They'll Do It Every Time

Ike Backs State Control of Tidelands In Fourth Foray Through 'Solid South'

By DON WHITEHEAD

ABOARD EISENHOWER SPECIAL Dwight D. Eisenhower swept into Texas today on his 62nd birthday calling the Truman administration a "weak-kneed and soft-headed" regime trying to grab control of state rights.

Openly appealing for Dixie support the GOP presidential nominee ripped into the Truman leadership as being "power hungry" — "power-mongers" — "reckless drivers" — and "discredited."

He packed these harsh words into a speech prepared for delivery at Houston, Tex., as the follow up to his hard-hitting states' rights speech in New Orleans last night.

In that speech he again supported state ownership of the rich tidelands oil deposits — and he warned against the encroachment of federal government on the rights of the states.

Roaring thousands in New Orleans greeted this assault on the administration, giving him a welcome at least as great — and many thought greater — than that given to Democratic presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson last Friday.

The Eisenhower command hoped for similar receptions throughout the day in Houston, Waco, Lubbock and San Antonio — from Texans in revolt against the Democratic party and its leaders.

In his Houston speech, Eisenhower praised Texas Atty. Gen. Price Daniel, Democratic senatorial nominee for his "valiant defense of the rights of your state in its own tidelands."

And then he said: "He (Daniel) thinks the Texas tidelands ought to belong to Texas. So do I. This has been my position since I first looked into this matter in 1948.

I have always felt that the titles to these submerged lands should be recognized in the states out to their historic boundaries. "Not just Texas — all the states. Not just tidelands — all submerged lands within such historic boundaries."

Then Eisenhower said Stevenson favors federal control over the tidelands. "He wants to take over the tidelands and dole out to the states whatever Washington decides you ought to have," he said. "That isn't what I call a fair shake. I call it a shake down."

Then he asserted unless the people guard their states' rights "an all-powerful Washington bureaucracy will rob us one by one of the whole bundle of our liberties."

He urged the voters to put "country above party labels" and to join his "crusade."

He said there had been disloyalty and subversion in high places. And he added: "Why have we had these things? Because we have had leadership that was weak-kneed and soft-headed."

This was the general's fourth thrust into Dixie.

He came to New Orleans from a quick swing into Wyoming and Oklahoma, arriving in New Orleans in the early evening. Approximately 2,000 persons were on hand when he landed at Moisant International Airport. State police estimated around 120,000 persons were jammed along Canal Street to cheer him and give him a ticker tape parade.

There was almost a Mardi Gras air about the whole affair, and more than 15,000 packed out to their historic boundaries. Robert F. Kenyon introduced the general.

Eisenhower opened his talk with a slap at Stevenson, saying he had "proved to the hilt what I call administration arrogance toward the South." He recalled Stevenson's description of the bolsters as "embittered apostates" — and said the term meant "one who has turned away from his faith."

The mention of Stevenson's name brought some boos from the throng.

Eisenhower said: "How can you

CASPER, Wyo., (AP) — Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson declared today that the Republicans "prefer slogans, emotion and confetti" to facing up to their record on the campaign issues of peace and prosperity.

Asserting that the "Old Guard reactionaries" of the Republican party had "opposed every measure to build up America's strength and America's alliances against the Communist conspiracy," Stevenson added:

"Moreover — to my sorrow and dismay — they seem to have induced or forced the general to alter his own positive principles and to adopt equivocal and hesitant views that favor more of isolation and retreat than security and confidence."

During a broadside at his opponents, the Illinois governor declared:

"There are some desperately important issues, although you would never guess it from listening to the Republican candidates. They don't like to talk about issues very much. They prefer slogans, emotion and confetti."

"Eisenhower's advance men have furnished confetti for the crowds which turn out to greet him."

"It's easy to understand why when you look at the voting record of the Republicans in Congress for the last 20 years, you can see right away why they decided that the less said about the issues the better."

Stevenson said that in cattle country language "Old Guard reactionaries" now "own the Republican party, hooves, hides and tailow."

"They control the Republicans in Congress," he said. "The Republican candidate for the presidency does their bidding, by conviction, persuasion or intimidation. I know not which."

"They have grabbed control of the Republican campaign — and they are quite frank about their plans to dominate the White House and the Congress if they ever get a chance."

"Obviously optimistic about the results of next month's election, the Illinois governor echoed the sentiments of Wilson Wyatt, his campaign manager, when he said, "We confidently expect to win in November."

Indicating that he believes he has found the basic road to victory, Stevenson bore down hard on what has come to be known in his camp as the "You never had it so good" theme.

In this connection, he said he doesn't believe the voters have "much choice as to which party we can most hopefully trust to keep this nation prosperous, and to lead the way to an enduring peace."

As examples of what his party has done, Stevenson said the Democrats had (1) "wiped out unemployment and created 62 million jobs," (2) "developed a system of partnership between government and private enterprise, which accomplishes far more than either partner could ever hope to achieve alone," (3) had formed "a fruitful partnership between the government and its citizens" in the field of reclamation, (4) had bolstered farmers with price supports, despite Republican opposition and (5) had worked 20 years to develop our national resources and open them up to the creative vigor of private enterprise.

"Do you have any doubt about what will happen to the program on which American prosperity is founded if the Republican Old Guard ever gets control of our government?" he demanded.

Our national resources, he said, quite openly for a policy of weakness, a policy of abandoning our friends abroad, a policy of retreat in the face of Soviet imperialism.

"They have hurled lies and slanders against great Democrats such as Gen. Marshall, who has devoted their lives to the defense of this country," he said.

"They have demanded drastic and immediate tax cuts which could only result in gutting the strength of our armed forces and our allies and opening the door for new Soviet conquests."

Stevenson said the Democrats have made mistakes, but contended that "their basic direction" has been right and we have not wavered or flinched in the face of attack from all quarters.

He praised Robert Ross, a candidate for Congress, and Sen. Joseph O'Mahoney, Democrat running for re-election.

BILLBOARD

By BILL JENKINS

Only sixty more shopping days until Christmas.

Horrible thought!

What brought that to mind was receipt of the first of the Yale catalogs. Those brightly trimmed little brochures filled with gift suggestions, price lists and order blanks.

Well worth the reading. Where else could one find so many knick-knack suggestions? Such as a tub rest for those who read while soaking. Spongy soft rubber rest on a rust-proof steel back that fits to the end of the tub so you can read in comfort.

Or a Kleen Dog Cloth? Just rub it over your dog and he'll smell better, have less dirt on him and will be free from, or at least more so, fleas and ticks. He'll love you for it. No more nasty old wicker baths.

Or a flowerpot cultivator? Handy little tool just over six inches long with a shovel at one end and a rake at the other for the window-sill gardener. If not that now about a handy little gadget for the man?

Something like the neat tool, which fits into a pigskin case, and contains a ruler in inches and meters, triple cut nail file, screw driver, lack lifter and cigar cutter.

When I got to the section dealing with candle snuffers, garlic squeezers and Scent-O-Pine candles I easily filled out my list. Nothing in the back of the catalog anyway except silver patterns, money bags, luggage and other completely useless things. No fun at all.

I like to be practical.

Now that I've gotten off to a headstart the rest of you can worry. I'll spend the next sixty days hunking ducks.

CAUGHT IN THE ROUNDS

By DEB ADDISON

IN ONE EAR AND OUT THE TYPEWRITER listening to Bill Ganong Jr., explain measures that will be voted on November 4:

Measure 306-307 "Amendment Legal Voters of Taxing Unit Establish Tax Base" has to do with the 6 per cent tax limitation.

Now, a taxing unit, state, county, municipality, district or other tax levying body can levy only 6 per cent more taxes than has been the tax base in any one of the preceding five years — unless to authorized in a special election for that purpose. Such special authorization beyond the 6 per cent limitation does not then become a tax base for following years.

This proposed constitutional amendment would provide that a new tax base could be legalized by vote at any primary or general election. It requires that a measure for such a new tax base must state the amounts of the present and the proposed new tax base.

In favor of it is the argument it would avoid expensive special tax elections, that in order to keep public taxing units up with inflation it is necessary to have special elections each year and so the 6 per cent limitation is getting out of favor — that this would save it; that being allowed only with primary or general elections it would come only every two years and so act as a damper on tax inflation; that it enable setting up a tax base for newly annexed territories.

Arguments against it are that it is poorly written and probably would require further legal clarification; that it is the beginning of the end of the 6 per cent tax limitation.

Measure 316-317 "Act Limiting State Property Tax" is a statute passed by the last legislature that was put on the ballot for popular vote by referendum.

It would put a limitation on property tax in mills (not per cent) on the amount of tax money collected (not levied).

The state always levies a property tax but none has been collected for 13 years because the income tax was set up to offset it. This measure would limit the amount that could be collected as state property tax.

I can't see (Ganong said) that it would mean much because, being a statute passed by the legislature, it could be nullified by any legislature.

Measure 310 - 311 "Amendment Creating Legislative Assembly"

Taft Assails Truman 'Lies'

CASPER, Wyo. (AP) — Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) assailed the Democratic administration last night for what he said was its attempt to force a totalitarian and socialistic form of government on the United States.

Speaking at a Republican rally at Casper on behalf of Gov. Frank A. Barrett, Wyoming senatorial candidate, Taft lashed out frequently at President Truman.

He answered some of the President's recent whistle-stop statements and at one point called one claim of the President a "complete lie."

Taft listed the following campaign issues:

1. Corruption in government, in which he stated, "We have reached the lowest state of political morality in the history of the nation."
2. The threat of American liberties from a tremendous growth of big government.
3. Foreign policy.

Commenting on a recent statement by President Truman to the effect "that he has cleaned up corruption wherever he found it," Taft said that was a "typical misstatement" of the President.

Referring to President Truman's contention that the Democratic administration had given labor protection and security, particularly railway labor, Taft declared "That is a complete lie." He said the Railway Mediation Act was promoted and passed in the Coolidge administration.

Taft also said:

"It is the foreign policy of this administration which built up the Russian Communist threat we face today. It is that threat which determines almost every measure of domestic policy and threatens the destruction at home of the very free economy which has been the basis of our progress."

THE DOCTOR SAYS

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.

Conspicuous skin blemishes even when they do not represent any serious disorder, cause a great deal of mental distress. The one referred to in today's first question is apparently moderately common.

Q—Please tell me what to do about the little broken veins that appear on the upper part of the face. I am self-conscious about these when I wear shorts or a bathing suit.

A—This inquiry probably refers to surface-type varicose veins which are commonly known as spider varicosities. Occasionally, the central pool of blood vessels from which they arise can be found and injected, but this is tricky business, and not too successful at best. With rare exceptions, these are best left alone, and ignored as much as possible.

Q—Is there any danger in using the galvanic current with zinc solution to stop the secretion in the nose during hay fever? C.A.B.

A—The zinc ionization treatment was used rather extensively several years ago, but one does not hear much of it today. Its value seems somewhat doubtful, but the current used is so small that it probably would not produce any harm.

Q—If a man has been a steady, heavy drinker over a period of 20 years, could this affect his mind so that he would look and act for

JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Take to the hills, men. Election is three weeks from today. Things are picking up and getting rough.

The campaign itself began leisurely enough, with Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and Gov. Adlai Stevenson as polite to each other as members of the same club. That didn't last long enough to be monotonous.

If let alone, by this time both men probably would have been slugging each other anyway.

But they didn't really have any privacy. President Truman moved in, and so did Sen. Robert A. Taft. Truman took it easy on Eisenhower at first. After all, he thought so much of Eisenhower at one time that he wanted him to be the Democratic nominee. But gradually, after saying he had been mistaken about the general, he began pulling out all the political crowbars he could find to pry Eisenhower loose from his pedestal.

Having thus written himself a blank check for anything he wanted to say about the general, Truman said plenty. And this tampering with his prestige pushed the general into pulling the trigger on the President.

And Stevenson, who said early in the campaign, "I'm getting more aggressive all the time"—when reporters wondered when he'd get aggressive, is getting more aggressive. His dig at Eisenhower aren't gentle any more.

Sen. John J. Sparkman, leaping off in all directions while all the above was going on, seems to be getting angrier all the time. And Sen. Richard M. Nixon, who now seems to have a knack for getting attention, used his TV appearance last night to blaze away at Stevenson.

If, all in all, things seem to be getting tangled, just wait till the three weeks are up.

The handsome young baritone pictured here is a regular member of the "Breakfast Club" cast heard each morning at 8:00 a.m. over KFLW and ABC. He was born in Detroit and was christened Giovanni Alfredo De Simone. As a young boy, he was a boy soprano until one day while singing on a radio program... his voice changed from boy soprano to boy nothing! When his voice finally settled into its baritone vocal groove, he organized a quartette which Bob Crosby hired and named the "Bob-O-Links." During World War II, he enlisted in the Army Air Corp. and was transferred to the Glenn Miller Air Band. From then on, wonderful things have been happening to his singing career.

Irma finds herself in need of money to help her family at home in Minnesota so she sets out to bring about the capture of a notorious criminal, Willie the Whistler, for a thousand dollar reward on CBS Radio's "My Friend Irma" tonight at 6:30 p.m. Once they meet... Willie wishes Irma would have left him to the police!

Luigi's friend, Pasquale, talks the Little Immigrant into buying advertising space to improve his antique business but Luigi learns the hard way that he is spending more money than he is making. This all takes place on the program "Life with Luigi" at 7:30 p.m. tonight and every Tuesday night.

The Democratic National Committee will sponsor a broadcast tonight from 9:00 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. over KFLW. As yet we have not been advised who the speaker will be.

"Charlie's Bedtime Stories" will be heard at 7:00 p.m. Tuesdays and at 7:30 p.m. Thursdays... so be tuned in at that time kiddies!
