Smash Hit Danny Thomas Doesn't Behave Like Star

By JAMES BACON
(Hollywood) — Danny Thomas is one of the town's most glib personalities but he still doesn't sound like a movie star.
In fact, I never thought I'd ever hear any actor admit that his co-star was responsible for the box office success of a movie. But then Thomas is still new to this business of movie stardom.
Danny recently teamed with Doris Day in "I'll See You in My Dreams," a movie which rated the industry's supreme accolade—sacco box office.
The picture, in which Danny played song writer Gus Kahn, grossed $12,000 one week, reportedly the record for a week's business any place, any picture. How does Danny explain this?
"Doris Day brought in 80 per cent of the business. The other 40 per cent came from word of mouth."
Danny also hinted his relatives and friends all saw the picture several times.
"Of course," he said, "the people who like me keep coming to see me over and over again. A couple of years ago, I opened my nightclub act in Chicago with $18,000 worth of new material. I spoke one line—about two bucks worth—and the customers all started hollering for 'The Waiting Syrian' and all the other routines I had been doing for years."
About the word of mouth business of "Dreams," Danny expounded:
"Here was a musical picture that was successful because it was believable.
Take that scene where my wife goes to the hospital for the birth of our baby. I'm not there when I should be because I run across another song writer in a restaurant. I stay out all night writing a song and don't get to the hospital till after the baby is born.
'I come to the hospital room. I want to tell my wife how much I love her. But what audience would so for tender love words coming from a song writer with an ugly puss like mine?
'So what do I do. I tell her I love her by singing the song 'I Had to Be You' in the little hospital room.
'When I start, does a 60-piece symphony orchestra suddenly break out of nowhere to accompany me? Do I sing like this?'
Danny then broke out into a belting imitation of some tenor who never quite made the Met.
'No,' Danny answered himself.

Shock Waves Hit Dunninger After Thinking of Marilyn

By ERKINE JOHNSON
(Hollywood) — Exclusively Yours' Dunninger, the master mentalist, asked me to think of four numbers and I asked him to think of one—Marilyn Monroe.
Writing down my numbers was pie-easy for him but when he tuned in on Marilyn's thought waves, it was obvious the man had problems.
He blushed and said:
'I better think about Lassie or Senator Tobey or Margaret O'Brien. There are censors in Hollywood, you know.'
George Pal's production of "Houdini," co-starring Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh, is the reason for Dunninger's presence in Hollywood. He inherited all of Houdini's effects, which he's loaned to Paramount. He's also technical advisor on the film and will play himself.
As Harry Houdini's life-long pal, what does Dunninger think of Tony Curtis playing the master magician?
'I came to Hollywood with an open mind. I'd never met Tony. Then I saw him perform. The boy has amazing digital dexterity. In five weeks he's more polished than the average amateur magician with three years' experience.'
Dunninger's next big TV stunt will be from a submarine in New York harbor—reading a 10-word sentence on a blackboard in Radio City. If Marilyn Monroe's thought waves don't swamp the sub, that is.

Esther Williams and Ben Gage celebrate their seventh wedding anniversary Nov. 5 with a "Complete Happiness" label. Says Esther, "He knows everything I'm going to do wrong and I know everything he's going to do wrong. There are no regrets."
She pointed to her dressing room table on the set of "Dangerous When Wet." "Look, he no longer sends me flowers. He sends me plants for our garden. That's how permanent it is."
Van Johnson's due to give Bogart and Mitchum some competition in the tough guy department. MGM's scheduling him for "Caribbean Incident," a story of intrigue and jewel thieves. Rita Moreno will be tested for the feminine lead.
Attorney Fannie Holtzmann, who represented the late Gertrude Lawrence for many years and was her closest friend, is in the midst of negotiations with a major studio for the rights to the star's autobiography, "A Star Danced." It was once rumored as a vehicle for Jane Wyman.

Time Saves No Power
TACOMA (AP) — Extending daylight saving time beyond Sunday would have no effect on the Pacific Northwest electric power situation, City Utilities Commissioner C. A. Erdahl said Tuesday.
Erdahl, chairman of the Pacific Northwest Utilities Conference Committee, in a statement described the area's winter power problems as "primarily one of energy rather than peaking deficit."
Extending daylight time into the fall and winter months "would not warrant the extremely limited energy savings which might result," he said.

Wife Splits With Gorgeous
RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Prolonged absences from home of Gorgeous George, platinum blond wrestler, caused her previous mental suffering, his wife testified Tuesday in obtaining a divorce. She charged extreme cruelty.
Mrs. Elizabeth George, 35, said that her 35-year-old husband was extremely jealous although he seldom spent an evening at home. She was granted $100 a week to support herself and their children, Carol Sue 7, and Donald.

POLYNESIAN FLYING SAUCER
PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — Flying saucers—or their Polynesian equivalents—are old stuff to the natives of this South Pacific isle. Stories of such aerial phenomena go back to the most ancient times, said a description of the "flying saucer" in the Polynesian. The Polynesian rising out of the earth, and flying saucer" is: "A ball of purple fire over the coconut groves into the recesses of the central mountains of Tahiti."

"I sing it just like any other ordinary guy who's alone with his wife in a hospital room and who's been out all night."
"Sound so hot when he's been up all night."
"Danny even waived the traditional movie practice of pre-recording the song for this particular scene."
"I wanted this to sound absolutely real," he said, "and it did."
"Although the comedian may not think too highly of his box office appeal, the Warner Brothers apparently disagree. Else, they wouldn't have starred him in the remake of "The Jazz Singer," a movie dear to the collective hearts and pocketbooks of the brothers.
