend two days campaigning in Texas.

3. Dr. R. B. Robinson, Democratic national committee man from Camden, Ark., told 400 doctors that "specialized medicine" issue.

Robinson, addressing the annual Scientific Assembly of the Texas Academy of Private Practice, said Stevenson's campaign manager had replied to a letter asking a clarification of views with the assertion that "pressure of the campaign" made it impossible for the governor to reply.

Wake Buildings Flattened By 160 MPH Winds

HONOLULU (AP)—Trees and roofs flew through the air like straws but children sang bravely as they marched to concrete bunkers on typhoon-lashed Wake Island yesterday.

Mothers comforted their children in underground shelters while water sloshed around their feet. Outside every building except four on the flat little atoll was being smashed to bits by raging winds and waves.

Eyewitnesses told stories like these today from Wake and Kwajalein by radio as rescue operations got full swing to bring some 700 inhabitants to Honolulu.

A CV7 Stratocruiser left the storm-battered atoll with 80 evacuees. Some 600 more will follow as fast as planes can land and load up.

Four injured were flown to Kwajalein Island, 700 miles to the south, by a PBM Martin Mariner yesterday.

Radio reports continued to trickle in with details of the terrible destruction wrought by heavy seas and wind greater than 160-miles an hour.

Preliminary estimates placed the damage at 10 million dollars.

Heien Hawk, a reporter for the weekly magazine Transpacifican, said, "Damage was much worse than bombs could inflict. The Hotel, barracks, everything on the ground except concrete radio buildings and the terminal was destroyed. The 300-foot radio tower was blown right down."

Miss Hawk, of Chicago, was caught just before the typhoon hit in all its fury. Her Military Air Transport Service plane from Honolulu, en route to Tokyo, landed in a cross wind, blowing two tires.

Maynard Joseph Fontaine, a Coast Guard technician evacuated to Kwajalein, said he saw "roofs and trees flying through the air like straws."

Sgt. Thomas Albert Barker, 24, an Air Force technician, accompanied the four injured men to Kwajalein in the PBM Mariner.

Barker declared there was "no panic, no hysteria among the women and children. Everybody behaved wonderfully."

The children, he said, sang songs as they marched from their homes to the concrete blockhouses.

"The families stayed in the flooded blockhouses more than eight hours before venturing out at about 6 p. m.," he said. They wanted to make stock of their belongings, but they quickly went back to the blockhouses.

Barker and Fontaine relayed their reports through amateur radio operators. Airman Les Lucas, Crookville, O., sent the message from Kwajalein to Marine Capt. Dave Gee of Walla Walla, Wash., stationed at Pearl Harbor.

Mothers and children huddled in the concrete blockhouses for hours, singing while the fierce winds and torrential rains pounded the tiny flat atoll, which rises only 15 feet above sea level.

Water sloshed three feet deep in the concrete structures at the peak of the storm.

First planes from the outside to reach Wake took food, drinking water and medicine from Honolulu's Hickam Field and Kwajalein.

Crews of the mercy planes set up cots and tents and began feeding the island's residents.
