Overseas mailing of Christmas packages for service men serving in foreign areas should have been completed by now, Klamath Falls Postmaster Chet Langslet announced today.

He said overseas postal service will be crowded later on as the Yule season approaches, and that prospective Klamath mailers should get packages in the mail as soon as possible.

Langslet said things are expected to be tough in the mails for boys in Africa, Near East and the Far East.

Group Backs Fluoride Use

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP) — The national institute of municipal law officers Sunday published a study concluding that "fluoridation of public water supplies is an effective, safe, economical and constitutional health measure" to combat tooth decay.

The report was prepared primarily for attorneys of towns and cities involved in lawsuits growing out of the practice of adding small quantities of fluoride to public water supplies.

It concluded that children who consume fluoridated water from birth onward will have up to two-thirds less tooth decay than children who consume fluoride-free water. The report examined and dismissed as without foundation arguments that the practice of fluoridation is unconstitutional.

Iran-Britain Ties Broken

LONDON (AP) — Iran formally broke off diplomatic relations Wednesday with Britain, a foreign office spokesman said.

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh announced in Tehran last Thursday the decision to break off relations.

He said he was taking that step because Britain had rejected his terms for settlement of the 19-month-old dispute over Iran's nationalization of the 1 1/2 billion dollar Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

Mohammed Hadjes Davalloti the Iranian charge d'affaires, orally informed the British foreign office of Mossadegh's decision.

A Foreign Office spokesman said that at the same time Britain's charge d'affaires in Tehran, George H. Middleton, was handed a note formally telling him of the break.

Homecoming Fete Nears

Six lovely coeds, comprising Oregon Tech's Homecoming royalty court, are going great guns in their efforts to whip up new interest in the traditional gridiron battle here Saturday night between OTT's Owls and the Southern Oregon College Red Raiders from Ashland.

Yesterday, Homecoming Queen Margie Davis and her five fetching princesses, were guests of the Lions Club and club's weekly luncheon meeting and made a big hit with the tired business men.

Tonight, the girls are to be special guests at the Army wrestling show featuring the former world's heavyweight boxing champ, the giant Primo Carnera.

In addition to these special appearances, Queen Margie has been scoring as a radio songstress, Margie, studying for a radio-television career, is an accomplished vocalist. Her accompanist on the radio shows is Ward Hillerich, a big-name pianist who has been forced to retire temporarily from the entertainment field because of his illness.

Margie and Ward filled a 15-minute spot yesterday afternoon on Klamath Falls radio station KFLW, they were heard on a special KFLW offering labeled "Two for Two."

Additional radio shows are planned later this week.

Local Girl's Voice Lauded

A telegram from C. W. Lawrence, professor in the music department at the University of Washington, was received this morning by Gust Lampropoulos congratulating him on his daughter Klamath's first singing appearance on the campus.

The message further stated that Dr. Chapple, head of the music department was most complimentary.

The talented young soprano is a music major at Washington and has been awarded several scholarships in recognition of her scholarship.

320XYES for School District Reorganization

The measure that will SAVE money, not cost money

Ex-Governor Charles Sprague The School District Reorganization Act will finally do what Governor Charles A. Sprague recommended to the Legislature in his 1939 inaugural message. He said: "We cling to an archaic multiple district system at a time when we have abolished small road districts and when transportation facilities bring central schools within easy access. I am genuinely friendly to the idea of keeping the rural school fixed in the rural environment. But it is a mistake to stick blindly to the system of small school units. Experience has amply demonstrated the value of larger units."

State Senator Philip Hitchcock of Klamath Falls "The School District Reorganization Act will protect the democratic process by building stronger local units. It will provide systematic, rather than haphazard, reorganization in this rapidly growing state."

State Senator Robert D. Holmes of Gearhart "The true objective of school district reorganization is to equalize educational opportunity for our youngsters throughout the state. Today the children in the rural areas do not enjoy the advantages offered their city cousins. School District Reorganization is the first and most vital step needed to bring them these advantages."

Mrs. Albert V. Logan, Corvallis, President of League of Women Voters of Oregon "The Act has received the unqualified endorsement of many state lay organizations, dedicated to the principle that Oregon children should receive the best education possible from existing tax funds."

Milk Forum

in vain to continue with his discourse without supplying the proof but Hillyer doggedly continued demanding the proof.

Moderator Bud Chandler finally had to end the exchange with Church still vainly thumping through papers seeking the proof Hillyer wanted.

Since the new law would not require dairies to buy their milk from specified sources, one big argument offered by Church and Hobson was that Oregon dairy farmers might suffer through competition from other sources.

Hillyer said that it was Safeway's policy to buy milk wholesale in the areas in which it was to be retailed.

A lively exchange centered on the question of free enterprise. Mrs. Taylor and Hillyer criticized the present milk control regulations on the grounds they stifle free enterprise. Hillyer said that prior to passage of the milk control law in 1933 there were 25 milk distributors in Klamath County whereas now there were but two and the milk law barred any new dairies from entering the Klamath field.

Hobson and Church took the opposite view. Hobson said free enterprise was a part of the milk control rules in that dairy farmers were required to meet their quotas or lose out.

Church pointed out that the Oregon Legislature had repeatedly refused to change the 1933 milk law and plead for voters to have faith in the legislators' judgment.

Hillyer charged the "objective of opponents of the proposed new law" was to throw confusion. He said the new law was prompted in order to have "the spur of competition and freedom of the individual."

He said Safeway "believes very strongly that the milk producer is entitled to support price."

As for the threat of bringing in outside milk rather than buy local milk, the Safeway attorney held that a very unlikely happening. He explained the new law would require dairies to pay producers the same price no matter where they bought the milk and that if they, for instance, bought California milk for Klamath County they would have the additional expense of transportation.

Jailbreak

he hadn't wanted to beat Kellenberg so severely, but that Kellenberg was tough and kept fighting back.

Brandon was a trustee at the Tulelake Prison Camp until federal officers learned that he was wanted as a parole violator in Alameda County, Calif., so was removed from the prison camp to the jail here to be sent on to McNeil Island. That was on Sept. 11. He was to be taken to McNeil today.

His federal prison sentence was for theft of a check from the mails, and he has a dishonorable discharge from the U. S. Navy.

Kral was first arrested last March 21 and charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor, a 15-year-old Bonanza girl. He was indicted, pleaded guilty and on May 2 was placed on probation for five years.

Then on Aug. 20, he was picked up in Eugene and returned here to face another charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, this time involving a 15-year-old Klamath Falls girl who is pregnant. He has been in jail since that time and recently was indicted again. Sheriff Britton said that several other prisoners in the tier tried to help Kellenberg while the fight in the corridor was going on, and that none tried to leave after Brandon and Kral fled.

District Attorney Alderson said this morning additional charges, possibly jail break and assaulting an officer, would be placed against Brandon and Kral.

"Milk Dictator?" Look who's talking!

Opposition to milk reform comes from the Middleman Milk Barons whose profits are now protected under the law.

They are trying to confuse and alarm the voters with lies about "dictatorship" under the proposed milk reform bill.

The Milk Dictatorship that Oregon has had for 18 years is exactly what we are trying to get rid of. The Milk Controller now rules without restraint by issuing official orders under vague general provisions in the law.

An Oregon Journal editorial says: "Oregon is the only state that vests virtually unlimited power over a major food industry in a single administrative agency."

Our present Milk Administrator has all of these powers: He sets milk prices all the way from the farm to the consumer. No one may lawfully sell milk BELOW these prices.

He determines which producers are allowed to supply all of our milk and how much each farmer can sell for Grade A prices. He decides who may enter the milk business and where. Under this device over 70% of our licensed milk distributors have been squeezed out in the past 10 years.

He sets up regulations that prohibit any distributor from exceeding a maximum richness for standard milk. He is appointed by the State Board of Agriculture, which in turn is appointed by the Governor. He is completely beyond public control, and serves a partisan board.

Don't you think it's time for milk reform? The milk reform bill that will be on your ballot November 4 will do away with dictatorship.

The new Administrator will have only limited authority, and his powers will be specifically stated in the law. He will be appointed directly by the Governor.

He will set milk prices at the farm level only. Middlemen will be subject to competition, like any other business. He will NOT have power to say who shall enter the milk business, nor which farmers shall be favored.

Under milk reform, administrative orders will for the first time be subject to full review by the courts. He will have no power to tamper with the richness of your milk, but he will have authority to enforce true labeling to show butterfat content.

Milk reform will get rid of the cost of a seven man board. LET'S CLEAN UP THE MILK BUSINESS
