French Give Up Submarine

PARIS (AP) — The French Navy gave up hope Thursday of finding its submarine Sibylle in time to save the 48 men aboard. The ship is missing on maneuvers off the Riviera since Wednesday morning.

"The Sibylle must be considered as lost," said a Naval Ministry spokesman.

It added that the ship had not surfaced at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday as scheduled and that searchers had found an oil slick and "various objects now in the course of being identified" six miles east of Cap Camarat, near the Riviera resort of St. Tropez.

The water in that area is about 2,100 feet deep.

The Navy had explained earlier that its rescue equipment could not operate below depths of 150 to 180 feet. The sub reportedly had an escape mechanism permitting the crew to surface one by one, but so far no men had been reported picked up.

The communiqué said: "The security buoy of the Sibylle was found but the cable linking it to the submarine was broken. The center of the oil slick, which extended over a large area, corresponds with the position which the submarine occupied when last in sound contact."

Search vessels are continuing to patrol the area, the communiqué added. It said the crew of the sub included five officers, nine non-commissioned officers and 34 men.

A spokesman at naval headquarters in Toulon said the submarine "had probably burst under the pressure of water."

The 1,000-ton Sibylle had an outstanding record during World War II, sailing as the Sportsman under the British flag. She was credited with sinking or damaging some 31,000 tons of enemy shipping in the Mediterranean. Britain turned the ship over to the French on a

Hudson Officials Study Company's New Small Car

The entire factory field organization of the Hudson Motor Car Company met in Detroit this week to preview Hudson's new low-price car. Plans for marketing and advertising of the car also were discussed.

The car will be Hudson's entry in the low-price field and is scheduled for production in early November. It will develop considerably more than 100 horsepower and weighs only 1800 pounds. With a cast iron head it will have a compression ratio of 7.5 to 1 and with an aluminum head the ratio will be 8.1 to 1. The car will be available with standard transmission, standard transmission with Over-drive, or Hydra-Matic Drive. First models to come off the line will be four-door sedans.

In presenting the new car to the field organization, Mr. A. E. Barit, president of Hudson Motor Car Company, said:

"From the very beginning we have called our new car 'a wonder car' because it is a new kind of car, which provides qualities heretofore unknown in compact form and at a low price.

"Hudson's exclusive 'step-down' design makes it possible to provide far better performance, safety and luxurious comfort, together with unusual economy, than has ever been possible before in a car in the low-price field. It is a com-act new type of car which has more than one horsepower for every 28 pounds of weight. It gives considerably higher horsepower in proportion to weight than any of the cars in the low and medium price field, and, as a result, provides both performance and economy to an unusual degree.

"It will accommodate six passengers and will give roadability, safety, riding qualities and performance expected only in high price cars. It is comparable only to the Hudson Hornet itself.

"The lines of the car are entirely new with Hudson. The styling, both on the exterior and interior, reflect quality, luxury and custom craftsmanship which has always been a Hudson trade-mark but which never before has been made available on a car in the low-price field.
