Keep Your Lawn Green For Another Two Months

Sprinkle it regularly...

Lawns and gardens will remain green and colorful far into the fall if you give them plenty of water now. Even though the weather is cooler the ground soon gets dry unless you continue sprinkling. Keeping your lawn and garden well watered into the early fall is also a protection against winter damage to shrubs and plants and will make them hardier and more attractive next spring. Insure the investment you have in your lawn and garden by maintaining a healthy, steady growth during the fall season.
