Truck Tax, Liquor Sale Are Basin Forum Topics

Two of the measures on the Oregon general election ballot are to be discussed on tomorrow night's Bull's Basin forum over KFLW.

The two are the controversial truck tax proposition and the measure to allow sale of liquor by the drink.

The popular forum will be held at 8 p.m., a regular date from now on, rather than at 8:30 p.m., as in the past. The change is necessitated for a smooth program since KFLW becomes affiliated with the Columbia Broadcasting System today, adding many new programs to its nighttime schedule.

Members of the panel for discussion of the two ballot measures tomorrow night are two Klamath County legislators, Rep. Henry Semon, Democrat, and Rep. Ed Geary, Republican; Bert Traak of Portland, an official of the Oregon Highway Council; and Harry Molatore, Klamath Falls restaurant and night club owner.

The local truckers and local tavern owners were asked to name their own representatives to the panel for the discussion of the measures of vital interest to them, so that's how Traak and Molatore were nominated.

Rep. Geary was invited to participate because he, more than any other member of the legislature, was responsible for writing the truck weight-mile tax law which is being questioned at the polls by the trucking industry.

Geary and Traak have met several times in debate over the truck tax issue, but this will be the first time their discussion has been aired.

Rep. Semon was added to the panel because of his long experience in legislation and his knowledge of the workings of the Oregon liquor law setup.

As usual, Bud Chandler, KFLW manager, will act as moderator.

The truck tax issue is this: The Oregon legislature passed a system of taxation by which trucks would be taxed on a basis of their gross weight times the miles they use Oregon highways. The tax presumably would mean that the state would get a lot more money for highway purposes from the overland haulers than it has in the past.

But the weight-mile measure was referred for a vote by the trucking industry, and therefore hasn't gone into effect.

The truck people want to outlaw that particular type of taxation and to substitute a measure which would limit Oregon to levying fuel taxes and license plates fees for its highway revenue.

The liquor by the drink measure is sponsored by a group calling itself the "Buy Less Than the Bottle Committee" and is designed to make a change in Oregon's liquor laws so that fraternal organizations, railroads and businesses serving food can sell liquor by the drink. The state would remain the wholesaler, as it is now.

Polio Hits Three In Basin Area

Three Klamath high school students have been felled by polio in the past week, boosting the county's total for the year to nine cases, three more than during the whole of last year.

One of the nine cases resulted in the death, Sept. 27, of George Adler, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. George Adler, 130 Pacific Terrace.

All the other cases, with the exception of one, have been comparatively light and most of the victims have recovered. Dorthella Rose, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Rose, 2316 California Avenue, is still in an iron lung at Sacred Heart Hospital, Eugene, but is reported doing well.

NEW CASES

The three new cases are: Lillian Mahan, Klamath Union High School student and daughter of Mrs. R. B. Mahan, 2250 Reclamation Street; William King, KUHS student and son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis King, 5450 Crest Street; and Anne Curry, Henley High School student and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Curry, 2143 Ogden Street. Anne was a Klamath Basin Roundup princess this year.

The Mahan girl is being treated at home but the King youth and Anne Curry have been taken to Sacred Heart in Eugene.

Dr. Seth Kerron, county health officer, said this morning none of the three new cases were in the paralytic stage.

THREE GUARDS

The doctor stressed the importance of three things to guard against polio:

- (1) Cleanliness. Keep body clean and be particularly careful to thoroughly clean hands before eating.
- (2) Rest. Avoid fatigue, get plenty of sleep.
- (3) Warning signs. In the event of illness, no matter how seemingly minor, stay at home. If there is any temperature, call the doctor at once.

POTATO QUEEN MARTHA BEASLEY

Merrill Girl Named Queen Of Basin Potato Festival

MERRILL — Pretty, petite Martha Beasley, Merrill candidate for Queen of the 16th Annual Klamath Basin Potato Festival, here Oct. 17-18 was introduced to her walking subjects, Saturday night at the annual Queen's ball in the Community Hall.

Martha won over five other pretty girls representing other communities of the basin.

Her court, includes her junior attendants Janey Hodges and Mara Fox and her senior escorts, are Janey Dixon, Bonanza, Anita Weber, Malin, Shirley Johnston, Henley, Betty Deidrich, Dorris and Helen Kelleher, Tulelake, will be feted during the two day festival.

Gov. Douglas McKay of Oregon will crown the new monarch with Polly Haynes, Tulelake, the 1951 ruler to be here from Oregon State college to relinquish the jeweled crown. The new ruler will also wear the traditional red velvet robe of royalty.

The coronation and presentation of the court will be included in dinner festivities, Friday night during the banquet in the grade school auditorium.

Dinner will be prepared and served by the Ladies Aid of the Merrill Presbyterian church.

Present tentative plans call for sending the new ruler and her court to Bend to invite Deschutes County participation in potato exhibit competition.

In The Day's News

BY FRANK JENKINS

Senator Estes Kefauver, campaigning for Stevenson, tells an audience in Vancouver (Wash.) that 90 per cent of all state of Washington farmers own their land AS A RESULT OF DEMOCRATIC FARM POLICIES.

I've been quite an admirer of yours, senator. You took a terrible beating at the hands of your party leaders in Chicago. It could have soured you. But it didn't. You came up smiling and took off your coat and went to work as a good sportsman should.

You're a professional. Professional politicians don't change their coats with every change in the political winds. If they are wise and intelligent, they size up the issues, arrive at their conclusions and stick with the crowd they joined up with. A professional politician who jumps back and forth from one side to the other like a flea on a hot stove trying to find a better spot to stand on, seldom commands much respect. We voters reserve the right to change our opinions from time to time, but we want our leaders to STAY PUT. We like to know where they're at.

So I think you did the right thing when you came back into the team to do what you could to help win the game. We're all in to be suspicious of a leader who sulks in his tent when things don't go his way.

But I certainly can't agree with you Vancouver statement that 90 per cent of all state of Washington farmers OWN their land (instead of having it mortgaged up to the hilt) SOLELY as a result of Democratic party farm policies. I think it betrays a SHALLOWNESS in your thinking that it is not creditable to you as a leader.

You ignore completely the fact that we have just come out of the most destructive war in the history of the world. During this war, the economies of the countries that formerly were our competitors were destroyed.

Let's put it this way: Suppose a drastic drought destroyed the crops of EVERY STATE IN THE UNION but Oregon. People have to eat. If food were available nowhere else save Oregon, there would be a huge demand for Oregon's crops. In such a case, the law of supply and demand would result in HIGH PRICES for Oregon's crops. Until the balance that was upset by the calamity of drought was finally restored, Oregon would be "prosperous."

That would come about regardless of what political party was in power. And this temporary, artificially stimulated, prosperity would come to an end whenever the conditions that caused it came to an end.

That, also, regardless of what political party was in power.

This too would happen: During this period of high level (even if it is TEMPORARY) prosperity, most Oregon farmers (probably 90 per cent of them) would get their mortgages paid off and their machinery and other equipment paid for and would be pretty well off.

REGARDLESS of what political party was in power, I know, senator, your party feels that it HAS to hold the farm vote in order to win the election this year. I think it is generally conceded that if you lose all, or even the bulk, of the farm states, you'll come out in the small end of the horn. Hence your party's sudden and EFFUSIVE affection for the farmer.

But I think you ought to stick to facts.

And I'm SURE the conditions resulting from war (including the wiping out of our competition from abroad and the creation of unprecedented demand from abroad for our goods, including FOOD) have been vastly more effective in creating the farm prosperity of the past decade than the policies of the Democratic party.

Let's be realistic about these things.

There will come a time when we'll HAVE to be realistic about them.

Grand Jury Opens Session

The Klamath County grand jury went into active session this morning, with two dozen or more criminal matters scheduled for their attention in the next few days.

Circuit Judge David R. Vandenberg gave the jury routine instructions about its powers and expected work, and introduced members of the jury to Frank Alderson, district attorney, and Joe Thalhofer, deputy, both of whom have taken over their jobs since the last session of the grand jury in March.

Alderson listed "between 24 and 30" criminal cases for presentation to the investigative group, most of the matters secret.

Open criminal cases going before the grand jury include:

Keith E. Peck, charged with negligent homicide;

John Gamble and Blanche Dora Lake, charged with larceny by embezzlement;

Raymond Ambrose Pennington, charged with non-support;

Robert Kral, charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor;

Carl Petersen, charged with incest;

Rube Moore, charged with statutory rape;

Maurice Berry, charged with assault with a dangerous weapon;

Ernest Stanley Gayhart and Ima Sue Callahan, charged with larceny from the person.

During his instructions to the grand jury this morning, Judge Vandenberg mentioned that the jury could investigate all prisons and jails in the county, all courts and offices of the courts, and all records and accounts of the local governments. A member of the jury, Doris Cilk, asked if the investigative authority extended to the county juvenile home, and Judge Vandenberg said that it did.

Members of the jury are Roy Call, foreman, 1847 Burns; Doris Cilk, 227 Haskins; Don E. Hancock, 4423 Peck; Alice Elledge, 4525 Clinton; Roy Kunz, Malin; Stanley Johnson, Malin; and Clarence Deffenbacher, Chiloquin.

Dog Shot At; Man Injured

REDDING (Special) — A Dunsmuir Southern Pacific Railway employe is recovering in the Memorial hospital here after a freak hunting accident Saturday shattered his collar-bone.

He is Harley Stoffel, 50.

A deputy in the Redding sheriff's office said three men were not being held after the accident and put together this story:

Stoffel was hunting with his dog, an Irish water spaniel. Three men — Ronald Miller and Larry Couture of Hayward, Calif., and John Landreth of Central Valley, Calif. — spotted the dog and mistook it for a bear. Stoffel was hit instead, the bullet entering close to the base of his neck near the right shoulder. It was believed Landreth fired the shot that hit Stoffel. The injured man was in the Trinity woods in Trinity County from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. before the three men arranged to have him moved to the Redding hospital.

Stoffel this morning was said to be "doing well."

In the excitement, Stoffel's dog was overlooked and is now missing.

Fire Danger Stays High

PORTLAND (AP) — Extremely high fire danger continued in Western Oregon Monday as high temperatures and dry easterly winds pushed the humidity downward. Ocean breezes have been cooling coastal areas but the remainder of Western Oregon continues dry and warm, with no rain in sight.

No major fires were reported in the state Monday. Firefighters controlled a potentially dangerous blaze in Portland's Northwest hills.

The Weather Bureau forecast some improvement Tuesday, with slightly lower temperatures and a rise in humidities.

Malenkov Convenes Soviet Congress With Attack On U.S. 'Warmongers'

MOSCOW (AP)—Georgi M. Malenkov opened the 19th All-Soviet Communist Party Congress last night with an hours-long denunciation of the United States and its "bosses," who he said were bent on world domination and war with the Soviet Union.

Keynoting the first such party congress in 13 years, the leading member of the Soviet Union's ruling Politburo charged the United States is driving the capitalistic world toward economic breakdown and war, while the Soviet Union seeks only peace and is growing ever stronger and more prosperous.

Joseph Stalin and an audience of 2,000 delegates in the Kremlin's great hall heard Malenkov as he charged the "bosses" of the United States had decided to "wreck the peace and prepare a new war" on a war on the Soviet Union, the "chief opponent of a new war and the chief pillar of peace."

The Soviet Union, Malenkov continued, is "unwaveringly carrying out a policy of peaceful co-operation with all countries," but he warned that because of the "threats of new aggression from the side of the Western warmongers, it is strengthening and will strengthen its defense capabilities."

Malenkov's long speech was made public first on a broadcast early today by Tass, the Soviet news agency. (Non-Communist reporters are not attending the Congress sessions.)

The keynote address, delivered in the past by Stalin himself, presumably laid the basis for policies to be approved by the Congress. (Malenkov is generally regarded as Stalin's most likely successor.)

Also on the agenda of the Congress sessions, expected to last a week, are approval of the new five-year plan launched 18 months ago for vast increases in industrial and agricultural production, and major changes in the party's organization, including replacement of the Politburo and Organization Bureau Orgburo by a Presidium.

Malenkov's bitter charges against the United States were preceded by similar accusations from another Politburo member, former Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, who denounced U. S. "ruling circles" for creating "aggressive war alliances like the North Atlantic bloc directed against peace-loving states of the Soviet Union, the Chinese Peoples Republic and countries of the people democracies."

"The bosses of the United States," said Molotov, "... knew from the experience of the Hitlerites ... that it was impossible even to dream about world domination without the use of force."

Malenkov charged the United States with creating bases throughout the world and "remilitarizing West Germany and Japan" for "criminal purposes." These were among his other charges against the United States.

The U. S. "refusing to ban atom and germ weapons and reduce conventional armaments," the Soviet Union wants to do so.

The U. S. "refuses to conclude a peace pact," Russia wants one.

The U. S. "knocks together aggressive blocs against peace-loving peoples, while the treaties concluded by the Soviet Union with foreign states are aimed exclusively at the struggle against revival of Japanese or German aggression."

The U. S. "attacked Korea and endeavors to enslave her, while the Soviet Union has nowhere conducted any military operations from the very moment of the end of the second world war."

The United States is "intensely urging the other capitalist countries to war. . . . American forces are dictating to all participants in their bloc their goals of war."

Malenkov said the Communist party's chief task in the field of foreign policy is to counter all this by "struggling against the preparation and unleashing of a new war," to intensify the "peace partisan" movement throughout the world, and "to insistently expose all preparations for a new war and all intrigues of the warmongers."

He outlined these additional policy plans to be followed by the party in foreign policy:

1. Strengthen the defensive might of the Soviet state and "raise our preparedness to administer a crushing rebuff to any aggressors."
2. Strengthen and develop the "industrially, friendly relations with the Chinese and other peoples republics."
3. Implement in the future the policy of "international co-operation and development of business relations with all countries."

On the economic front, Malenkov accused the United States of boosting exports by "shameless dumping" and forcing the other capitalist nations to adopt a "war economy." This, he declared, had raised economic output but was developing widespread strikes, falling living standards and bitter rivalries between nations.

All this, he continued, "means the world system of the capitalist economy as a whole had become much weaker than it has been before the war."

He said Britain, France, Germany, other Western nations, and Japan already are trying, or would try, "to force their way out of subordination to the U. S. . . . The conflicts at present dividing the imperialist camp can lead to a war between one capitalist state and another."

By contrast, said Malenkov, production in the Soviet Union is increasing rapidly.

"In peaceful competition with capitalism," he continued, "the socialist system of economy, with every year, will ever more visibly prove its superiority over the capitalist system of economy."

He called for "developing and broadening of trade relations between all countries, irrespective of the difference in their social systems."

HAROLD ASHLEY (left above), City School Board's clerk, jumped the gun with his Community Chest contribution. Above, Ashley hands H. O. Juckland a $50 check. Juckland is head of the chest's Advance Division this year. Advance Gifts, starting a week ahead of the general chest campaign, starts tomorrow morning with an "Earlybird Breakfast" at the Winema Hotel, 8 a.m.

ON THEIR WAY TO HIGH SCHOOL this morning, Emmie Moon, 3917 Frieda; Sally Sayers, 1920 Fargo, and Margie Anderson, 3129 Lodi, stopped for the 9 o'clock merman. Sally and Margie are freshmen, Emmie a sophomore.
